Lancaster Farming

VOL. 37 No. 1 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, November 16, 1991 | 60¢ Per Copy | 19.00 Per Year

Lancaster Holstein Club Starts New Project

QUARRYVILLE, (Lancaster Co.)—An enthusiastic crowd of Lancaster County Holstein breeders greeted the Miller Family Plus Six entertainment at the 41st annual banquet held at the fair grounds. The Millers are a well-known dairy farm family that sing a variety of numbers, even songs that promote milk and the dairy industry.

In addition, the youth committee under the chairmanship of Jack Coleman started a new annual tradition. A September show calf was selected from the Carl Martin herd and given to the youth record book winner. Jill Harnish, 16, daughter of Ed and Arlene Harnish, Christiana, was the winner.

"The Holstein youth program helps young people develop good skills and keeps them interested in dairying," Coleman said. "This new yearly project will help to do

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.)—The new president of the Lancaster Farmland Trust said this county is a "living national treasure." Speaking at the seventh annual dinner meeting last Friday night, Darwin Boyd said that saving farmland in Lancaster County was an important cause that deals with the total quality of life in the community.

"We owe it to everyone to preserve the land, to be good stewards, and maintain its reach of natural

Irwin Writes From Poland

Editor's Note: Lancaster Farming received this letter from retired Lancaster County Agent Jay Irwin and the news article written by his wife Betty for a Polish publication. The Irwins were commissioned by Penn State University and USDA to educate the farmers in Poland about good management practices and how cooperatives operate.

BOGUCHWALA, POLAND — We are near the end of our six month project in Poland... leaving Warsaw November 30 and after de-briefing in Washington, D.C., back in Lancaster December 4. I want you to know how much Betty and I appreciate receiving the Lancaster Farming. Dr. Donald Evans, assistant dean, College of Ag at Penn State, sends a CARE

Poultry Producers Take Another Look At Salmonella

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — When it comes to who is responsible for food safety, the answer is not determined by scientific research or even reasonableness, but on whom the consumer perceives to be responsible.

That's the message Dr. David Kradel, a Penn State veterinary scientist, gave participants who attended the Poultry Management and Health Seminar held at Kreider's Dairy Farms Restaurant on November 11.

Unfortunately, that's also the message the poultry industry hears whenever Salmonella enteritidis causes food poisoning. Last week eggs from a Lancaster County poultry house were banned from New York although officials found that the food was clearly mishandled by the caterer.

Investigators found that the caterer prepared lasagna two days

OXFORD (Chester Co.) — While farming may be a great place to raise a family and make a living, if you ask Richard Breckbill, the young farmer faces a host of problems — many of which can be helped by involvement in several pro-farming organizations.

Whether it's concerns about falling milk prices, rising farming costs, the assumption that farmers are the cause of Chesapeake Bay pollution, real estate transfer tax, or the prospect of unfair manure handling and hauling fees, Breckbill believes farmers have something to support them — the Pennsylvania Farmer's Association (PFA).

Breckbill operates the Chester Co. dairy, Breck-A-Dee Farms. He is also president of the Chester-Delaware Farmers Association,

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—For the first time, the Penn State Dairymen's Club held its annual meeting in the mezzanine of the Ag Arena the evening before the Nittany Lion Classic Sale. Alumni and friends of the Dairy Science Club enjoyed a catered meal and danced to live country music by the Wind River Band.

The second Dairymen's Club Service Award went to William Conyngham of Hillside Farms in Shavertown. Conyngham took over his home farm in 1946 and built the registered Holstein herd started in 1885 to 150 head today. Hillside farm also has a jugging operation and an ice cream manufacturing plant.

As a dedicated leader of the Holstein Association, Conyngham has held offices at the local, state,

National Egg Market

Nov. 13, 1991

Prices trended unchanged to higher on cartoned brown shell eggs in New England, higher on all sizes of white eggs. The trade sentiment ranged steady to firm. Movement of eggs into retail channels was fair to good with the best demand where features were in progress or planned. Supplies were somewhat irregular but mostly balanced. Breaking stock values trended higher. Offerings to breakers decreased. Floor stocks were adequate. The trade sentiment was firm. Demand for live light type hens was good for the tight supplies. Finished product sales were seasonally good.

N.E. Chicken Parts

Nov. 13, 1991

Trucklot buying interest was mixed and selective. Supplies of whole breasts were no more than adequate for an irregular call. Boneless skinless breasts were in heavy supply and slow to clear. Leg items were adequate to fully adequate with thighs and leg quarters in the closer balance. Drums and legs were fully adequate. Gizzards were in seasonally good demand. Wings cleared well at higher trending prices.

Eastern PA & NJ Poultry

Nov. 13, 1991

Prices edged slightly higher on light type fowl but sales were too few to report on heavy hens compared to prior week levels. Seasonal demand continued fairly active for the irregular availability from production areas. Undertone generally steady.

New York and Philadelphia Frozen Eggs

NOVEMBER 08, 1991

Prices were unchanged to lower as the market attempted to settle down somewhat. Trading leveled off as buyers took advantage of values being offered. Schedules were irregular as breakers tried to limit building unwanted inventories and worked accordingly. Floor stocks were in good balance to easily satisfy current requests.

You'll Get Consistent, Risk-Free Performance From New Funk's G® Brand Hybrids

4393 105 Days
4472 110 Days
4530 113 Days
4624 118 Days

New Funk's G brand hybrids deliver consistent performance even under the stress of heat, drought, marginal soils or disease pressures. So you'll get virtually risk-free performance in good years — and in bad years.

Backed by CIBA-GEIGY research

You see, these hybrids are backed by nine years of CIBA-GEIGY Seed Division research. With local testing in growing conditions just like yours. That kind of research produces hybrids capable of standing up to anything mother nature has to offer. Hybrids that maximize your profit potential, while minimizing your risks.

Get complete performance

Plus, you get performance across the board. With big yields. But with 95% or better standability... 25% or less moisture... and intactness ratings under four. And you get all that in the maturity groups you need to spread your risks even more.

Limit your risks

Get risk-free performance on your farm today by calling Hoffman Seeds, Inc. You'll enjoy the peace of mind that comes from planting these new Funk's G brand hybrids.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

NOV. 11-17, 1991

Sadie Hawkins Day, Nov. 16.

Nov 11, 1918, World War I ends as the armistice is signed in the Forest of Compiègne, France Nov 12, 1920, Judge K M Landis is elected the first "Czar" of baseball He will rule absolutely over the 16 American and National League Baseball Clubs Nov 13, 1927, the first underwater tunnel in the United States, the Holland Tunnel, opens to traffic between Jersey City, N J , and New York City Nov 14, 1888, the first American golf club is organized, St Andrew s Golf Club in Yonkers, N Y

Marry in a growing moon for good luck

Ask the Old Farmer: How did our American "keep to the right" traffic ruling originate? Most of our laws came from England, but they still drive on the left R H , N C

Don t know about the English, but we ' kept to the right' because a man driving on ox team walked on the larboard (left) side of his cattle so he wouldn t get shoved into the bushes off the roadside

Home Hints Keep lettuce leaves crisp by sealing them along with a lemon in a plastic bag

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: A changeable week first heavy rain and warm, then sunny and mild Finally, more heavy rain and warm again, but ending with cold and showers

Greater New York-New Jersey: The week begins with rain, heavy in the south, and warm temperatures Clear and cool, followed by more rain, then clearing again

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Rain is ending as the week begins, clearing and turning milder Becoming rainy and warm again, but turning cold to end the week

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Rainy and warm then clearing and turning milder, followed by a few more days of rain The weekend is cloudy and cold with sprinkles

A Great Injustice

A terrible thing happened last week. An unlicensed caterer for a birthday party made lasagna in her home two days before the party. After the food containing eggs was partially cooked, the caterer set the food out to cool for dear knows how long before finally refrigerating it.

Then on the day of the party she warmed the lasagna before transporting it to the party. At the party, the food was kept warm on Sterno cans for four hours before the party guests ate the food.

Needless to say, 23 people got sick, complaining of food poisioning after the birthday party.

Any first grader knows bacteria will grow in food that is not properly cooked and refrigerated. So this is a clear case of mishandled food that contained eggs.

If people want to make themselves sick or hire others to do it for them, that's their right as an American citizen. But what they should not be allowed to do is to blame the farmer for their own misconduct. To go back to the farm to try to find bacteria in the hen house and in the birds is unthinkable in this case. But that is what has happened. A local farm family is blamed for producing the eggs with Salmonella enteritidis in them. And if the authorities find the bacteria, the flock will be depopulated, and costly clean up requirements will be initiated.

If you look for Salmonella, you can find it anywhere in the environment. Anywhere includes in the hen house. And the bacteria will likely be found in this farmer's flock.

But everyone who handles food should be responsible to know that the reason you cook and refrigerate food is to kill and slow the growth of bacteria. Ignorance is no excuse.

If the transporters and preparers of food after it leaves the farm would be legally held responsible for any sickness or death from the food they handled or prepared, we would eliminate a lot of the unfair investigations that come back to the farmer.

Certainly, the consumer has a right to know the food supply is safe. But in this case, a great injustice has been done to the local farm family that has had their livelihood ruined by this uncalled for investigation.

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Be Positive About Farming

We are in a new ball game. With fewer and fewer people knowing anything about agriculture, we need to be very careful on how we say things.

This is especially true for the emerging environmental issues and animal welfare concerns. Words like wastes, toxic, chemicals, crowding, and abuse are very emotional and rally people behind causes.

We also must be very careful not to shift blame between the various agricultural industries, i.e. poultry, swine, dairy, beef, mushrooms, etc. This will weaken agriculture's position.

There is still truth in the phrase "united we stand, divided we fall." Instead, leaders from the various agricultural commodity groups must work together to address these issues.

In public (at church, social groups, etc.), we need to be telling people about the good things agriculture is doing, the environmentally positive things farmers do every day, and the care and concern farmers have for animals.

Words such as organic instead of waste, care instead of abuse, and safety instead of carelessness must become a part of our actions and vocabulary.

Today, with tight government budgets, regulatory agencies will be responding more to neighbor complaints and taking necessary regulatory actions. This makes it very important to build good neighbor relations and practice good stewardship. By developing and practicing a good stewardship philosophy, we will be able to reduce a lot of problems. Remember, it is what we say and how we act that affects people's perceptions of agriculture.

To Tell The Good News About Farming

Farming has changed a lot in the last 10 years. However, the consumer still believes we are not making any changes and still are farming the way we did in the 1960s and 1970s.

With Farm-City Week coming up, we are reminded of the importance of educating the public about farming. Did you know:

- Chemical use on farms has been declining since 1982.
- Per cent of income spent on food: U.S. - 10.3, Japan - 18.0, USSR - 28.0, Mexico - 31.9 and China - 47.8.
- Number of people fed by one U.S. farmer: 1940 - 18.5, 1950 - 27.2, 1960 - 46.2, 1970 - 73.1, 1980 - 115.1, and 1990 - 128.
- Farmers provide food and habitat for 75 per cent of the nation's wildlife.
- U.S. per cent of income spent on food has been declining: 1990 - 10.3. 1980 - 16.6, 1975 - 17.0 and 1951 - 23.0.

These numbers have been made possible by our farm families utilizing the latest technologies and scientific research. We must remind people that the high standard of living we enjoy is a direct result of our farms.

To Examine The Pennsylvania Spring Oat And Barley Performance Study

Penn State College of Agriculture has been comparing plant varieties for many years and has released the 1990 comparison of spring oat and barley varieties.

Tests were conducted at the Penn State Research Farms in Lancaster and Centre counties. All results are for 7-inch row spacing and corrected for 12 per cent moisture.

Results are reported for single year and two and three year averages. For the spring oats, yields ranged from 93 bushels per acre to 139 bushels per acre.

For a complete copy of the report, contact your county cooperative extension office.

MADNESS OR SOBER TRUTH?

November 17, 1991

Background Scripture: Acts 27 through 28.

Devotional Reading: Romans 8:18-30.

Men of authority abound in the last chapters of Acts. There is the Sanhedrin that heard and split over Paul's defense. There is the Roman tribune, Claudius Lysias, who protected Paul from the mob and secreted his prisoner out of Jerusalem to safety in Caesarea. There is Felix, the Roman Governor who kept Paul in his custody for two years, and Festus, who succeeded Felix and also held Paul's fate in his hands. There is also King Agrippa, who, having heard Paul, said to Festus: "This man could have been set free if he had not appealed to Caesar" (26:32). All of these men at one time or another seemed to be in charge of Paul's fate.

During the journey itself, there was a centurion named Julius who was in charge of taking Paul to Rome for his appearance before Caesar. When unfavorable winds greatly delayed their ship, Paul cautioned them to postpone their departure from Crete. "But," as Acts tells us, "the centurion paid more attention to the captain and the owner of the ship than to what Paul said" (27:11), and they sailed on into the rough weather.

THE MAN IN CHARGE

As time goes on, however, it becomes evident that this prisoner is the man in charge. Acts tells us, "And when neither sun nor stars appeared for many a day, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope of our being saved was at last abandoned" (27:20). In this moment and from then on, it was Paul who rallied the crew and passengers: "I now bid you to take heart; for there will be no loss of life among you, but only of the ship. Even when they arrived in Italy and Paul was placed under house arrest, he seemed to be more a guest than a prisoner. He is a man quite undeterred by the restrictions of secular authority: "And he lived there two whole years at his own expense, and welcomed who came to him, preaching the kingdom of God and eaching about the Lord Jesus Christ quite openly and unhindered" (28:30,31).

OPEN-ENDED STORY

That's where the writer leaves the story. We don't know if Paul finally did appear before Caesar, was acquitted or condemned. One tradition says he was freed and spent several years in more missionary travels, including Spain, before returning to Rome and being martyred in the persecutions of Nero. Various theories have tried to explain this curious ending to Acts, the most probable of them being that the readers already knew Paul's fate and the writer had never intended to tell Paul's life story, but only the narrative of how the gospel spread from Jerusalem to Rome. Regardless, this story is an amazing testimony to the pre-eminence of God's will vis-a-vis the will of powerful human beings.

As I write these words, the world has just anxiously watched a coup against President Gorbachev in the Soviet Union and the subsequent collapse of the coup. Possibly, by the time you read this, there may have been several other crises of power. In the midst of them, the foremost question always seems to be.

NOTES ABOUT PLUSHANSKI FARMS AND THEIR FEEDING PROGRAM

1991 Herd Average 161 Cows 21,679 Milk 4.0% 864 Lbs. Fat 3.4% 728 Lbs. Protein

Charles Plushanski Sr. started with Holsteins in the early 60's. Charles recently died following a long fight with cancer, but his sons continue to manage Plushanski Farms Inc. as he did. They say his philosophy is if you want to get cows to milk more get a bigger feed shovel. Cows are given full feed of a mixed ration containing excellent quality haylage, corn silage, wet Brewers grain and a grist mix made from grain banked corn, soybeans and/or 38 Milkmaster and minerals.

Cows are individually milked in a side opening parlor and offered 16 Royal customized for their herd using Brown's Flex Formula Feeding program. Rations are rebalanced as needed when forages change.

Rations are balanced to maximize milk production while at the same time achieving high levels of Protein and Fat. You can seldom visit the farm when one of the brothers is not around the barn either feeding or caring for the cows.

The Faith cow family developed by Charles in the late 60's is the corner stone of the herd. All the above cows trace directly back to her. The Plushanski Brothers plan to continue breeding on this family and then developing the offspring into top cows by managing and feeding for optimum performance.

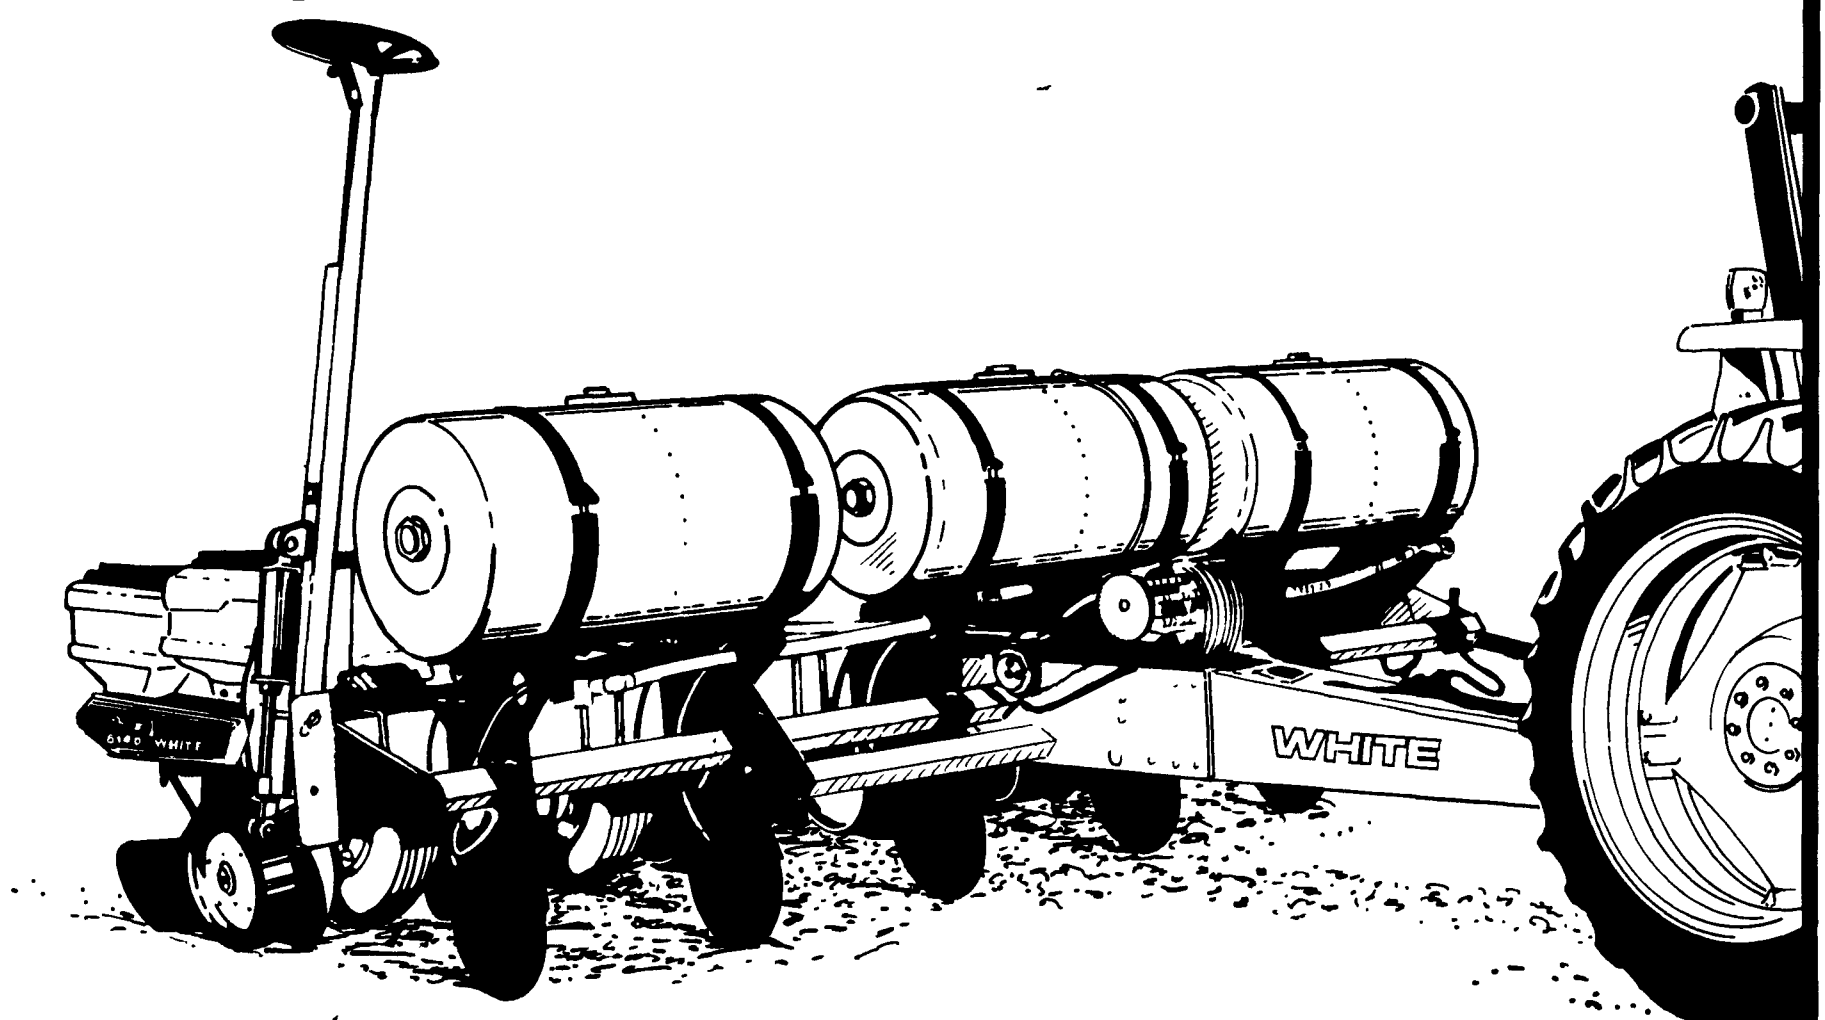
Accurate, Precise Single Seed Placement



Accurate seed spacing and precise depth increase yield potential.

- Time-proven positive air metering system and edge drop seed discs gently singulate seeds to eliminate wasteful doubles.
- The short 18" seed drop makes seed spacing accurate.
- Consistent seed depth is assured through our independently operating walking beam gauge wheels...adjust in 1/8" increments.
- Low air pressure gently handles fragile seed coat.
- Fewer moving parts reduce maintenance and downtime.
- No-till attachments give you flexibility to plant in all residual levels.
- Narrow row attachment makes converting to 15" rows a breeze.
- Interchangeable seed discs available for soybeans, corn, sweetcorn, popcorn, sorghum, milo, acid delinted cotton, sugar beets and others.
- Ask about competitive financing plans.

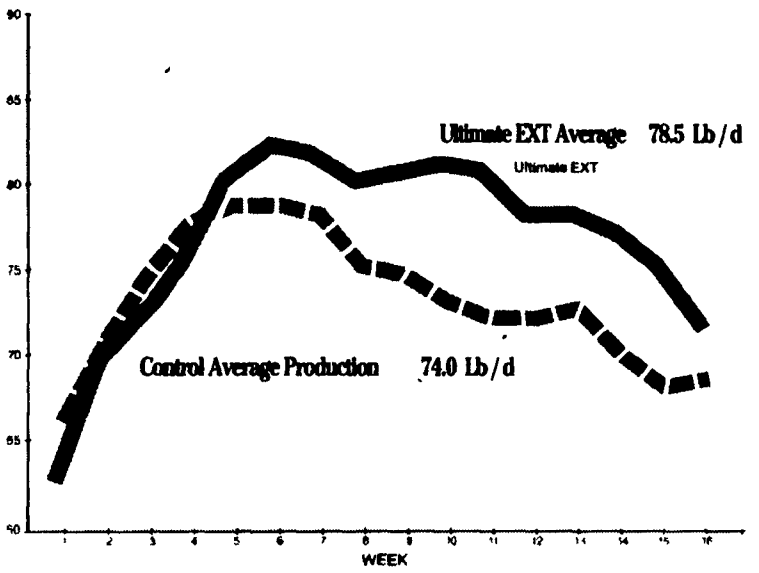
Introducing Ultimate EXT.™ The Nutritional Breakthrough That Helps Cows Reach New Heights.



Results of Research Trials

Now there's a high-energy dairy feed that can help your best cows produce even more milk: new Ultimate EXT™ from Purina®.

As the lactation research chart above shows, Ultimate EXT has enabled cows to reach higher peak production and hold it longer, resulting in an average increase of 4.5 pounds a day per cow, while maintaining milk composition levels. The field production response in over 6000 cows showed an average increase of 5.0 pounds a day per cow.

Ultimate EXT also helped those cows to maintain body weight after calving and improve their overall body condition, which can enhance breeding efficiency.

Take your income to new heights, too. Call us today about Ultimate EXT and turn your good cows into great ones.

package of information each week and always includes the Lancaster Farming. It not only keeps us up-to-date on events in Lancaster Co. and PA but is a valuable tool at seminars. When I'm presenting a seminar on 4-H, I show them pictures of 4-H events and 4-H Happenings, and if it is a program on Cooperatives, I show them the page on "Co-op Month" and pictures of people in Cooperatives. Most of the people do not understand English, but the pictures tell the story in all languages. We have not had a problem with languages since an excellent interpreter was provided for our 6 month stay.

We've had a very busy schedule since arriving here in June, and Betty has enjoyed it as much as I since she attends all events with me. In fact, I am also enclosing a news article she was asked to write for a local publication. It expresses my feelings as well as hers.

Most sincerely,

Jay W. Irwin,

Poland... From An American Wife's Point Of View

"I know I said I'm retiring, but how would you feel about spending six months in Poland?" With these words my husband of over 40 years greeted my hello on the telephone. It's noon and he's calling me between some of his meetings. He's all excited about being asked to go to Poland as a U.S. Department of Agriculture Extension team member from Penn State University. He went on... "I told them I wouldn't go if you could not go along, and they said you could, so what do you think?" As I hung up the telephone, I thought -- Retirement and travel had been in our plans but, Poland for 6 months? How can we be away from home that long? This conversation and the decision made later that same day found us here in Poland.

Since arriving in Poland in June, we have been asked many times -- What is your impression of our country? What do you like about it? I would like to try to answer that here.

Traveling to Boguchwala from Warsaw, I wondered if the Polish people saw the beauty of their farms. The large fields of the state farms reminded me of mid-western U.S. The farms of small fields - one here and one there - reminded me of our visit to Spain 10 years ago but not the U.S. The one or two cows grazing in a field or beside the roadway also was something new.

We've traveled to some of your beautiful mountains, hiked some of the trails, walked along some country roads and through the fields of a state farm. We've walked in some of your small towns and looked over the fences to see the beautiful flower and vegetable gardens that everyone seems to have and take pride in.

We have seen the beauty of your history in the cathedrals, castles and cities that we've read about but never expected to see. We have seen signs of man's inhumanity to man at Auschwitz. But more important, we have gained a little more understanding of how the Polish people have survived and kept their independent spirit over the centuries!

To me, the real beauty and strength of Poland is its people, and I find that harder to describe. I could say it's the language barrier, but honesty makes me say that feelings are always harder to describe when you are talking

When we go home from here, I will remember Poland's beauty; the greetings and welcome of all the people involved in this project; the people who acted as our interpreters, for without them we could not function nor learn about your country. As Jay says, "They are our ears and mouth." I will also recall the many extension advisors trying to give us an understanding of their problems and how they were trying to help their people; several young farmers who are hard at work trying to make changes that will benefit many farmers as well as themselves; an older Polish priest taking the time to tell two Americans about his church, his people and the history of his town; the churches filled to overflowing on Sunday morning; the children wanting to use their English on the Americans; the older youth talking about their dreams for Poland; the farm family that invited us into their home and we became friends without a common language.

I'll remember the dinners where we've sat and talked politics, shared ideas and gained a better understanding.

Of course I see the needs of Poland, and there are things I don't like, such as — driving on your roads in the early evening darkness.

When I think of Poland, I will see more than the beauty of your country or its history -- I will remember where Poland's strength lies.... IN ITS PEOPLE.

Very Sincerely,
Betty Irwin, Wife Of

Farm City Programs Underway

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MYERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — Members of the Lebanon County Farm-City Week Committee are attempting to make it the fourth straight year that its program is rated top in the state.

But they will have some competition.

For the past three years, the Lebanon County Farm-City Week program has been recognized as having the best program in the state for promoting education and understanding between rural and urban people.

The Lebanon program is not the only program around, however, as more counties are beginning to put together programs with the theme of Farm-City Week goals.

Farm-City Week, officially, always starts on the Friday before Thanksgiving through the end of Thanksgiving Day. This year, the official dates are from Nov. 22 — Nov. 28.

However, Farm-City activities occur whenever local program committees decide they should be held.

For example, Fayette County held its program back in June with an open farm and a variety of activities for the general public.

The state has its own program with kick-off on Nov. 22 in Pittsburgh. The state program offers either a tour and luncheon or just the luncheon.

The day starts at 6:45 a.m. at the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office in Pittsburgh with a coffee and walking tour of the Pittsburgh strip district businesses.

A tour of Turner's Dairy and Processing Plant is followed by a luncheon at the Vista Hotel. The speaker's theme is, "Today's Youth . . . Tomorrow's Leaders."

The afternoon agenda includes touring the northwest potion of Allegheny County, visiting farms. Farms included on the trip are that."

The calf, Spring-Shade Musical Miss, made an appearance at the banquet in a fancy picket-fence pen on rollors and added a few appropriate calf noises as the Millers sang about the merits of milk. Out of a VG Hanover Hill dam with 21,656m, the prize calf has five excellent dams in her pedigree.

Jill, a junior at Solanco High School, said she was pleased to have another heifer that was so outstanding to add to the other nine dairy animals she has at home.

In the production awards, Ken Zurin had the high milk records in the Jr 2; Sr. 2; and 3 year-old classes. John Howard had the high milk and combined component record in the senior cow class and the high component record in the Jr 2 class.

Dale and Steve Hershey had the top milk and component records in the 4 year class; Curt Akers had the high component record in the Sr 2 class and Marvin Stoltzfus had the high component record in the 3 year class.

Lancaster County Dairy Princess Robyn Groff said her promotional efforts have been successful. She has talked to elementary students and helped with store promotions where the dairy product sales receipts have increased. Robyn said her goal is to visit every school district in the county.

Julie and Randy Wenger, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wenger, were named the junior production winners. Jesslyn Oberholtzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Oberholtzer, and Dan Geissinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Geissinger, received Holstein jackets for their work in the junior projects.

Glenn Shirk, dairy county agent, wished all dairymen a good new year and thanked agribusiness for support. He said it's the team working together that makes the dairy industry successful. "The industry needs unity and it needs to focus on the things that everyone in the industry has in common," Shirk said.

Those directors elected by ballot in the business meeting were Steve Hershey, Steve Shertzer, Harold Shellenberger, and Leroy Welk. Later the board renamed the officers for another year as follows: Steve Hershey, President; Lowell Brubaker, vice president; Phil Crouse, secretary, and Nelson Wenger, treasurer. A total of 197 tickets were sold for the event.

Lancaster Chamber Sets Ag-Industry Banquet

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The agriculture committee of The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry will host the 15th annual Agriculture-Industry Banquet on Tuesday, November 26, 6:30 PM at the Willow Valley Resort and Conference Center.

Featured speaker for the evening is Burt R. Pena, a Washington, D.C. attorney with six years' experience on Capitol Hill, including two as staff director of the House of Representatives agriculture committee. More recently, Pena had been an agricultural represnetative to the General Agreement on Trade and Tariff (GATT) negotiations.

Each year, this event salutes Lancaster County agriculture through presentation of Century Farm Awards in recognition of those farms that have remained in a family for at least one hundred years. In addition, the third annual George C. Delp Award will be presented to a Lancaster Countian who has made significant contributions to agriculture and agribusiness within the Garden Spot. In 1989, the award was presented to its namesake, George C. Delp, an ag-industry leader with New Holland Machine Company for 33 years. Last year, retired county ag agent Max Smith was honored for 44 years of service to Lancaster agriculture.

Banquet tickets are $25 each/$45 couples or a table of ten for $225. Reservations will be accepted until November 18 by calling Liz Lennon or Jay Howes at the Chamber, 397-4035. Or make check payable to The Lancaster Chamber and mail to Ag-Industry Banquet. The Lancaster Chamber, P.O. Box 1558, Lancaster, PA 17603-1558.

DESIGN...OURS AND THEIRS
Our chain feeder trough allows easy access to feed but keeps feed levels further below the lip of the trough compared to drag auger trough. Our chain feeder trough has a steep sidewall, discouraging feed build-up. Their slope can allow a build-up, inviting mold and disease. Our trough is "ribbed" for strength... theirs is built for price alone.

FEEDING SPACE
Actual feeding space with the grind auger is skimpy. In fact our chain feeder has 2½ times more feeding space per bird. This allows the chain feeder to run as few as three times per day while the auger must run eight or more times per day. Chain carries feed and supplies a uniform ration, with no feed waste. With the drag auger, birds turn sideways to eat requiring more length of feeder.

EGG SIZE - EGG QUALITY
Birds that eat properly lay larger eggs. Price on large -vs-medium makes a world of difference. Our chain feeder allows an early feeding, then ample time for the hen to lay before the next feeding. With the drag auger feeder, hens fight for feeding space many times a day causing unwanted activity in the cage. This results in more cracks and checks. Grind auger feeders encourage smaller eggs and more cracks and checks. Under fed birds mean less large eggs. It also means less profits. Put a pencil to it.

FEED CONTROL
Our chain feeding system does not dictate a feeding program. You are in control, feeding as little or as much as you want when you want. Drag auger feeders' frequent feeding interrupt birds during peak laying periods.

REPAIR AND MAINTENANCE
The hardest part of repairing a chain feeder is remembering where you left the hammer and chain breaker tool some months back. With an auger system, the need for a welder, torch and grinder is almost routine. Down time is up, and repair hours and expense rise.

THE TEST OF TIME
Our chain feeder seems never to wear out. Some thirty year old units are still performing, day in and day out. On the other hand, some "short term" grind auger systems are beginning to show their weaknesses. Time is the enemy of the grind auger system. Just a little time.

Most local egg producers have already seen The Real Picture and are rethinking chain -vs- drag auger feeding. If you are feeding with a drag auger system, we invite you to take a better look at The Real Picture. Our goal is to help you make a profit, and chain feeding plays the leading role.

Milk Price Stability Sought

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

WEST FALLOWFIELD (Chester Co.) — At least in Pennsylvania, under the current set of circumstances, the prognosis for on-the-farm milk prices is not good, according to a variety of sources.

Although milk prices are continuing to make incremental recoveries, the trend in dairying in Pennsylvania has been a continued decrease in the number of farms, and an increase in the number of cows per farm and the milk production per cow.

In simple terms, it means that small dairies are failing and the slack in production that results is being picked up by larger and more stable facilities.

Although there has been some finger pointing to the retail sector of price gouging, and some of it has been substantiated by state officials and university economists, there is no blanket support for the claim that dairymen are getting "cheated" out of money for their milk, even though they may be selling it at the lowest price ever.

The problem seems to be one of dairymen doing too good of a job in providing for the needs of the market. And there also seems to be a lack of cooperation among independent producers, despite such cooperative bargaining agencies as Regional Cooperative Bargaining Agency, an offshoot of Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency.

For a growing number of dairymen, the dairy production industry trend portends more of a departure from the small traditional, immediate-family farm.

With every ebb in the milk production-price cycle, more and more smaller farms are being left high and dry, while larger, better bankrolled, and more efficient operations continue to survive, at least until the next drop in production creates an increase in on-farm milk prices.

Specialist Notes Culling Rates

LARRY SPECHT
PSU Dairy Specialist

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — 1990-91 DHIA test year data shows that three quarters of all cows removed from herds last year left for reasons other than their productive ability.

This seriously limits a dairyman's option to cull for genetic merit and points out the small opportunity that exists to upgrade a herd's genetics from the female side.

There was an average of 330,000 cows on test for the 1990-91 year. The total number removed during the year was 101,758. This is a removal rate of 30.8 percent, which is consistent with rates in other Northeast states.

Twenty-four and a half percent of the cows were voluntarily removed from the herd with 16.3 percent of those being culled for low production and 8.2 percent were removed for poor dairy qualities.

Of the rest of the cows removed from herds (75.5 percent), 23.6 percent were culled for reproductive problems, 10.8 percent for mastitis, 7.6 percent for type problems, 6.2 percent for injury, 2.1 percent fro old age and 25.2 percent for reasons not specified.

Milk, fat and protein dollar values were calculated for the major removal catagories. Results are -$14 for low production; +$20 for dairy; +$4 for reproductive problems; +$7 for mastitis; +$13 for type problems; +$13 for injury; -$42 for old age; and +$11 for nonspecified reasons.

Hurry Up And Wait!

DICK BARTH
General Manager
Pennsylvania DHIA

In my last article on reorganization we looked at inequitable service rates, which is a major problem with DHIA's federated structure in Pennsylvania.

This time let's look at another problem that's not quite as obvious that reorganization of DHIA can help solve.

Anyone who has served in the armed forces knows what it means to hurry up and wait. You hustle around to be somewhere on time only to get there and find a long line, so you wait.

This characteristic has been so much a part of the market climate in the U.S.S.R. that Soviets had been hiring people just to wait in line for them to buy groceries or clothes.

But, we don't have any such problems in DHIA. Such problems exist only in communist countries, or in dictatorial organizations like the military service. Right?

Wrong. Time and again we find that dairymen have asked for DHIA services from their county associations only to be placed on a waiting list until one of the county's present supervisors has room on his testing circuit.

If the farmer is lucky, he will be the last one needed to complete a circuit and a new supervisor will be hired. Or, someone will quit soon after the farmer asks for service and there will be room to put him on test.

Supervisors continually confirm this situation exists in many places. When a member quits testing that supervisor quickly finds a replacement who he has had in his "back pocket" for some time.

How many are there in this "back pocket" statewide? Hard to say, but two per supervisor is a conservative average, and two times 246 is close to 500 farmers waiting to have some kind of record keeping system from DHIA.

How long do they wait? We have no idea, but the length of time probably varies greatly from months to years.

So What?

So what, you ask. Why is that a concern? I waited to get testing services when I joined DHIA, why shouldn't everyone else?

We all know that DHIA is the only authorized provider of official dairy cow records. But, because we are the only game in town we have an obligation to provide services to dairy farmers when they need it, not when it is convenient for us to provide it.

That's a responsibility the association accepts as part of its membership in National DHIA. And that's a responsibility any good service organization lives up to.

However, it is understandable that local associations might resort to making new members wait. Adding a new testing circuit, especially a part-time one, is a hassle

Finding a new supervisor is difficult and time consuming — placing ads in the paper, interviewing candidates, discussing who to hire with the region manager and other board members. These are chores that volunteer board members who are busy with their own farms often don't have time for.

So, you can't blame the local boards for not wanting to rock the boat.

Then too, there is the problem of how a new full-time employee with a part-time circuit will affect the cost of running the local association. How can a small association with one employee afford to carry a new second employee until he builds up a full-time circuit?

Reorganization's Impact

A statewide direct member association will help us be prepared to add new members all the time. By eliminating county line barriers for service purposes we will be able to assign full-time employees to several counties that together have full-time work, but separately have only part-time circuits. This will permit us to take additional members in who now must wait.

Although this may not be a problem in your own county, we must not overlook those counties where this is and will be a growing problem in the future as cow numbers and members dwindle.

and national levels, including chairman of the national association executive committee in 1968-70, delegate to the second Holstein World Conference, president of the state association in 1959 to 1961 and chairman of the state convention in 1962.

Most recently he was a delegate to the national Holstein convention in 1990. He was a charter member of the board of directors of the Holstein-Friesian Services.

For his leadership contributing to the improvement and promotion of the Pennsylvania dairy industry, Conyngham won the prestigious Charles B. Cowan Memorial Award in 1986.

In community service, he has been a bank director, college trustee, hospital director and church warden. He has five children and 10 grandchildren.

The dairymen's Club also elected three directors to serve three-year terms: Lolly Lesher, Bernville, Craig Williams, Wellsboro, and Jennie Hess, York. Other board members are Ken Raney, Pennsylvania Furnace, president, Michael O'Connor, University Park, secretary-treasurer, and directors Dave Kaugle, Centerville, BEth Moore, Chambersburg, June Corl, State College, Ross Hershberger, Martinsburg, and Larry Swartz, Lancaster.

The Poage Grant-In-Aid, which the Dairymen's Club administrates, this year went to Matt Wanner. A sophomore in dairy and animal science, Matt hails from a Lancaster County dairy farm in Narvon. He achieved all-American dairy judge status at the national 4-H contest, placing 16th out of 147, and won first place in the 1990 Pennsylvania 4-H Judging Contest. He was also a member of the first place Dairy Bowl teams at the National Holstein and the National 4-H contest.

Penn State Judging Team Coach Dale Olver reported that the team placed 8th overall in the cational collegiate judging contest this year and was second high team in two breeds. He thanked the club for its financial support of youth judging schools as well as team trips.

Department head Stanley Curtis reported that "all is well" with the department. Fifty top high school students came to Penn State last spring to a Dairy Youth Management Workship at which many students decided to come to Penn State. The department now has a reception aread near the main office for visitors and the move into the new building was completed early this year.

The Dairy Science Club's annual cheese sale is in full swing, so club president Mark Swartz encouraged everyone to order their Christmas gift boxes.

LION CLASSIC

The 8th Nittany Lion Fall Classic Sale was held the next day. At the sale, 44 head of registered Holsteins sold for an average of $1705. Top seller was a Vg-87 four-year-old Enhancer daughter with records to 3-4 314d 26,384m 3.5% 932f 3.2% 840f. Jim Harteis of Ebensburg made the consignment, and Timothy Peachey of Petersburg bought her for $3500. She had freshened just four days before the sale.

The Penn State Dairy Science Club and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association co-manage this annual sale, which is a major fund raising event to support the club's activities. Tom Wicker was the overall sale chairman for the club, assisted by David Lentz.

Other club sale committee members were: Tom McCauley, cattle manager; Terri Packard, advertising; Duane Stoltzfus and Jeffrey Pirrung, selections; Vinton Smith, finance; Lori Benner, reception; Matt Wanner, arena preparation; and Beth Cooley, publicity.

Harry Bachman and Michael Weimer were the auctioneers with Howard Hammond reading pedigrees.

Timothy Peachey also bought the second highest seller, Howcrest Big Al Dash, a VG-86 five-year-old with a 32,030M 1139F 1033P record. Fresh in late October, she was consigned by John and Susan Howard of Willow Street and sold for $3100

A red and white Crescendo calf born August 27th out of a Mandingo dam was the third highest seller at $2900. The dam is VG 86 with a 3.6 record of 25,260M 3.7% 932F 3.3% 832P. The calf's leader brother went to Sire Power. Glen Peachey, Milroy, made the consignment, and Kenneth Smith, Thompsontown, was the buyer.

Other top consignments were:

* Choice of embryos due March, 1992 (Leadman X Spirit), $2600; Andrew Soltzfus, Morgantown, consignor; James Younker and Gary Hicksler, Fleetwood, buyers.

* Misty-Crest Rotate Melissa, $2400; Lester Poust, Muncy, consignor; Dennis and David Hottenstein, New Albany, buyers.

Eichner's poultry farm, Kaelin's farm and Soergel Orchards. The activities are over at 4 p.m.

The state also runs the annual awards program which recognizes Farm-City activities on three different levels of participation; local, business and organization, and individual.

According to Kevin Thomas, secretary-treasurer of the Pennsylvania Farm-City Council, "County and state-level clubs, committees, organizations, or business, either rural or urban oriented, are eligible, along with individuals whose personal or business activities relate to farm-city concerns.

Judging is based on a percentage breakdown of 25 percent for innovation; 15 percent for community impact; 15 percent for use of local resources; and 25 percent for citizen participation; and 20 percent for rural-urban cooperation.

Nomations are due Dec. 15, and should be submitted to Kevin Thomas, at Pennsylvania Farm/City Council, 2024 Park Drive, Commerce Park, Harrisburg, PA, 17110. He can be telephoned at (717) 540-9300.

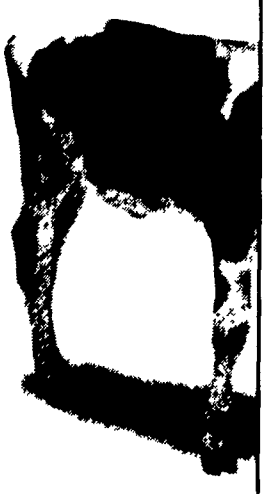
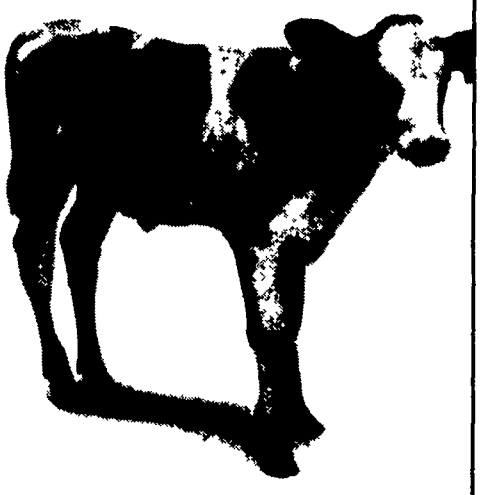
THEY'RE ALL GOING TO GIVE MILK SOMEDAY.



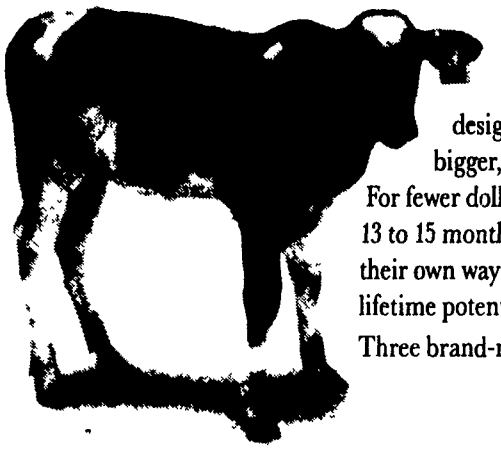
WHEN AND HOW MUCH IS UP TO YOU.



INTRODUCING PAYBACK 24™
A complete feed program for profitable herd replacement from Agway.

Until a heifer freshens and enters the milking string, she's pure expense. And every day beyond the optimum 24 months costs you an extra $2 to $3 per day, per head in additional feed costs and lost milk production. At 28 months, for example, that's $10,000 to $15,000 worth of lost income in a 120-cow herd. A lot of money, even in good times.

Yet on many Northeast dairy farms, first-calf heifers don't freshen until 28, 30 or even 32 months!



The Problem?
Inadequate nutrition and poor management practices that result in undernourished, undersized heifers, unable to achieve optimum growth and full potential.

The Solution? PAYBACK 24.
PAYBACK 24 is a comprehensive program consisting of eight high-quality Agway feeds, intensive nutrition and cost-effective management practices—all designed to help you raise bigger, healthier heifers faster. For fewer dollars. Ready to breed at 13 to 15 months. Ready to start paying their own way at 24 months with greater lifetime potential and profitability.

Three brand-new feeds were specially developed by Agway for use in this program: a Calf Pre-Starter that delivers exceptional performance, unlike any other in the Northeast and a calf starter containing highly palatable Ruma Sweet™, preferred by calves more than 4 to 1 in a Land O' Lakes trial of 15 competitive calf starter feeds. A selection of heifer feeds containing Bovatec® in several protein levels rounds out the Payback 24 feed program.

Start Getting Your Payback Sooner.
Talk to your Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson. Get the whole story on Payback 24. And be sure to ask about your free 50 lb. bag of new Agway Calf Pre-Starter. It's the first step toward a more profitable future. Offer expires November 30, 1991.

resources for future generations," Boyd said. "Let it be our legacy to help this living national treasure flourish into the 21st century as a contribution to the on-going quality of life rather than a monument to past historical achievement."

Among those who were recognized for support of the program were Robert and Carolyn Wenger and Joseph and Claudine Hess.

The Wengers, who own farms in Manheim and Warwick Townships, were honored for extending an original 25-year easement with the county ag preserve board to a perpetual easement with the trust.

The Hesses also put their 137-acre Strasburg farm into a perpetual easement with the trust.

Alan Musselman, executive director for the trust, said Lancaster has the opportunity to be an island of success in terms of saving the land. He said Lancaster has things underway and other parts of the country are recognizing that the county is securing a more permanent agriculture.

Musselman announced that the non-profit trust has now preserved 27 county farms totaling 2,500 acres. He said that the trust has also assisted in preserving five farms in conjunction with the Lancaster Ag Preserve Board. He said the trust has been able to find creative ways to help farm families preserve the land while satisfying family needs in transferring land and saving taxes.

Lancaster now has 131 farms preserved and 260,000 acres in restrictive agricultural zoning.

In addition to President Boyd, other officers elected were Brent Shunk, vice president; Phyllis Whitesell, secretary and Paul Wipple, treasurer.

New board members elected were Zoa Kile and Ronald Kreider, three-year terms, and Dorothy Lyet and Dennis Jeff, one-year terms. Renominated to the board were Jeffrey Frey, Marilyn Lewis and Paul Whipple, three year terms and George Delp, one year term.

The Lancaster Farmland Trust has 1600 members; 375 of them attended the banquet.

At the Lancaster Farmland Trust Banquet, Claudine and Joseph Hess, seated, and Robert and Carolyn Wenger received awards for preserving their land in perpetual easements.

Honors Quality Milk

CINCINNATUS, N.Y. — Thomas Holl of DeRuyter, N.Y., was recently recognized by United Dairy Services for his outstanding quality milk production for this past year.

Holl, a member of Otselic Valley Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc., was presented the award by James Patsos of United Dairy Services at Otselic Valley Co-op's Annual Meeting in Cincinnatus, N.Y.

Otselic Valley Co-op dairy farmer members are located in Cortland and Chenango counties.

This is the third consecutive year that Tom Holl has been the recipient of this award. He received a gift and a check for fifty dollars in recognition of his achievement.

Otselic Valley Co-op is a member of United Dairy Services located in Seneca Falls, N.Y. United Dairy Services provides marketing, accounting and legislative services for small cooperatives and agricultural organizations.

United provides the award each year to individuals in each cooperative member association in recognation of the outstanding efforts made by its members to provide quality milk going into wholesome dairy products for consumers.

Hoober Celebrates 50th Anniversary

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — On Friday, November 8th, C B Hoober & Son Inc. in Intercourse, Pennsylvania celebrated its 50th Anniversary of selling IH and CASE IH farm equipment with an Open House at the Intercourse store and a dinner at the Revere Tavern in Paradise, PA. Employees and their spouses, Hoober family members and retired employees were treated to a look back over the first 50 years of the business and a look ahead toward the next ten years.

The company was founded in September 1941 by Charles B, Bud, Hoober Sr., because IH wanted a dealer in Intercourse when the Amish started to buy tractors to do their field work. Bud took their challenge. Instead of waiting for the Amish, however, Bud and his only son, Charles, Jr., who became part of the business in 1965, concentrated on diesel tractors and tillage equipment. When diesel engines became the engine of choice for farm tractors and equipment in the seventies, C B Hoober & Son was ready to capitalize on this new technology. Steiger tractors were introduced in 1975 and the rest is the modern history of C B Hoober & Son Inc.

Helping the Hoober organization celebrate the 50 year milestone from CASE IH were Bob Green, Vice President of North American Sales; Jim Irwin, Eastern Regional Manager; Dennis Hann, Dealer Business Development Manager; Harold Bower, Area Sales Manager; and Milt Whiteside, Area Service Manager. Bob Green commended the Hoober organization for their tireless commitment to satisfying their customers through a commitment to excellence in service.

C B, Bud, Hoober died in September 1984. The company is managed today by his son, Charles Hoober Jr., Clarence Lefever, Dick Bomberger, Chuck Hoober - C B's grandson; and Tom Yohe. There are 62 employees at the Intercourse store. Hoobers have a second store in Middletown, Delaware where they employ an additional 48 people.

Association Helps Farmers Stay Alive

the local PFA chapter. The Association, now in its 45th year, is comprised of 699 members, and has seen some dramatic membership drives in the past several years.

Last spring, the association surpassed their goal of 676 members. As of last week, more than 70 percent of the members were paid in full for the year (for an annual fee of $75). But membership used to total almost 1,000 — and the reasons for the decrease can be attributed to the high cost of farming in the area and the lack of young people to take over the family farm.

Real problems

"I'm scared," said Breckbill. "I see some real problems coming in Chester County, with the land increase in price and the young farmers not interested in farming."

According to Breckbill, organizations that often are antifarming are making it increasingly tough on farms. And many farmers are selling out the land to developers and giving up.

"If organizations continue to put a handle on us as farmers, there's not goint to be an awful lot of incentive to continue to farm," he said. "I think we're getting so many rules and regulations."

Breckbill and the association recently learned about proposed mushroom manure hauling and application fees requested by the DER. If the fees are approved, farmers in Chester Co. who try to haul mushroom manure may have to pay for a $2,000 permit, and farmers may be assessed a similar fee to have it spread on their farm.

Hit financially

Representatives of PFA and the local association are working in Harrisburg to keep farmers from getting hit hard financially for the permit.

Another deep concern is the influx of home buyers into the area. Housing developments are sprouting up all over Chester County, according to the farmers — and telling farmers how to run their businesses.

"Homes coming in create a lot of your pressure," said Breckbill. "I have a real concern that they're saying agriculture has been the culprit that caused all the problems for the Chesapeake Bay. But at a certain point I think the farming practices work very well.

"Since we're doing strip farming and contour farming, and controlling our runoff, I don't really think that agriculture is the big problem right now. I think your developments and your industry — I think a lot comes from that," he said.

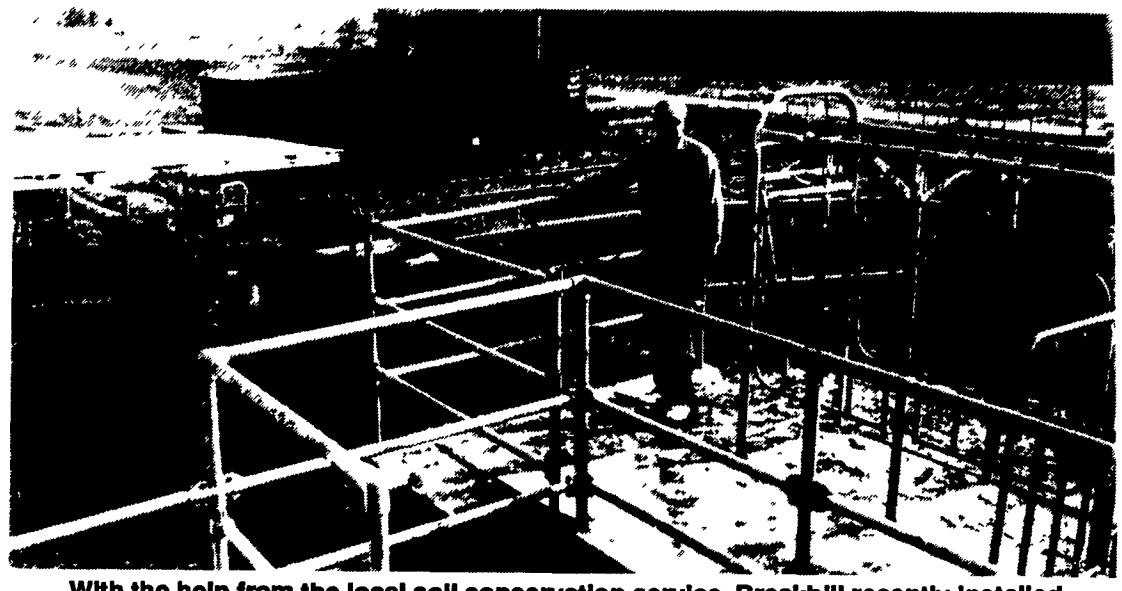
Under fire

Recently, Breckbill and a colleague attended a town meeting in which water pollution was discussed. According to Breckbill, the issue of how much a farmer contributes to water pollution — by allowing cows to wade in stream banks and cause erosion — came under fire.

"And the next thing they were talking about, these 25 new homes were going to be built in a certain area right close to where this farm was located," he said. "We were supposed to say something about this." Breckbill said his colleague said to him, "Dick, I can't handle this anymore. I got to say something."

"So he did," said Breckbill. "And what he said was, 'We have dairy cattle that you say are polluting our streams, and so on. But you're putting 25 homes up there on top of the hill, and every one of those homes there's people going to live, and you put a cesspool underground, and human beings do the same things that cattle do.'

"And it just got very quiet in the audience after that," said Breckbill. "They didn't know how to handle that."



With the help from the local soil conservation service, Breckbill recently installed this Slurrystore liquid manure storage tank on his farm.

Breckbill recently installed a heifer calf barn on Breck-A-Dee Farms.

Doing less

Farmers who practice nutrient management are doing much less in the way of possible pollution than developers who install a large septic system near a large underground stream.

PFA wants farmers and developers to work together. Breckbill said that development should occur in areas where the prime farmland can be perserved.

"But if farmers don't get a decent price, what's the use of preserving the farmland?" he said. "We have to get a better price for our product, then we'll preserve farmland."

Breckbill said that farming costs have risen so much that, right now, milk should be priced at $15-$16 a hundredweight. Corn should be priced at $3 a bushel and soybeans should cost approximately $7 or $8 a bushel, considering the cost of livestock management.

Taxes forced price up

For farmers who rent fields for cropping, taxes have forced the price up, causing many of those who cash crop to give up renting.

"(Many are) too old to farm, and they want to hang onto their farm," he said. Recently, Breckbill met with a farm owner who rents out land to Breck-A-Dee. The farmer expressed his frustration because of rising school taxes, and the farmer was concerned that Breckbill was not making enough money off the ground to pay for the rent increase.

"This man said his school taxes are equal to $60 an acre," said Breckbill. "And we pay rent. And after he gets our rent money, why, there isn't anything left. So what's the use of holding onto the ground?"

Recent studies indicate the average farmer is near retirement, if not past. "The average farmer is 61 years old," he said. "And there's no incentive for the young farmer to start farming because of the low prices. They can go and get $12 to $15 an hour working away and have no headaches, work only eight hours a day, and go home, and the weekends are free. And on the farm you're working seven days a week and directly on duty."

Cost of equipment

Young farmers may one day have to begin "contract farming" to making a living, according to Breckbill. The cost of equipment and supplies are simply too high.

But another burden is the unfair real estate transfer tax that hurts many farmers who are trying to purchase the farm from their parents. To help the young farmers, PFA has been working aggressively with federal legislators to ease the tax burden. According to Breckbill, a solution is near and will be one of the policy issues to be discussed at the PFA annual meeting at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center on Monday through Wednesday.

Breckbill was also pleased with the recently completed Chester Co. Farm-City Week. "This is something that we need to do more of," he said. "I think we have to open our farms up and let the public know where food's coming from."

A few months ago, aides from Washington D.C. legislative offices visited the farm and asked "some really funny questions," he said. "But I would ask real funny questions if I were asking some things in Washington, D.C. I told them the funny questions were the good questions."

Be diversified

The aides toured the farm and asked about the price of farm equipment. "I told them that these pieces of equipment cost over $100,000, and it just blew their minds. They said, 'How do you pay for it?' And I said, 'Well, we have to do custom work to pay for it. We have to be very diversified.' And they were very interested." According to Breckbill, there still are many positive aspects to farming that the public must realize.

Richard Breckbill farms in a partnership with his wife, Porcia, and sons Dennis, 33 and Ed, 31. Son Rick, 25, also works on the farm together with a full-time employee, Art Mellinger, and a part-time employee, Rudy Allen.

Breck-A-Dee Farms includes 290 acres (125 tillable for corn and 100 for alfalfa). They also farm another 1,100 acres for cash crops, including 700 acres of corn, 500 acres of soybeans, and they double-crop 150 acres of baryley and soybeans.

The farm milks 85 head of dairy cattle and manages nearly the same number of replacement stock. Milking averages are 21,000 pounds milk, 699p, 772f. They use a total mixed rations system installed by Agriking.

Customer applicator

Breckbill also operates a custome spray application and fertilizer business under Breck-A-De Agri-Service.

Breckbill has been a member of the Chester-Delaware Farmers Association for 24 years and on the board about 12 years. He has been president the past six years.

Breckbill joined the organization to help farmers get better prices and to lobby for farm concerns.

At that time, the issue was the unfair tax on new silo construction. "PFA was one of the organizations that lobbied for us, and now we don't have to pay sales tax when we put up a silo.

"They're trying to put a sales tax on feed at this time, and PFA is constantly lobbying that there shouldn't be a sales tax on feed," he said. "They do a lot of work on trying to improve the price of milk."

Breckbill said the more members in the organization, the more lobbying power they have to help the farmers. To join, contact Breckbill at 301 Penns Grove Road, Oxford, PA 19350, (215) 932-3307.

Dairy farmer Richard Breckbill stands next to his total mixed rations mixing unit on his farm.

Se is a bacteria that produces symptoms of vomiting, abdominal cramps, fever, and headaches within 12 to 74 hours after affected food is eaten.

Kradel predicts that issues on food safety, environment, and animal welfare will dwarf any concerns agriculturalists face in the next 10 years.

"What consumers perceive to be the truth is fed by the media and the response becomes a political issue," he said.

"Se is one of the most obvious issues now," said Kradel. Although the Food and Drug Adminstration pushes for zero Se, Kradel believes that Se is a normal environmental organism that "is absolutely a technical impossibility to completely eradicate. I think it is unrealistic economically and technically impossible. There are so many other sources for Se to get into animals."

He referred to Canada, which has a strong intensive Se program, as an example of where instances of human Se have not come down but gone up.

FDA would like to require all feed ingredients to be tested on a regular basis. That would require 30 samples per lot of feed or supplement. According to Kradel, when FDA was asked if testing would be cost effective, they responded that a cost analysis is inappropriate because Se is filth and filth can not be tolerated in feed.

If the FDA instituted the program, the cost of eggs will increase 75 percent, a conservative estimate, Kradel said.

"USDA is clearly concerned about the poultry industry's plight. They are groping for answers that will allow the industry to survive and satisfy FDA and the public. USDA is our friend even though as a regulatory agency they most do things sometimes that producers object," Kradel said.

Producers are encouraged to do everything possible to lower the incidences of Se. They are encouraged to eradicate rodents, clean poultry houses, and implement a good public relationship program. "We need to educate consumers, beginning at grade one," he said. Studies have shown that as long as eggs are handled properly the risk of getting food poisoning from eggs even if Se is present is nil.

(The bacteria is killed if eggs are heated to 160 degrees or at 140-degrees for 3½ minutes).

So far this year, there have been 40 outbreaks with eight cases that listed eggs as the most probable source of contamination. That is improvement over 66 outbreaks reported last year.

Although this figure seems optimistic, Kradel said individually reported cases are 8,500 a year and going up. Recently a study by the Minnesota Department of Health reported that the majority of these individual cases are also associated with egg mishandling.

"FDA is saying individual isolation has not improved and until we get that level down, we haven't really succeeded in solving the problem," Kradel said.

It is a concern that a spent fowl survey done by USDA found 44 percent Se positive contrasted with 23 percent in the western part of the country (California excluded). Scientists are trying to figure out why Se seems more prevalent in the Northeast.

Infected breeder flocks is a possible way that eggs are infected with Se although it is not considered a significant source. Kradel suggests that whenever a new flock is purchased, every chick that dies during the first two weeks be tested to make sure that it is not an infected breeder flock.

FDA has proposed zero tolerance for feed and feed supplements. "When they say zero, they mean zero," Kradel emphasized. Tests show that feed is not considered a primary source for Se.

Rodents are considered the most potent source for Se. Rodents usually test positive for Se and a study reported that the average fecal output of an infected mouse is 25 million colonies per day.

"An aggressive rodent program is essential to reduce SE," Kradel emphasized.

Once a house has tested positive for Se it is extremely difficult to eradicate. "Dust in a building remained Se positive after it was vacant for 16 months even though the manure tested negative," Kradel said.

Cleaning and disinfecting poultry operations are essential, but the best method to do so is unclear. Studies have shown that when a house is washed, Se can actually multiply. In one house 18 samples were taken before cleaning and another 18 samples after cleaning.

(Turn to Page A31)

During the poultry seminar held this week, Dr. David Kradel, right, veterinary scientist at Penn State, consults with John Swartz, executive director of Lancaster County Extension.

More positive Se colonies appeared after the cleaning than before. This is referred to as bacterial bloom (give moisture to bacteria and it grows).

Kradel said that he is hesitant to talk about the studies "because we don't have any option but to clean and disinfect." He said that it might be better to have a good dry cleaning with heavy formaldehyde fumigating but there are problems with formaldehyde use. Also, caked manure on cages can not be removed by dry cleaning.

If he had Se in his flock, Kradel said that he would clean with hot water, fumigate, and clean again. He recommends vaccinating although it costs money and time to administer.

If FDA feels the current programs are not making enough progress, they intend to institute their program that would require all flocks in the country to be tested multiple times.

"If the FDA gets in there, we have some real problems," Kradel said.

A LOADER FOR ALMOST ANY LIFTING AND LOADING JOB.

The 2440 QT Front End Loader from Bush Hog® does an outstanding job with general contracting and landscape chores—but it works just as well when cleaning feed lots, lifting grain or for snow removal.

Designed for 30 to 60 HP tractors, the 2440 QT allows a choice of 48, 60, 72 or 80-inch buckets as well as fork lifts and bale spears. An optional quick attach system makes it easy to switch from one attachment to another.

Come in to see the 2440 QT—it makes a perfect match for your tractor...and a perfect match for your job.

Pantano: Proud To Head Lancaster Poultry Association

LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Thomas Pantano considers himself lucky.

Lucky because his childhood hobby became his career.

As a child growing up in Pittsburgh, Pantano raised chickens, ducks, and turkeys in his backyard.

Today Pantano heads Lancaster County's number one agricultural industry — poultry.

As president of the county Poultry Association and as broiler flock supervisor for Pennfield, Pantano is as excited over chickens as he was the Easter his grandparents gave him two colored chicks.

It was those pink and green chicks that spurred an unquenchable fascination with poultry within Pantano.

Although Pantano's home was within city limits and raising poultry in his backyard was not kosher, Pantano managed to raise an impressive array of poultry without any neighbor complaints.

Pantano has a whole stack of pictures that show turkeys strutting around the yard, the proud stance of Rhode Island Reds, and the incubators that he built to hatch the peeps.

"I penned them up at nights and left them roam in the yard during the day," he said.

When he was a teen-ager, Pantano purchased a small incubator to hatch quail and pheasant. After that, he built a number of his own incubators.

This scientific bent caused Pantano to seek an associate degree in medical laboratory technology at Penn State. While there he was thrilled to learn that the university offered a degree in poultry technology and management. In 1983, Pantano was one of three graduates of the program.

This is a replica of the 1948 stamp that celebrated the centennial of the American Poultry Industry.

Landing a job in Lancaster County was a poultry lover's dream come true for Pantano. For six years, he worked for Hess Mills of Paradise in servicing pullets, layers, and breeders.

I came to the county when Avian Influenza first started," Pantano said. His duties included being in charge of clean up and disinfection at several poultry houses.

Within his first year in the county, Pantano married Deb, whom he had met at Penn State and they settled in Strasburg.

Since then, Pantano has immersed himself in learning all he could about the industry. He has taken workshops on egg quality, poultry disease, selling techniques, supervising people and getting things done. He is a licensed poultry technician who can test for salmonella enteritidis and do other blood work.

Pantano has returned several times to Penn State to teach classes on poultry-related subjects. He said, "It's a great feeling to be asked by your former professors to teach and be consulted when they have questions about the industry."

President of the Lancaster County Poultry Association, Tom Pantano, enjoys a few moments with wife Cindy and children.

Pantano joined the Lancaster County Poultry Association and was soon put in charge of committees such as educational, fund raising, nominating, and queen. Last year, he was elected president and this year he was re-elected.

Northeast DHIA Announces Promotions

ITHACA, N.Y. — Northeast DHIA is pleased to announce the official kickoff of the 1991-92 Promotion Plan. During annual promotion months, members have the opportunity to try new services, learn about new options and increase the use of special services- all at free or limited cost.

As part of the ongoing commitment to improving the Northeast Dairy Herd, DHIA offers the first month of Somatic Cell analysis free to all new DHI Herds. Field Supervisors will review this and other reports to be sure new members can use the information for maximum benefit. Also free the first month is Dual Complete: DHIA's premier feeding option that offers recommendations for one or two concentrates, balanced for energy and protein based on each cow's needs.

In addition to these ongoing, year-round specials, monthly specials are also available. November is "AIM for a BUCK" month. One AIM report (a custom designed report up to 12 columns that you design to fit your particular needs) is only one dollar. In January the "How those cows milking?" special begins. This is an opportune time for members to try Lactation Curve Graphics- free to herds already on the Peak and Persistency report. Those members not receiving Peak and Persistency, have the opportunity to receive this report free the first month.

During the months of February and March, all Fearing Id supplies and accessories will be 10% off, and also in March Somatic Cell graphics are $1.00 for herds on Somatic Cell not currently receiving this report. Also a reminder: Dairylea Cooperative Fieldpeople have coupons to give DHIA members who would like to begin testing for Somatic Cell. These coupons entitle members to the first month free.

Promotions are an exciting time for Northeast DHIA members. It is the best time to explore new areas of opportunity, and to pursue new avenues of information. By trying out some different tools, members can increase the overall value of their DHIA services, which will ultimately result in improving the dairy herd.

For more information, contact your local DHIA Field Supervisor, Region Manager, or contact the DHIA Center at 1-800-344-2697 (New York); 1-800-255-5344 (Northeast).

to maintain operations during periods of break-even milk prices, or survive temporary financial losses, or the ability to buy materials, feeds or fuel at bulk wholesale prices, independent producers are at a disadvantage in the competition to market milk.

On Tuesday, a 59-year-old established dairyman in Lebanon County bemoaned the days when an average milking herd was 25 to 30 cows. He now has almost 60 registered Holsteins and said he doesn't think conditions will improve for the traditional dairyman.

But even before those days of 25-head milking strings, many family farm milking herds had 10 to 12 cows, some even fewer.

Changes in the dairy industry have been slowly, but consistently following a pattern.

Improved technology has eliminated a great deal of labor with milk production and allowed larger milking herds and theoretically more income, but it has also increased the need for higher overhead costs and additional education.

Without the monetary rewards needed to pay back the cost of education, the impetus for independent producers to start into business does not exist.

However, jobs on large farms are providing opportunities for specialists within the dairy industry.

Money received on the farm for milk apparently will continue to fluctuate and only provide a marginal profit for the small producer, according to the observations by a number of people within the dairy industry.

There are exceptions with niche marketing of milk, such as dairy farms with retail stores which offer a variety of products and have locations near large populations of people. These dairy producers can undersell the normal retail supermarket stores and chains.

However, the ability to underprice milk products does not guarantee such niche marketing is profitable. A combination of location, demand and other aspects which create customer appeal are needed to make such venture work, as was evidenced by the large number of on-farm retail stores which were created and failed during the 1970s.

The demand for fresh milk is still as great as it was for the past decades, but it is not increasing, according to industry officials.

The greatest increase in demand has been for milk byproducts and components.

Currently, officials calculate that of the milk produced in the Pennsylvania area, about 40 percent is used for fluid consumption, while 60 percent is used to make other products.

The milk processors have not completely lost their demand for fresh raw milk, but there are many businesses which can ship milk products into Pennsylvania at a cheaper price than it what it costs to maintain a work force and equipment to extract those commodities from fresh milk.

Fluid milk cannot be stored for poultry, educates members, and supports activities that strengthen the industry. The Association offers the Jay Irwin $1,000 Scholarship fund, holds educational banquets for home economists, funds the 4-H embryology project, and has a food stand at the Ephrata Fair.

As far as his goal as the Poultry Association president, Pantano said, "Do everything better than last year."

Last year was a successful year for the Association. And Pantano is optimistic that this year will be even better. He said, "The Association has strong backing and the county's poultry industry is strong."

Some of this year's successes for the Poultry Association included having more people attend and exhibit at Poultry Progress Days and having the largest crowd ever attend the pageant and the annual poultry banquet.

For the first time, the Association awarded Poultry Family Spirit Awards this year in recognition of families who have helped make the industry strong.

As an avid stamp collector, Pantano has worked to have the U.S. Post Office print a postage stamp honoring the poultry industry. One had been printed in 1948 commemorating the industry's centennial.

Pantano is also a board member of the Pennsylvania Egg Marketing Association and the Pennsylvania Egg Marketing Board.

After six satisfying years with Hess Mills, Pantano was asked to join Pennfield as a broiler flock supervisor. As always, Pantano was eager to find more out about the industry, and the chance to learn about broilers intrigued him. In regards to Pennfield's advertisement of the "Right Chicken," Pantano jokes that it took him six years to realize that he was working with the wrong chicken.

Although Pantano is now working with broilers that doesn't mean that he isn't concerned about the salmonella problem facing egg producers.

He said, "I have a positive outlook. We came through Avian Influenza, we can get through salmonella also."

Colored Easter chicks are no longer given to children as pets and Pantano understands the reason why, but he will never forget how those chicks steered his interest into a poultry career.

He said, "I really enjoy my work. I love working with farmers. There're lots of opportunities in the poultry industry.

"We're the number one ag industry in the county and the county has the largest egg production in the U.S. It makes me feel good to be part of such a fine industry."

very long at the farm and must be moved.

Milk marketing agencies in Pennsylvania recognize the need to increase consumption of fluid milk and have been targeting certain age groups in their promotions and advertising.

Also a major detriment to the future of small dairy farms in the traditional southcentral and southeastern regions of the state is the price of land on which the dairy farm is located.

Increased taxes, permits, fees, environmental considerations and other overhead costs also decrease the profit margin for small and local farms.

The search for a solution to the trend of inconsistent milk prices and disapearing small family farms has created a number of suggestions — none of which can truly be said to represent a consensus of producer opinion.

There have been numerous calls for independent producers to join forces when dealing with marketing, but more so lately to form purchasing cooperatives, wherein several dairy farmers order large quantities at wholesale prices for feed, seed, pesticides, fuel, etc.

There are several large farms (several hundred head milk herds) already using cooperative purchasing practices to further eliminate overhead costs.

Ron Buffington, a breeding consultant from Ohio, spoke during an October meeting of the Chester County Holstein Association.

Buffington urged members to become more cooperative in their practices — to talk to each other and combine efforts in purchasing as much as possible to cut overhead expenses.

He praised ChesCo., a cooperative purchasing group of Chester County farmers that has managed to get wholesale prices.

He said that dairymen must save money when prices are good and to keep as tight a budget as possible and not to buy anything not absolutely needed.

"Farmers in the country will be spending a lot of time on financial management," he said.

But more so, Buffington called on small production farmers to unite in order to compete and to have their say in their role in the dairy industry.

"Dairy farmers need to unite behind a plan," he said. And while not specifically stating what program he suggested, his suggestions were to collectively speak to the industry that dairy producers will not tolerate such flucuations in prices.

"If the price of milk ever comes down (again), send a letter to suppliers (of feed, veterinary services, nutrition consultants, etc.)," he said.

The concept is that if feed companies and other production support service industries receive letters from the majority of their clientele that on-farm milk prices are going to affect the ability of all these dairymen to pay for services or that the services will no longer be needed, that other sectors of the dairy industry will start supporting the need to have the producers receive a dependable price for his milk.

He also said that communication is the key to survival for the independents.

He suggested that producers invest in fascimile machines. He said it costs 16 cents to fax a two-page message to California from Lancaster. If milk prices drop, farmers can fax a message nationally that perhaps would call for a 20-percent reduction in milk flow by drying off that many cows, until prices were adjusted to adequate levels.

Buffington said he doesn't understand how dairymen can continue to increase herd size when prices go down, which logically, is the wrong thing to do as a whole sector of the industry if surplus milk is a problem.

"If you stay divided, you will fail," he said. "In a surplus situation, you have to shrink supply."

Efforts to change federal pricing methods and the minimum standards for the amount of solids, other than fat, that are to be in drinking milk are also being called for by certain groups, in order to help on-farm prices.

Some groups are vehemently against two-tier pricing, or going to a Canadian-style production quota system, while other groups support it.

A number of plans have been proposed and are being considered, for a better to price milk.

For a variety of reasons, some, such as one attorney who has filed more than 20 different legal complaints against the PMMB (and lost all to knowledge), want no government regulation on milk prices, but a completely free-market system.

This year also added to the agenda is an open-farm tour of Hershey Bare's dairy farm, located north of the city of Lebanon, off of Route 343.

Lebanon's Farm-City Week events already began with job exchanges and a media brunch meeting. During the media brunch, all members of local and regional media are invited to meet with committee members for a briefing of events. The specifics of the Lebanon program were announced.

Yesterday and today is the Farm-City Mall Show at the Lebanon Valley Mall, located along Route 422, west of the city of Lebanon.

At the mall show, displays offered include a duck slide, incubator hatching of chicks, farm animals, local commodity queens, princesses and kings; 4-H and FFA displays, a bake sale by the Lebanon County Farm Women's Society; a dog power exhibit; a dairy promotion barn with ice cream and milkshakes; free helium balloons; a coloring contests; non-alcoholic Cheers drinks, and an exhibit of using shredded newspaper for animal bedding.

Yesterday was the Mr. and Miss Farm-City contest, a meat cutting demonstration by Dr. James Watkins, of the Penn State Meats laboratory; a giant cheese hoagie with free samples; and an auction of beef cuts from the cutting demonstration.

Today at the mall is the announcement of a Holiday Cookie Baking Contest; a 4-H stir-fry demonstration with free samples; lamb sandwiches sponsored by the Blue Mt. Lamb Inc., with 4-Hers manning the booth. A cow-patty drop chance fund raiser with proceeds being used to purchase food baskets for distribution among the underpriveledged.

Also scheduled for today is a celebrity tractor pull, a fleece to shawl demonstration; a cow milking contest, an ice cream making contest; free hay rides, a mik chugging contest, free pony rides, an ice cream eating contest, and a kids tractor pull contest.

Since the Lebanon program is conducted by an agriculture committee of the Lebanon Chamber of Commerce, a special program run by the chamber to groom budding community leaders gets involved in understanding the rural aspects of the county.

On Tuesday, the group enrolled in the chamber's leadership development program met at the county's new agriculture center and listened to several speakers discuss agriculture and its role in the community.

H. Louis Moore, PSU professor of agricultural economics, discussed the outlook of agriculture in the 21st Century. Dr. William Henning, assistant professor of animal science at PSU talked about food safety issues.

Fred Wertz, state farm land preservation specialist gave an overview on farm land preservation. Also included on the subject was a panel discussion involving two farmers and Wertz.

Following lunch, a farm land preservation case study was presented to the group, to help them understand what kinds of unique land characteristics are being valued.

Also, Luther Smith, extension farm management specialist, presented information on current requirements for sound farm financial management.

The day was finished with a visit of Kenneth and Karen Sellers' dairy farm in Annville..

A senior citizens tour set for Monday, is to take a group of residents of Myerstown Grace Community to three different farms.

On Tuesday a number of county farmers are to be touring two non-agricultural businesses — Henry Molded Products, Inc. and recycler Clements Waste Services.

Food baskets for the elderly and the poor are to be distributed Thursday by Mike Firestine and Bob Donaldson, with the agricultural lending department of Lebanon Valley National Bank.

The big event, the banquet, is set for Thursday night at Kenbrook Bible Camp.

Showing Animals, Making Friends Create Winning Combination

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

PEACH BOTTOM (Lancaster Co.) — Gaining new friends and learning the importance of keeping records on animal progress are what part of being in 4-H is all about.

Ask Matthew Welk, 17, Peach Bottom, a junior at Solanco High School and a Solanco FFA member. A 4-H member for eight years, the enjoyment of taking care of and showing dairy animals paid off — not only in terms of gaining close friends, but recognition as the best 4-H owner breeder in the Holstein category in Lancaster County. He was also recognized as the 14-18 year old divison champion showman.

Matt was awarded the special best owner-bred female award at the Lancaster County 4-H Dairy Awards Night last Saturday at the Farm and Home Center. The award, sponsored by Lancaster Farming, shows how well 4-H'ers can do "with an anmal that you have bred," said Sherri Coleman, president, Pequea Valley 4-H Dairy Club, who presented the award.

"Having the ability to recognize bad decisions, accepting mistakes and failures, and having the courage to forge ahead and live up to the 4-H spirit of 'making the best better' is an admirable goal," she said. The award recognizes members who have successfully attained many of these goals.

Matt, son of Bev and Paul Welk, raised a cow that won in its class at the Lancaster Co. Holstein Club County Show in August. It placed in the 4-year-old class. But the owner-breeder award has a special meaning for Matt.

"I was happy with that," he said. "That's a pretty nice award to get. It comes from having a cow of your own, and you pick the bull that you want to breed her to, and that offspring would then be owned and bred by me.

"It's kind of a nicer award, you know, not like going out and buying good show cattle and then taking them to the show," he said.

Matt helps his mother and father on their 60-acre farm, where they operate a 50-head Holstein cow/calf operation. Matt himself raises 20 head of cows on his own, including seven milking cows.

Matt grew up farming. Up until last year, when they sold the farm across the street (100 acres, 75 head) and went into raising heifers, Matt helped milk. In addition, he helps his brother Mark, 25, a former 4-H member, milk on his farm in Quarryville.

Helping on the farm and paying special attention to the lessons learned in 4-H have helped Matt during competition in Kansas City, Mo. this week. There, Matt joined members of the Solanco FFA Dairy Judging Team picked to represent the state at the National FFA Convention in dairy judging competition.

Matt said 4-H leaders deserve a lot of credit for the support they gave him. "You know, a lot of responsibility and good management and the project books are helpful," he said. "They give you good examples."

Keeping careful records also contributed to the recognition. Matt said he was suprised at finding out "how much an animal really does eat, and what it costs to raise a 4-H animal."

Matt also shows about seven hogs and a steer for FFA projects.

Wednesday In Belleville:

Where The Action Happens

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — It's Wednesday. In Belleville.

To the unaware reader, these words seem simple, unimposing, and not so very profound. But to local Belleville residents and to the farmers in Mifflin County, these simple words mean only one thing — sale day at the Belleville Livestock Market. And those words — sale day at the Belleville Livestock Market — mean, a lot of different things to a lot of different people.

For one thing, it means that Belleville's main highway and side streets will be flooded with milling pedestrians, cars hunting parking places, grumbling livestock and hay trucks, high-prancing but slow-moving Amish buggies, and gawking touristls - all heading for an in-town, 10-acre area with an auction barn, restaurant, livestock yards, produce auction barn, outdoor paved area with 300 to 400 separate flea market spaces, and not enough parking.

The Belleville Livestock Market is the place to be for selling, buying, and sightseeing. For sellers, it means the lowest commission rates anywhere. For buyers, it means something for everyone — produce, baked goods, livestock, furniture, clothes, toys, dry goods, and much more. For those out sightseeing, the Belleville Livestock Market offers variety in it's people, products, and livestock.

"They talk about America being a melting pot — we have all kinds here," comments Gene Glick, owner of the Belleville Livestock Market along with his wife Peggy. "We've become friends with two attorneys from Washington who love to come here. Three weeks ago, Bud Shuster was here. And a couple of years ago, former President Jimmy Carter visited. Of course, people come to see the Amish, too."

Glick believes the Belleville Livestock Market is unique because of this "melting pot" effect, and for another reason. "We're one of the few, if not the only, auction left in the state that sells everything in one day."

Other auctions, such as those in Lancaster, sell produce one day and grains another day.

"At 10:00 a.m., the produce is auctioned. At 11:00, we sell small miscellaneous items from the back of pick-up trucks. This used to be farm-related items, but now it's anything. At 12:00, hay is auctioned. One o'clock is the small animal sale such as rabbits, ducks, geese, chickens, roosters, and pigeons. Inside, in the auction ring, we auction off the horses at one o'clock, followed by feeder pigs, dairy cows, and heifers, more feeders by the head and by the pound, sheep and goats, bulls, heifers and fat steers, dairy cull cows, calves, sows and fat hogs."

Auctioning finally ends between 7:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m. Three weeks ago, when three herds were sold, the Belleville Livestock Market experienced the biggest sale in both number of head and dollar volume since 1985. In 1990, more than 4,500 dairy cattle went through the auction.

Glick isn't sure selling everything on the same day is good or bad, but "It does get a lot of people around. The people bringing hay and animals to do business get a little upset by the flea market, but our commission rates are the lowest anywhere. We've kept it that way because of the flea market annoyance."

As for the town people, some have found a way to deal with the traffic problem — charge for parking. The VFW charges $1 per car for parking to subsidize scouting and other community programs. This can add up because the Belleville Livestock Market is open every Wednesday of the year and draws from 5,000 to 8,000 people each week. The Wednesday before the July 4th weekend draws the largest crowd for the year — more than 10,000 people.

The Belleville Livestock Market has evolved over the years into a 10-acre livestock auction and flea market, held every Wednesday, year round.

The Belleville Livestock Market's annual dairy show draws a better than average crowd of cows, breeders, and buyers for the sale that follows.

y is kept busy all day long selling whoopie pies, cake rolls, homemade breads and ore at Byler's Bakery table, a favorite stop nding the Belleville Livestock Market. The 10 years ago by Sadie Byler, is now run by Sylvia.

"We do have an emergency plan worked out with the ambulance crew. If the need arises, we'll meet them to get them through the crowd," Gene states.

Glick took some time to reflect on how the Belleville Livestock Market started, has grown and evolved. "Back them, in the 1940s, there were hardly any auctions. Most everybody sold through a dealer or took them to somewhere like the yards in Lancaster. My father, J.H. "Yonie" Glick and Jeff Peachey started an auctioning business at that time. After a while, the partnership dissolved, and, since Jeff Peachy owned the farm, the Glick group moved to Juniata County and had sales there for four to six years. In 1946, 12 to 14 stockholders incorporated what is known as the Belleville Livestock Market and bought the property from Jeff Peachey. The Glicks moved back to Belleville and started sales once a week."

Glick mentions the modest facilities at the beginning. The original sale building was the chicken house on the farm. Through the years, additions were added to put the livestock areas under roof and other buildings were utilized. In 1985, the group of stockholders wanted to sell. Gene's father bought all of the stock, and sold half to Gene. In 1987, when Gene's father passed away, Gene bought the other half.

Expansion of the market in the future can happen only if surrounding land becomes available. Plans are in the making for an upstairs market in the produce barn.

As for other sales throughout the year, because of space, Glick plans to stick with two machinery sales per year, one the first week of March and the other the first week of September. "There have been requests for more but the machinery takes up parking space we desperately need. At last year's spring machinery sale, we had 1,400 registered buyers. The sale went from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with four auctioneers".

Glick, with his brother Mark Glick as auctioneer, also conducts one horse sale, a spring heifer sale, and a fall heifer sale. An annual dairy show, followed by a sale, was started about 20 to 25 years ago. "Originally, the purpose was to draw attention to the cattle. Right now it's done to get a little better cow in than we might run each week," Glick explains. "It's also to draw the interest of some of the breeders for the sale."

Glick refers to the past growth and expansion as a sort of evolution process. His sons, Brian, 24, and Steve, 21, are now involved in the business, and will be more so in the future since Brian has just completed his two-year apprentice as an auctioneer under his uncle Mark.

The Belleville Livestock Market plays such a vital economic and social role in Mifflin County's agronomic life that it is hard to imagine Wednesdays in Belleville as just another day.

All Adults Need Wills

I'm not a lawyer, and I don't pretend to be one. But I do know that we, as active consumers and concerned family members, need to understand a little bit about the laws that govern our lives. Too often, we fear lawyers, and we are intimidated by legal issues.

One legal issue that I've been confronted with lately is the need to have a will. Who needs a will? Why should anyone bother?

There are several good reasons. Anyone over 18 years of age who owns property should have a will-even if it is a very basic one. By "owning property", I mean if you have bank accounts, own stocks or savings bonds, have any valuable personal items or own a house or land you should consider writing and signing a will.

Why?

• A will allows you (not the government) to decide what happens to your belongings when you die.

• Although a will itself does not save you taxes, an attorney can guide you through decisions about your assets that can. These decisions are then reflected in the will. The will may also allow your family access to money more quickly than if the government has to decide how it is divided.

• A will allows you to name a guardian for your children. (Your closest relative may not be the most physically and financially capable to take on a child unexpectedly.)

Despite these good reasons, AARP reports that around 25% of all people over trhe age of 50 still do not have a will. People say, "I'm too young to die." "There's plenty of time to write a will." "I don't have any property to give away."

But having a will is not just a need for "older" adults. All adults should begin the process of putting their wishes on paper in a legal document. But they don't. People fear the idea, and they procrastinate...sometimes until it is too late...and then their families suffer. To ease some of those fears, let me tell you a little bit about the process.

To create a will you first must determine your assets (write down how much money you have and what kind of valuables you own). Husbands and wives need to have separate wills. Then create a list of potential heirs. Once you have a list of assets and potential recipients, begin the process of matching them up. Select an administrator (an executor or executrix) to carry out these wishes after you have died. Finally, draft and sign the document and make copies.

In a will you can specify who should receive sentimental items, create trusts for children, and identify charities for gifts.

In Pennsylvania it is legal for a person to write his or her own will; however, having an attorney assist with the process may help you to avoid problems. The cost of preparing a will is much less than the amount of money your family will save in settlement costs. If the state has to settle the estate for a person who dies without a will, it is very expensive and takes a big chunk out of that person's savings.

In some cases it is a matter of dollars and sense - who gets my money and how do I avoid paying more than what's necessary to the government. In other cases it's a matter of love and care for other family members. Having a will eases many of the stresses and tensions in the days following a death. Knowing a person's wishes makes decisions so much easier.

I think the process can be compared to going to the dentist. (My aplogies to all gentle dentists!) It's a task we know we should do; it may be painful or aggravating for a time. But in the weeks following, we are happier and more at ease knowing we have taken care of the issue.

Special Times Bond Family Together

NEWARK, DE — Special time with the family is the glue that bonds families together says Dr. Patricia Nelson, University of Delaware Cooperative Extension family and child development specialist. From a picnic lunch in the park to a library visit, activities families do together are essential to quality home relationships.

"For today's American family when both mom and dad working outside the home is the norm, not the exception, scheduling time for everyone to spend together will require planning," Nelson says. "But it doesn't have to take a lot of time or cost a lot of money."

Nelson suggests a few at-home activities:

* Have a special meal once a week and involve everyone in the planning and preparing. Allow each member to take turns deciding what to serve.

* Get out those games! Monopoly, Scrabble or a deck of cards can provide hours of family fun.

* Read aloud to the family a couple of nights a week. Everyone enjoys classic adventure stories like Black Beauty or Treasure Island.

Exploring the family-fun possibilities of your neighborhood or community reveals a wide variety of things to do:

* Pack a picnic lunch on a nice day and go out, even if it's only under the tree in the backyard.

* Visit local historical sites. Children will develop an appreciation of their community's history and the contributions of the many cultures which make up the communities in their area.

* Go to your public library or bookmobile. A weekly trip to the library will encourage your child to read, and it's free!

* Attend a baseball game or soccer match in a nearby park. Take folding chairs for elders to sit in comfort.

* Ride your bikes if you have them, but be sure to wear helmets and observe the rules of safe biking. Children learn from example.

* Keep an eye on your local newspaper. Notices of free family-oriented events are often promoted as a public service.

"It's the simple pleasures, the ones family members can share, that will be remembered long after extensive trips or expensive games are forgotten," Nelson says. "These times are the memories children take away with them as they grow up and away from home."

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

If your microwave oven has more power settings than just on and off, it has variable power. Variable power means that your microwave oven can cook at different speeds, such as low, medium, and high. High power usually means about 100 percent power, medium power means about 70 percent power, and low about 10 percent power.

Stirring is something that is essential in microwave cooking. As you microwave, the heat penetrates the outside areas of food and will cook foods unevenly unless you stir them. Foods that can't be stirred should be rotated by turning the dish a quarter or half turn. Rotating moves the food to different areas of the oven and helps it cook evenly.

Standing time lets most foods, whether cooked conventionally or in the microwave, continue to cook once they are removed from the oven. But in microwave cooking this is more noticeable. To compensate, large or dense foods need standing time. That means you cook the food till it is almost done, and then let it stand till it is done.

With Christmas parties coming up, why not try a Cheese Fondue?

Ingredients:

2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
2 cups shredded Monterey Jack cheese
1 teaspoon caraway
½ cup non-alcoholic beer
3 tablespoons all purpose flour
Bread cubes or vegetable dippers

In a mixing bowl toss together flour, cheese, and seasoning. In a 2-quart casserole micro-cook liquid, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 1 to 1½ minutes or until hot. Add cheese mixture to hot liquid. Micro-cook uncovered on 50 percent power (medium) for 7 to 9 minutes or until cheese is melted, stirring every 2 minutes.

If desired, place in a fondue pot over low heat to keep warm or reheat as necessary in the casserole on 50 percent power (medium) for 2 to 3 minutes. Serve with bread cubes or vegetable dippers. Makes serving for 8.

Cheese Puff

Ingredients:

1 10-ounce package of frozen chopped broccoli
½ teaspoon dried basil, crushed
1 cup shredded Swiss cheese (4 ounces)
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup all purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 cup milk
4 egg yolks
4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

Prick vegetable package in several place. Place on paper toweling in microwave oven. Cover with vented clear plastic wrap. Micro-cook on 100 percent power (high) for 3 to 5 minutes or till bubbly, stirring every minute. Micro-cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 1 minute. Stir in cheese till melted. Stir in vegetable.

Beat egg yolks slightly. Slowly add to vegetable mixture, stirring constantly. Using clean beaters, beat egg whites and cream of tartar with an electric mixer until stiff peaks form. Gently fold into vegetable mixture.

Pour into an ungreased 8-inch round baking dish. Micro-cook, uncovered, on 50 percent power (medium) for 14 to 18 minutes or until just set in center, rotating dish a half turn 3 or 4 times. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Scrambled Eggs Country Style

Ingredients:

½ pound bulk pork
1 medium tomato, chopped
½ teaspoon dried basil, crushed
½ cup shredded American cheese (2 ounces)
¼ cup sliced green onion
8 beaten eggs
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

In an 8-inch round baking dish, crumble meat. Micro-cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 3 to 5 minutes or until meat loses its pink color, stirring once during cooking. Drain off fat, reserving 2 tablespoons drippings in the baking dish. Place meat on paper toweling. Micro-cook green onion, uncovered, in reserved drippings on 100 percent power (high) for 1 to 2 minutes or until just tender.

In mixing bowl, stir together eggs, milk, salt, pepper, vegetable, and seasoning; pour over onion in baking dish. Micro-cook uncovered on 100 percent power (high) for 5 to 6 minutes or until eggs are almost set, pushing cooked portions to center of dish several times during cooking. Top with cooked meat and sprinkle with cheese. Micro-cook uncovered on 50 percent power (medium) for 3 to 5 minutes or until cheese is melted. Cut into wedges to serve. Makes 6 servings.

Roses That Last

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)— If you've just paid $20 for a dozen roses only to have the petals fall off a day later, take heart.

Penn State researchers are laying the groundwork for genetic engineering techniques that may help the floral industry produce longer-lasting cut flowers and foliage plants.

"Plant breeders are eager to use genetic engineering to improve plants, but before they can do it, they need to know precisely how genes act and how they can be regulated," says Dr. Kathleen Evensen, associate professor of postharvest physiology in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

Evensen is attempting to identify how genes respond to ethylene, a growth regulator produced by plants. Ethylene causes flowers to lose their petals and makes fruits and vegetables ripen and drop.

Although ethylene occurs naturally in plants, it alsi is produced when petroleum fuels combust. When combustion backs up into buildings where plants are stored, the plants are put at risk.

"Plant handlers are advised not to expose flowers and flowering shrubs to ethylene, but it just isn't possible when plants are loaded by forklifts and transported by truck," says Evensen.

With graduate student David Clark, Evensen is building a library of thousands of geranium genes, hoping to pinpoint the genetic sequences that control petal drop. The research could help breeders develop plant varieties that hold their petals longer.

"Petal drop is one of the most common problems in the floral industry," says Evensen. "We hope our research eventually will improve longevity and shipping tolerance of flowers and foliage plants."

Silver thiosulphate (STS) can be used to inhibit ethylene action in many flower species. But spraying plants with STS may contaminate irrigation and runoff water and soil.

"Sue to increased environmental regulations, it's possible that the floral industry could be prohibited from using STS," says Evensen. "Genetically altering plants is a more environmentally sound approach to controlling ethylene response."

Evensen expects to identify several ethylene-induced genes within the next few years. The information she gathers will have implications for other agricultural commodities. Research on ethylene may help producers prevent diseases and delay ripening in fruits.

Evensen's research is supported by a grant from the Fred C. Gloeckner Foundation.

Good Eating In A Nutshell

Not only are nuts delicious in many different foods but also nuts are good for you.

Nuts such as walnuts supply a variety of vitamins, minerals, and protein, are high in thiamine, B6, and potassium. Walnuts contain no cholesterol, and are low in sugar, sodium, and unsaturated fats. Monosaturated and polyunsaturated fats account for 89 percent of walnut fats, while only 11 percent are saturated.

Ground walnuts can be used instead of egg proteins and whipping agents to achieve light and fluffy products.

The walnut cell structure strengthens doughs and holds up to processes such as extrusion.

Whether enhancing the nuttiness in creamy, buttery foods, cutting the sweetness (like in brownies), or just adding a little crunch, wlanuts are good to use and good for you

CARROT-WALNUT BARS

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and lightly flour 13x9-inch baking pan. Set aside.

In a large bowl, sift together:
- 1½ cups flour
- 1 cup packed light brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ginger
- ½ teaspoon allspice

Add and stir until thoroughly combined:
- 2 large eggs, beaten
- ⅔ cup cooking oil
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Add and stir in:
- 1½ cups finely grated carrots
- ¾ cup walnuts, chopped
- ½ cup coconut, flaked

Transfer to prepared pan. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes or until tester comes out clean. Cool in pan or wire rack. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar or frost with cream cheese frosting.

Cream Cheese Frosting:
- 3-ounces cream cheese
- ¼ cup butter, softened
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2½ cups confectioners sugar

Cream together cream cheese, butter, and vanilla. Gradually add confectioners sugar and continue to beat until thoroughly mixed.

WALNUT PIE

- ½ cup brown sugar, packed
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1¼ cups light corn syrup
- 3 tablespoons butter
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs
- 1½ teaspoons vanilla
- 1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell
- 1¼ cups walnut halves

Mix brown sugar and flour in sauce pan. Add corn syrup, butter, and salt, and warm over low heat just until butter is melted. Beat eggs with vanilla. Stir in sugar mixture. Turn into pie shell and sprinkle with walnuts. Bake on lower rack of 375 degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes, until filling is set in center. Cool before cutting. Makes one 9-inch pie.

Crane Walnut Orchards

FRIED WALNUTS

- 4 cups walnuts
- ½ cup sugar
- Salad oil
- ¼ teaspoon salt

In large saucepan, add walnuts to 6 cups boiling water, and reheat to boiling; cook 1 minute. Rinse under running hot water, drain. In large bowl, toss sugar and walnuts. In electric skillet, heat 1-inch salad oil to 350 degrees. With slotted spoon, add half of walnuts to oil; fry until golden, stirring often. Place walnuts in coarse sieve over bowl to drain; sprinkle with salt; toss lightly to keep walnuts from sticking together. Transfer to waxed paper to cool. Fry remaining walnuts. Store in tightly covered container. Makes 4 cups.

Crane Walnut Orchards

FANTASY FUDGE

- 3 cups sugar
- ¾ cup margarine
- ⅔ cup evaporated milk
- 12-ounces semi-sweet chocolate morsels
- 2 cups marshmallow cream
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar, margarine, and milk. Bring to a rolling boil, stirring constantly. Boil 5 minutes over medium heat, stirring constantly (mixture scorches easily). Remove from heat.

Stir in chocolate pieces until melted. Add marshmallow creme, nuts, and vanilla. Beat until well blended. Pour into a greased 13x9-inch pan. Cool. Cut into squares.

PUMPKIN AND WALNUT SPICE COOKIES

- 1 cup butter, room temperature
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 2 eggs
- 15-ounce can pumpkin
- ½ cup cold coffee
- 3½ cups flour, unsifted
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup raisins
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

With an electric mixer, beat 1 cup butter with 2 cups brown sugar until mixture is creamy. Beat in 2 eggs and can of pumpkin and ½ cup coffee; set aside. Mix flour with baking soda, ground nutmeg, and ground cinnamon. Add cloves, ginger, and salt; add to pumpkin mixture and stir until blended. Stir in ½ cup raisins and walnuts. Cover with clear plastic wrap and chill at least one hour. Drop by tablespoonfuls, about one inch apart, on lightly greased baking sheets and bake in a 400 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly brown. Remove to rack to cool. Makes 60 cookies.

PUMPKIN APPLE STREUSEL MUFFINS

- 2½ cups flour
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 tablespoon pumpkin pie spice
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, lightly beaten
- 1 cup cooked pumpkin
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- 2 cups, peeled, finely chopped apples
- Streusel topping

In a large bowl, combine first five ingredients; set aside. In medium bowl, combine eggs, pumpkin, and oil. Add liquid ingredients to dry ingredients, stir just until moistened. Stir in apples. Spoon batter into greased or paper-lined muffin cups, filling ¾ full. Sprinkle streusel topping over batter. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes, or until toothpick comes out clean.

Streusel Topping: In small bowl, combine 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour, ¼ cup sugar, and ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon. Cut in 4 teaspoons butter, until mixture is crumble.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

THE SETTING: A continuing-education conference for dietary/nutrition professionals.

THE TOPIC: How professionals can work together for healthier children — including encouragement of proper and balanced eating habits.

THE REALITY: At break — and even before — soft drink cans from a nearby vending machine turned up in the hands of a large percentage of attendees. One was noted snacking on crackers with cheese and fruit juice.

THE CONCLUSION: Most of us don't practice what we preach.

Lest I come off here sounding a little "holier than thou," let me tell you the first thing I consumed on arriving home from this meeting was a non-nutritious cup of coffee. Cream, no sugar.

And I know better, too.

It was interesting to hear data presented at this meeting which focused on the extremes of childhood nutrition. Increases were cited in both numbers of overweight "couch potato" children as well as in those so involved in organized sports and activities that they become super-stressed.

I came away from that meeting with renewed appreciation for my own more relaxed childhood and the sensibly-balanced nutrition habits we learned at the family kitchen table by eating and by observation.

Fast food then was a peanut butter and jelly sandwich you might fix after school to tide you over to dinner. We did not own the neighborhood's very first television set. And our organized sports was a pickup ball game or croquet battle between the neighbors and us — no personal coaches, cheering section or criticism. Unless we got to squabbling.

We did learn to eat a variety of simple, healthy foods, including evening suppertimes with meat, potatoes, vegetables, bread. Lots of hot soups. Fresh things, like fruit, especially grapefruit and oranges during the winter months. Ice cream was a once-weekly treat and our snacks were mostly of the popcorn or pretzel sort. Candy was what we spent our small weekly allowances on at the little neighborhood grocery.

If there was something we didn't like to eat, we did not send out for pizza or have some alternate food made especially for our finicky appetites. And so I learned to like most foods, even things like brussel sprouts and liver.

Mom and Dad tended a fairly good-sized garden and we learned to eat (and plant, and pick!) everything from early leaf lettuce to home-grown sweet potatoes. That people could grow up and not like lima beans, or tomatoes, or peppers, or carrots, was (still is) a little hard for me to understand. Mom has always been an excellent baker and we were certainly not "deprived" of cakes, pies, or cookies.

But part of the message of that nutrition meeting dealt with setting examples. If parents and other caregivers eat a balanced diet, children are more likely to embrace a variety of foods.

Without even consciously thinking about it, I suppose we set out to raise our kids in the eating patterns instilled in us by our own country-cooking, garden-growing parents. Not that it just automatically happened. One avoided baked potatoes until recently. Neither will eat liver.

And I long age gave up trying to feed one brussel sprouts after the historic "barn roof sprout" incident. Months after the occurence, the perpetrator of this shenanigan confessed to stashing in his cheek — chipmunk style — the one brussel sprout I had insisted to try, then pitching it onto the barn roof for disposal.

Since they are not "picky" eaters, the biggest meal-balancing challenge in our household is figuring who will show up to eat — and when.

I atoned for my non-nutritious cup of coffee with a pre-milking, better-balanced snack of meat, cheese, lettuce and tomato sandwich, cup of hot chocolate and a fresh pear.

And sneaked back into the house later to raid the chocolate cookies.

Beyond Bread Myths

CHICAGO, IL — We all know that white bread is not as nutritious as whole grain bread, right? Wrong. And, bread should be avoided when trying to lose weight, right? Absolutely not. These are only a couple of the myths and misconceptions many of us tend to believe about bread and nutrition.

Today, more and more health professionals are touting the benefits of breads and other "starches" to their patients... and with good reason. Contrary to popular beliefs, bread (yes, even white bread) can play a very important part in a healthful diet.

Following is a list of common bread myths. Are your diet and your palate missing out on the benefits and good taste of bread because you follow the "bread is bad" school of thought? Take a look:

Myth #1: Whole Grain Bread is More Nutritious Than White Bread.

The Truth: Although whole grain bread is generally thought to be more nutritious than white bread, white bread actually contains many vitamins and minerals and is a good source of complex carbohydrates. To some, whole grain bread simply "looks better for you" than white bread — but in this case appearances are not everything. White bread is fortified with iron, niacin, thiamin and riboflavin. So, yes, you can eat white bread and still eat healthfully. Be sure to check the package label for complete nutrition information.

Myth #2: Bread is Fattening

The Truth: Although many people believe they must give up bread in order to lose weight, bread is actually a good source of complex carbohydrates and very low in fat. In fact, many moderate weight loss programs recommend eating at least three to four servings of bread each day.

Both reduced-calorie and regular bread are excellent choices for people following steady weight loss plans — bread is both filling and nutritious and can be eaten in realtively large amounts without causing weight gain. Just watch what you put on top!

Myth #3: Bakery Bread is More Nutritious Than Packaged

The Truth: Many people who believe "fresh is best" think bakery bread is better than packaged bread. Untrue. Packaged breads are fortified with nutrients, such as iron and riboflavin, and are dated for freshness.

Myth #4: Regular Bread Has More Fiber Than Diet Bread

The Truth: Reduced-calorie bread is low in calories, a great source of dietary fiber and is very low in fat. On average Wonder® Light Bread has 2 grams of fiber in a slice. Eating just four slices a day will add 8 grams of dietary fiber to your diet.

ANSWER — June Moore, Wayne, sent in a recipe for making delicate flowers requested by Nancy Van Cott of New Milford.

Bread Dough Flowers

1 slice white bread, crust removed and crumbled
1 tablespoon Aleene's white glue
¼ teaspoon cold cream
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ teaspoon lemon juice
Acrylic paint, preferred colors

Mix together, knead, squeeze and work into smooth dough

Practice is needed to form nicely-shaped flowers. The dough dries out quickly so start with pea-sized amount, keeping the remainder covered. Insert wire in flower for stem before the dough dries.

ANSWER — Diane Cruzan, Bridgeton, N.J., requested a recipe for a pure white sauce, called blanc mange, that is used on fruit. Thanks to Sarah Keeny, York, for sending a recipe.

Blanc Mange
French Dessert
(meaning white food)

2 cups milk
3 tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup sugar
⅔ teaspoon vanilla or other preferred flavoring

Scald 1½ cups milk. Blend starch, salt, and sugar. Moisten with ½ cup milk. Stir until smooth. Add hot milk, cook in top of double boiler over boiling water, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Cover and cook 10 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Cool slightly; stir in flavoring. Turn into mold that was first rinsed in cold water. As sauce begins to set, stir in 1 cup fruit of your choice: cherries, berries, drained pineapple, etc.) Chill. Unmold to serve, if desired.

For variety, try coconut flavoring and stir in 1 cup fresh grated or moist canned coconut in place of fruit.

ANSWER — Julia Shaull, Brogue, sent a recipe for sweet and sour cauliflower, which Estella Fink of Allentown had requested.

Pickled Cauliflower

2 large heads cauliflower
1 bunch celery

Boil cauliflower and celery until tender and pack in pint jars. Add chopped onions if desired. Bring the following ingredients to a boil and pour over cauliflower:

3 cups sugar
2 cups vinegar
2 cups water
2 tablespoons salt
2 teaspoons celery seed
2 teaspoons mustard seed

Set jars in hot water in canner and bring to a boil.

ANSWER — Margaret Lewis, Rexville, N.Y., wanted a simple chocolate almond bark candy recipe. Thanks to B. Light, Lebanon, for sending a recipe.

Chocolate Almond Bark

1 cup sliced almonds
2 pounds milk chocolate
½ teaspoon oil-based almond extract

Line 9x13-inch baking pan with foil. Slice almonds. Finely chop chocolate. Fill lower pan of large double boiler with hot water about 140 degrees.

Put ¼ of chopped chocolate into top of double boiler and set into position on lower pan. Stir chocolate vigorously as it melts, scraping the sides and bottom of pan with rubber spatula. The idea is to keep the entire mass of chocolate at an even temperature. When chocolate in pan is melted, add another quarter of chocolate or as much as you can keep the chocolate moving and mixed. Continue this process until all the chocolate is melted. Be careful that water does not splash into the chocolate.

When chocolate is completely melted, pour out hot water and replace with 65 degree water. Stir to cool chocolate to 85 degrees. Remove cool water and replace with 100 degree water. Stir to bring temperature of chocolate back to 89 degrees, which means it is ready for molding.

Add oil-based almond extract and nuts. Pour into prepared pan and smooth out. Cool at room temperature until just set but not hard.

With a fork, use the tines to score the top of chocolate to look like tree bark. Score into 1½ -inch squares with a sharp knife. Continue to cool at room temperature for 2 hours. Break into squares and serve. Yields 48 pieces.

ANSWER — Helen Kirsch of Carrolltown requested wheat-free recipes for breads. Thanks to Betty Light for sending a recipe. If you write to her, she will send you many more in addition to the titles of two cookbooks that she found helpful. Write to Betty Light, 1821 Quarry Rd., Lebanon, PA 17042-1540.

To develop strong bones and teeth, children between the ages of 1 and 10 need 800 milligrams of calcium per day, about 2-2/3 cups of milk; children between the ages of 10 and 18 need 1,200 milligrams, just over a quart of milk. One cup of milk contains about the same amount of calcium as one cup of lowfat yogurt, 1-1/2 ounces of hard cheese or 2 cups of cottage cheese.

Weight Control You Can Live With

The right weight — it's a goal many Americans strive for day in and day out. In fact, more than half of American women and 43 percent of American men consider themselves overweight. That alone may explain the millions of dollars spent each year on fad dieting and diet programs and the vast number of people who try "crash" diets only to become discouraged and gain their weight back again.

More and more research is showing that a high-carbohydrate (well-known to many as "starches"), low-fat is an effective way to lose weight and keep it off. Why? Well, one reason is that high-carbohydrate, low-fat foods are foods most of us can live and eat with.

"Consumers love to look for miracle methods to help them lose weight easily," says Kerry Lyman, spokesperson for Wonder® Bread. "What many people don't realize, at least not until they try it, is that following a high-carbohydrate, low-fat diet means you can eat a lot of the foods you really enjoy, such as bread, without feeling hungry or deprived."

Why are carbohydrates okay while fats are not? The simple answer is that fats are fattening. We all count calories, but many of us don't consider the source of those calories. Fats are calorie rich. An ounce of fat in foods such as butter, oil, cream or fatty meat will provide more than twice as many calories as an ounce of carbohydrate from breads, vegetables or fruits.

Unfortunately, our bodies have an unlimited capacity to turn dietary fat into body fat, but this isn't true of carbohydrates. It is also much easier to over-eat with foods high in fat versus those high in carbohydrates, if for no other reason than sheer volume.

Think about it — you can easily eat 1½ ounces of potato chips, but two large baked potatoes (a high-carbohydrate food) might not go down so quickly. Each, though, has the same amount of calories.

By eating foods low in fat and high in carbohydrates, you really can eat more food but take in fewer calories, enabling you to maintain a weight loss program without feeling constantly hungry or deprived. This makes it much easier to stick to a healthier eating routine. The pounds may not come off as quickly as with a very low calorie diet, but you will lose fat, rather than just water and muscle, and keep the weight off more easily.

For many, it's simply a matter of letting go of some old misconceptions — breads and "starchy" foods are not fattening — and, as long as you limit the amount of fats you eat, you can still eat a large variety (and amount) of foods and lose weight. A diet low in fats and high in carbohydrates might include:

- breads, pastas, beans, rice, all vegetables and fruits
- skim milk, low-fat cheese and yogurt
- limited amounts of lean meats, chicken and fish
- sweets, in moderation, if the sugar is not combined with fat.

Try to focus on the foods you should eat, and those you enjoy, like breads and pasta, rather than on the foods you must avoid. And, of course, exercise regularly to increase your metabolic rate, decrease your appetite, insure faster weight loss and decrease stress.

As part of an ongoing commitment to nutrition research and education, the makers of Wonder® Bread, created "Wonder® Bread's Guide To Weight Control And A Healthy Diet," a brochure full of sample menus and information on weight control and maintenance with a high-carbohydrate, low-fat diet. For your free copy, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to: Wonder® Nutrition Brochures — 1CBC, Continental Baking Company, Checkerboard Square, St. Louis, MO 63164.

Berks Executive Board

The Berks County Farm Women Executive Board was held recently at the Agriculture Center with 22 members in attendance.

The meeting was opened by president, Joan Loeb.

Wendy Lingle of Group #11 gave the devotions.

For roll call, the presidents of each group were to answer how their group celebrated Farm Women's Day and the vice presidents were to answer with a highlight of the past year.

Donations of $200 each were given to Hamburg Center, Berks Heim, and the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

Janet Schlegel reported for Agri-Business.

Several women participated in the state adult project as well as the "Name the Heifer" contest.

The State Convention will be held at Harrisburg on January 13. A chicken breast dinner will be served and reservations are to be made to Dorothy Stricker. Group #10 will be in charge of the centerpieces for this affair.

The next Board meeting will be held on January 6 with Group #9 in charge of devotions.

Visit The McCormick Farm — Home Of The First Reaper

WALNUT GROVE, VA — About 160 years ago, Cyrus Hall McCormick changed farming forever.

That was the day 22-year-old Cyrus demonstrated the world's first successful mechanical reaper in fields near his farm.

Before that day, grain had been harvested with strong arms, an aching back, and a sickle or scythe. The McCormick reaper harvested grain five times faster than any previous method, with a fraction of the physical effort.

Acceptance of McCormick's reaper spread slowly at first, but then at a pace that quickly outstripped his ability to produce the machines at the Walnut Grove blacksmith shop.

In 1847, Cyrus moved to Chicago to serve the vast prairie grain fields of the Midwest.

The Virginia Reaper, as it was called, moved westward across the United States. In 1851, which was 20 years after it was first demonstrated, the reaper won the highest award of the day, the Gold Medal at London's Crystal Palace Exhibition, and Cyrus McCormick became a world celebrity.

McCormick's success was partly due to his mechanical inventiveness. But he also was a pioneer in business techniques: easy credit to enable farmers to pay for machines from increased harvests, written performance guarantees; and advertising to convince farmers to buy his reaper. He helped make farmers mechanically minded and willing to try new ideas. That willingness, in turn, made American farmers the most efficient in the world.

You can visit the farm where the McCormick reaper was first demonstrated. Admission is free to tour the blacksmith shop, gristmill, museum, and scenic site at the McCormick Farm.

The 634-acre farm is now the Shenandoah Valley Agricultural Experiment Station, a part of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. Researchers at the station and from the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences on the main campus in Blacksburg continue work in animal sciences, plant sciences, entomology, and other disciplines, including agricultural engineering.

Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, all year. From Lexington, Vir., take US 11 North to State Route 606, or Interstate 81 to Exit 54. Call the museum office at (703) 377-2255.

Children enjoy peeping out of the small window of the gristmill of Cyrus McCormick farm to see the working waterwheel.

To a crowd of neighbors and on-lookers, 22-year-old Cyrus Hall McCormick demonstrated this mechanical reaper in fields near his farm, Walnut Grove. The reaper is on display in the farm workshop, which houses a blacksmith shop on the lower level.

Visitors tour the gristmill on the Cyrus McCormick farm, a national historic landmark, opearated by Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Proper Egg Handling Care Promoted

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Properly stored, handled, and cooked eggs are one of the safest raw food products in the supermarket.

Occasionally, eggs are involved in incidents of food-borne illnesses. According to Paul Sauder, president of Sauder's Eggs in Lititz, these incidents are caused not by the egg themselves, but by the way the eggs are handled.

About a year ago, Sauder's launched an ambitious program to promote the safe handling of eggs by employees of food stores, restaurants, and institutional kitchens. With a year of experience behind them, Sauder said he feels the program is a success.

Through the Approved Egg Handler Program, Sauder's people and outside food experts have educated hundreds of the people who unload the company's delivery trucks and who handle and store the eggs until they are sold or served to consumers.

The program's message is clear and simple:

- Keep fresh eggs refrigerated.
- Rotate egg stocks. The first eggs into refrigerated storage should be the first eggs out.

There's nothing difficult about handling eggs. However, food handlers sometimes overlook the fact that the egg is a natural, perishable food that has not been cooked, frozen or had anything added to it.

There are degrees of perishability. Eggs are far less perishable than fresh meats, poultry or seafood. You can take a whole egg that's been in your refrigerator for two weeks, cook it and eat it in perfect safety. You wouldn't even want to touch a piece of uncooked fish that's been held unfrozen in a refrigerator for two weeks.

If you were to store a loaf of bread, some apples, some oranges and a dozen eggs in your refrigerator, you would still cook and eat the eggs long after you'd decided to toss the bread and the fruit.

Refrigeration is the key to keeping eggs wholesome. That's why they're whisked from the hen house into cooling rooms right on the farms that produce Sauder's Eggs. Refrigeration between 35 and 45 degrees F. helps the egg retain the natural defenses it had when it was produced in the henhouse.

Those natural defenses are very effective. The body temperature of a healthy laying hen is 106 degrees F, which is the temperature of an egg when it comes from the chicken. It's a perfect temperature for the growth of both a baby chick and many of the bacteria which are ever present in the environment.

Mother Nature does not intent for a newly laid egg to serve as food for germs, of course; she wants it to become another chicken. That's why she has crammed the egg with every nutrient necessary for the birth of a whole new life. And that's why she has protected that new life from harm.

The protection starts with the shell. It is porous, because a developing chick needs to breathe. For the first 100 hours after an egg is laid, a coating called the cuticle blocks the pores to protect against bacterial invasion.

Long before the 100 hours are up, Sauder's Eggs have been refrigerated, washed, sanitized and returned to refrigerated rooms and delivery trucks.

Inside the shell are two membranes. The inner membrane contains a substance called lysozyme, which is well-known for its ability to prevent bacterial growth.

Lysozyme is also present in the egg white. Even without lysozyme, the white is inhospitable to germs because it is alkaline and lacks many of the nutrients bacteria need to grow.

A very dense layer of egg white, known as the chalaziferous layer, directly surrounds the yolk. It contains all the anti-bacterial properties of the white in even higher concentrations.

Refrigeration helps extend those natural defenses for many weeks.

Sauder's Approved Egg Handler Program is one more step in a quality control program that begins as soon as the egg is laid in a henhouse. All Sauder's Eggs are refrigerated on the farm, and transported to the processing plant on refrigerated trucks.

In the plant, the eggs are sorted by size and quality. Imperfect eggs are removed. The rest are washed, sanitized, and packed into cartons and cases, then held in refrigerated storage until they are shipped out, again in refrigerated trucks, to stores and restaurants or institutional kitchens.

By extending this quality control program to storels and kitchens through the Approved Egg Handler Program, Sauder's hopes to lend a hand to Mother Nature and one of her most perfect creations:

The fresh, whole egg.

TIPS FOR HOLIDAY FOOD SHOPPING

If you are planning to have a big Thanksgiving dinner, and want a fresh turkey, it is imperative that you place your turkey order this week to be certain you get the size and kind you want. Order your fresh turkey so you will not have it in your refrigerator more than two days before cooking.

Fresh turkeys generally cost more than frozen ones because there are fewer fresh turkeys available and they require special handling. Some retailers will thaw frozen turkeys in their meat cases as a favor to shoppers. These turkeys could be mistaken for fresh ones. If in doubt, ask your retailer.

One final point: if thawed turkeys are not sold at Thanksgiving time, retailers are not allowed to refreeze and sell them later, according to the Pennsylvania Frozen Food Code.

SWEET POTATOES OR YAMS?

Like many other "holiday" foods, sweet potatoes can be used year-round to add variety and nutritive value to family meals.

Misconceptions about the sweet potato begin with its name. What separates the sweet potato from the yam? Does size, color, breed, or legend make the difference? Most experts agree that the yam and sweet potato are one and the same. What most people call yams are the orange-fleshed, moist sweet potatoes. There are some sweet potatoes that are dry, mealy and have a rather pale yellow flesh. These are becoming less and less common. True yams, which are tropical vegetables, are considerably larger than sweet potatoes and have relatively tough, wrinkled skins and white meat.

THE CRANBERRY: AN AMERICAN BERRY

The Pilgrims found cranberries growing wild and were introduced to eating this ruby red fruit by the Indians. It is no surprise that cranberries are part of our holiday heritage.

Bright red, plump cranberries are sold in plastic bags. You can refrigerate fresh cranberries for up to one month. Although fresh cranberries are available only from September through December, you can enjoy them year-round. Just freeze them in their original package wrapped again in plastic. They will keep for one year. There is no need to thaw frozen cranberries before using them in recipes.

Family Values Challenge Of The '90s

SAN FRANCISCO — A recent national survey reports a serious problem with values among today's youth, with parents lacking the help they need to correct it. Conducted for Fleischmann's Yeast by independent market research firm R. H. Bruskin, the survey of 1,000 adults revealed that:

- 89 percent believe that having today's American youth develop a strong set of basic values is a significant problem.
- 65 percent believe parents need more knowledge and abilities to effectively help their children develop a strong set of basic values.

To help address this problem, 20,000 4-H'ers across the nation are participating in a new educational fund-raising program recently launched by the National 4-H Council and Fleischmann's Yeast. This new program provides 4-H'ers with tools to help families explore and develop basic values together — and, at the same time, helps 4-H'ers raise needed educational funds.

Family Workbook Promotes Core Values

While typical fund-raisers involve items such as candy bars, cookies and raffle tickets, the centerpiece of the 4-H campaign is a colorful 1992 wall calendar. Titled "Celebrating Family," the calendar is far more than a compilation of dates. It is an easy-to-use workbook that helps today's busy parents develop stronger values in their children.

The calendar was created in conjunction with Dr. Sol Wassermann, child psychiatrist and medical director at Pacific Center (San Jose, California). Each month of the calendar focuses on a specific value such as self-esteem, citizenship, fairness and responsibility. Each value is brought to life with a special quote, insights into the value's significance and activities that families can use to explore the value together.

"American families are beset with a variety of changes which have the capability of weakening family structure," says Dr. Wassermann. "Unless we respond actively, we will rob the next generation of the strength and skills necessary for a positive future."

While neighborhoods remain the prime territory for most calendar sales, many 4-H'ers have brought "Celebrating Family" even further into their communities. In one community, for example, 4-H'ers made presentations to discuss family values in a classroom, at a city council meeting and at a service club.

In San Leandro, California, Kiwanis Club members spontaneously began bidding for one calendar after a 4-H presentation. In another community the calendar was endorsed by the mayor.

Each year more than six million children nationwide participate in 4-H programs. A staple of American life since the early 1900s. 4-H opens doors of opportunity for youth through a variety of educational activities. 4-H members develop leadership skills, acquire a positive self-image and learn to respect and interact with others.

Fleischmann's Yeast has sponsored 4-H programs for forty years because its consumer research shows that home breadmaking is closely aligned with strong family relationships fostered by 4-H.

To order a copy of the "Celebrating Family" calendar, write to: Celebrating Family, c/o National 4-H Council, 7100 Connecticut Avenue, Chevy Chase, MD 20815.

CHELATION THERAPY

THIS MAY BE YOUR ANSWER TO: Heart Problems, High Blood Pressure, Poor Circulation, Arthritis, Diabetes, Leg Cramps, Numbness, Tingling, Cold Hands And Feet & Atherosclerosis.

April 1991

At age 16 I was diagnosed as having juvenile diabetes. My blood count was over 300. I was put on a high dosage of insulin.

Over the years I became pregnant three different times. I miscarried between the second and fourth month each time. At age 40 I became tired and was losing weight. I went from 140 pounds down to 90 pounds I was finally diagnosed as having diabetic neuropathy. Since medical history records have been kept, I was the 500th case to be diagnosed. The neuropathy is what makes it rare. My doctor conferred with the doctors at Mayo Clinic before he could prescribe or treat me At this time my blood sugar was never below 350 and I was taking 110 units of insulin. At times my blood sugar would go up to between 400 and 500. Twice it went to 1000.

Last June my Golden Pride/Rawleigh dealer began telling me about Formula #1. I began taking two tablets a day. On the day I started Formula #1, my sugar reading was 359 and I was taking 110 units of insulin a day. I began to see results on the third bottle. My sugar count was coming down and I began decreasing my insulin. My doctor kept asking what I was doing different but I wouldn't tell him for about eight months. When I went for my check up in March, my blood sugar was 102 and my insulin intake is down to 30-34 units a day. My doctor is very pleased with my progress and told me to continue taking the formula.

I feel sure if I would have known about Golden Pride/Rawleigh years ago I would never have gotten in the condition I was in.

Protect Your Wallet From Bogus Fuel Gadgets

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Farmers should think carefully before they buy devices that claim to save fuel and solve financial woes, says an agricultural engineer in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"Among the bogus products currently being peddled to farmers are fuel or oil filters that are supposed to last forever and carburetors that can atomize any fuel, or even water," says James Garthe, instructor in agricultural and biological engineering. "In general, if a salesperson approaches you with a product that seems too good to be true, it probably is.

"Magnetic fuel treatment devices are a classic case of a bogus product," Garthe says. "These small permanent magnets or electromagnets slide over or clamp onto the fuel line and are supposed to polarize fuel so it burns better. Manufacturers claim these products do everything but make your vehicle fly."

While extremely strong magnetic fields in laboratories have been shown to alter molecular arrangements of liquid, their orientation immediately returns to normal when the magnetic field is stopped. "In the case of a small magnetic field located around a fuel line, the effect is negligible, and any possible residual effect on the fuel after it flows past the magnet is nonexistent," Garthe says. "In short, they don't work!"

Salespeople may apply large, technical words such as paramagnetic, polynuclear and aromatic to the product to make it sound scientifically sound. "These words are actually scientific terms, but the sales literature uses them out of context and they bear little relevance to the chemical, electrical or physical phenomena occurring within or around the device."

How can you avoid buying bogus items that do not perform?

First, realize that there are many reputable engine and fuel refiners out there, Garthe says. "If these manufacturers felt there was an easy, low-cost way to meet strigent regulations on fuel economy and emissions, they would engineer that system into their new vehicles. If magnetic fuel treatment, for example, really worked as advertised, why don't vehicle manufacturers use these simple devices to meet regulatory standards?"

Another way to protect your wallet is to delay your decision until you ask a third person. "Ask local science teachers or check with your county cooperative extension office," Garthe suggests. "Engineers are a good source of information to help you evaluate a product, or you can read about the theory of the devices in a local library. Ignore testimonials of staisfied customers quoted in the product literature."

A final tip to prevent being hoaxed is to find out if the device complies to established standards or certifications, such as Underwriters Laboratory (UL), National Electrical Codes (NEC), National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) and others. If you become annoyed or are harassed by a salesperson, contact your local Better Business Bureau.

If you have additional questions, contact James Garthe by writing to 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802 or by calling (814) 865-7154.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Moving is no fun. I am overwhelmed by the amount of work that I must do to get my house in order.

The living room is presentable and the kitchen is useable but other than that the rooms need a lot of attention. We managed to set some antiques around the large floor to ceiling stone fireplace. But, they are not arranged to suit me as yet.

It seems that there are so many other commitments. I take care of our grandson while his parents move to my former home. He unrolls the toilet paper all over the bathroom floor. Then he plays with the one telephone while I try to use another one and the conversation is filled with noise. He accidentally pulled the tablecloth off the kitchen table with jelly, sugar, salt and pepper on it. He is a good child and likes to snuggle up and fall asleep when I hold him.

Having election the other Tuesday did not help my getting things in order either. As majority inspector, I spent 15 hours at the polling place. We have people from two retirement homes in our district that come to vote in droves. But, it is nice to see neighbors that we seldom meet otherwise.

Another commitment that takes time is the Sale Reports for Lancaster Farming. Some weeks there are 30 auctioneers to phone and I'm lucky to get 20 sales to type. However, I do enjoy learning the prices of sale items. So, there goes Monday morning. But tomorrow is another day.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 6

Berks Society of Farm Women Group #6, met at the Apple Dumpling Restaurant, Rte. 100, to celebrate Farm Women's Day. Seven members answered the roll call question: Are you a Farmer's Daughter? All present were Farmer's Daughters.

Naomi Mest read a poem, The Golden Chain of Friendship.

Donations were made to the Oley and Alsace Fire Company Truck Crews and to the Oley Ambulance Fund.

Plans for Christmas projects will be completed at the November meeting.

Election of officers was held. Officers elected for 1992-93 are president, Pearl Hoffman; vice president, Janet Schlegel; corresponding secretary, Erma Bauer; recording secretary, Anne Luft; treasurer, Dorothy Wagner.

Several members attended the 25th Anniversary celebration of Group #7 at Conrad Weiser High School.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Nora Schweitzer on November 19. The Berks County Dairy Princess will be present.

From Lebanon County Extension Workshops

Ideas For Holiday Eating, Decorating, Gift-Making

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PRESCOTT (Lebanon Co.) — Just in time for holiday preparation, the Lebanon County Penn State Cooperative Extension presented workshops on "I Can Do That!"

More than 1,200 attended the workshops presented November 5, 6, and 7 to learn how to make decorations, gifts, and holiday food.

"Ticked" ideas

Dressed in jumpers, cuffed shirts, earrings, and necklaces made from ticking, Christenna Stamm and Hetty Wengert demonstrated using ticking material to make grocery sacks, angels and bears used to decorate the tree, a Christmas tree skirt, napkins, aprons, lined baskets, and more.

Here are directions for a Ticked Recycled Bear.

Using recycled foam meat trays, cut out the bear pattern on this page. Paint bear with two coats of Gesso and two coats water-based paints in color you prefer. Be sure each coat of paint is dry before topping with the next coat. Dip sponge the top color and dab onto the bear to obtain a furry look.

Draw a face on the bear. Spray with clear acrylic paint.

Dress the bear with the simple pattern show on this page.

Rob Wood of Spoutwood Farm in Glen Rock showed participants how to use dried materials to make swags, wreaths, and garlands. Wood, who grows 85 varieties of herbs and flowers on his 26-acre farm, suggests wiring cranberries in shape desired to attach to wreaths, swags, and garlands.

To make a garland:

Use baling twine or roping in the length desired for a garland. Form smalls bouquet of dried flowers. Use 22-gauge florists' spool wire to wired the bouquets in an overlapping manner until you come to the end of the rope.

Wire the last bunch in reverse direction, spreading apart the previously wired bunch and inserting stems into the opeing.

Fill gaps with small sprigs of dried material by using a glue gun or florist's tape if necessary.

Winifred McGee, extension agent, told participants how to make a profit when holding craft shows and holiday bazaars.

Letie Schadler, home economist, shared ideas for family fun and recipes that will appear in future editions of Lancaster Farming.

Holiday evergreens:

Lilly Hershey encouraged participants to combine a wide variety of evergreens in holiday decorations. Holly, boxwood, bayberry, Oregon grape holly, English Ivy, magnolia, and rhododendrons can be combined with evergreens.

After the greens are cut, make sure they are kept moist and cool. Keep the cuttings in a plastic bag or standing in water. Store outside in the shade or in an unheated garage.

If the greens are for indoor decorations and are expected to last for a period of two weeks or more, dip or spay the greens with an anti-dessican to minimize moisture loss and act as a flame retardant. Sprays and dips are available from garden centers or can be made at home with the following ingredients:

Mixture 1

¼ cup boric acid
9 tablespoon borax
2 quarts water
1 teaspoon dish soap

Mixture 2

¼ cup Epson salts
5 tablespoons borax
2 quarts water
1 teaspoon dish soap

Use the mixture as a dip or apply with a spray bottle or garden sprayer.

Pinecones interspersed with dried materials adds a delightful touch to your decorating scheme.

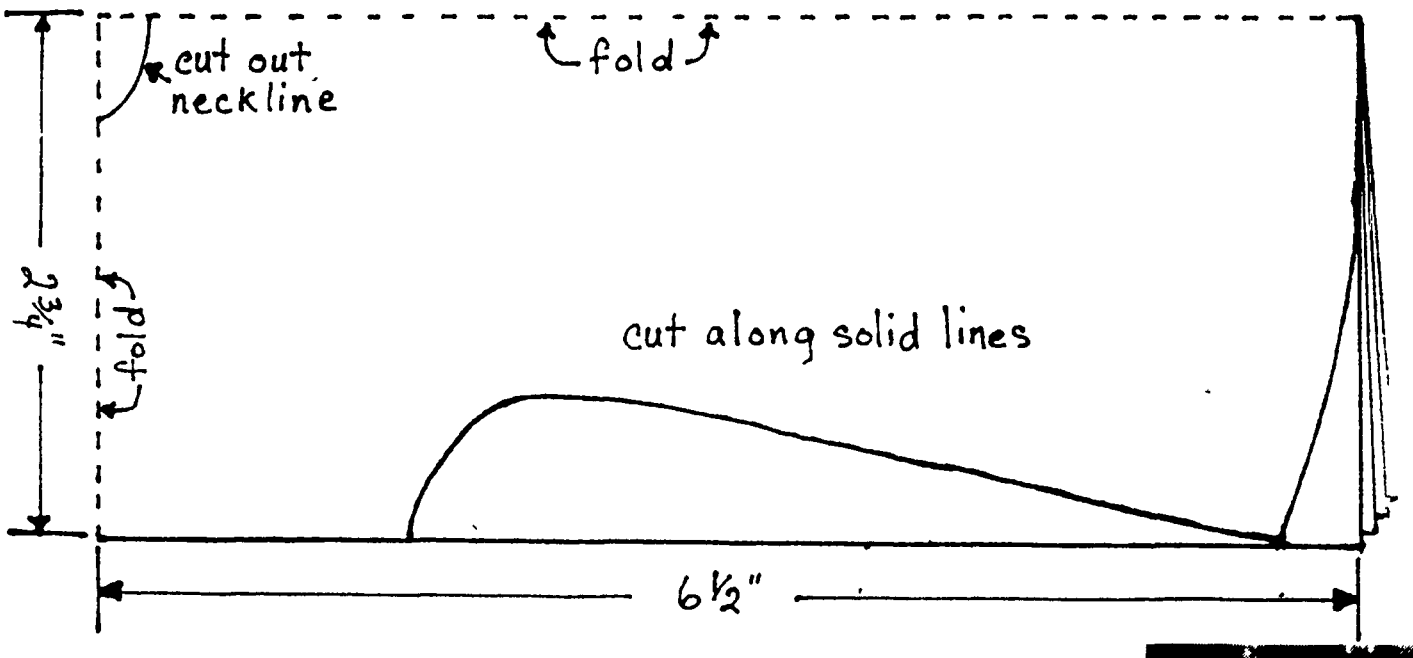
Wreath with German statice:

Start by using a straw wreath.

Wire small bunches of statice to straw wreath with florists's spool wire by overlapping previous wiring. Fill in any gaps by gluing in sprigs of statice. Decorate by gluing dried flowers into the pattern.

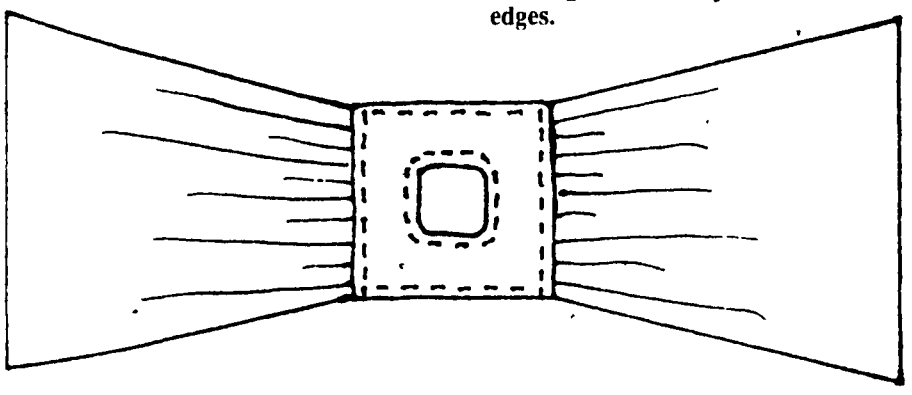
Sherry Kalbach, the dryer lint lady, was back with ideas for getting the children involved in decorating.

This swag uses a variety of greens, dried and dried materials to make a delightful decoration to hang above doorways, on windowsills, over mantels and other places.



Pinafore: Cut a 3¼-inch square of muslin for the yoke. Cut two pieces 4x6¼-inch for the skirt.

Cut a 1¼-inch square out of the center of the yoke. Gather 4x6¼-inch piece and attach with running stitch to yoke. Hem edges.



Make a swag

Starting with dried materials such as Sweet Annie, caspia, or golden rod, place two bunches with ends together in center and wire. Decorate by gluing or inserting dried flowers of your choice Place bow in center to cover ends and wire in place.

Cranberries can be wired and formed into the shape desired then placed on dried or evergreen wreaths for a holiday touch.

State 4-H Horse Show Winners

Lebanon County 4-H horse project members received nine awards at the 32nd annual State 4-H Horse Show, held recently at the State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

The State 4-H Horse Show gives 4-H'ers an opportunity to showcase their horsemanship skills. The state show culminates the year for approximately 7,000 Pennsylvania 4-H members enrolled in horse and pony clubs.

Winners in 4-H performance classes included: Susan Kropf, Elizabethtown, 1st place saddle type pleasure horse. In 4-H horse production classes, members breed and raise their own project animal. Local winners were Amy Tshudy, Annville, 1st place Thoroughbred 2 yr. old Filly and 2nd place 2 year old English Pleasure Futurity; Jonathan Bixler, Palmyra, 1st place Pony of America 2 yr. old Filly; David Bixler, Palmyra, 2nd place Pony of America Yearling; and Kristen McClellan, Lebanon, Hunter Type Pony Yearling Filly.

Several other Lebanon County horse club members participated in the state horse show. They were Kirsten Bixler, Newmanstown; Jennifer Tshudy, Annville; and Erin McClellan, Lebanon.

The primary purpose of the state 4-H horse program is to develop skills in horse management. Through competition, the 4-H'ers develop riding skills, gain self-confidence, and learn proper care of their animals. To be eligible for this show, 4-H'ers had to advance through qualifying competitions at county and district levels.

Jonathan Bixler, Palmyra, first place Pony of America 2 yr. old Filly.

FFA HAPPENINGS

York County FFA Names Scholarship Winners

Eric Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jordan, Airville, has been selected to receive the Carroll F. Thompson Scholarship. The recipient was selected by the York County Vocational Agricultural Teachers Association to receive the scholarship which is given in memory of Carroll F. Thompson who was formerly a vocational agriculture teacher at Spring Grove and Dover High Schools.

Jordan is a 1991 graduate of the Red Lion Area High School and has completed four years of vocational agriculture. He is studying wildlife and fisheries science at Penn State/York with plans to become a wildlife biologist.

Jordan participated in York County FFA forestry contests and received awards for his participation in the Pennsylvania FFA wildlife identification contest held at Penn State. Jordan's records of his wildlife projects also received awards on the county, regional, and state levels of competition.

Jordan also competed in the York County Envirothon from 1988 through 1991. He was the captain of the Red Lion team that won the state Envirothon contest and went on to win the national Envirothon contest held in Maine in early August.

Edwin Livingston, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Livingston, Dover, was selected to receive the York County FFA scholarship. Livingston is a 1991 graduate of Dover Area High School and is currently studying animal science at Penn State University with plans to become a farm manager and owner.

Livingston has served as president, parliamentarian, and treasurer of the Dover area FFA chapter and has been actively involved in the judging of livestock and exhibiting of beef cattle.

Also receiving scholarships from funds administered by the York County Vocational Agriculture Teachers are: Andrew Rittenhouse, son of Fred and Glenda Rittenhouse, Red Lion; Martin Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Miller, Felton; Nichole Willwert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Willwert, Red Lion; Mark Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Anderson, Dover; and Tanya Barr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barr, Fawn Grove.

The scholarship recipient must be a graduate of a vocational agriculture/horticulture program in York County who is continuing education in a post high school institution with selection based on their future plans, financial need, leadership activities, and scholastic performance.

Multi-Job Farm Families

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Although it may not be easy to do, holding down more than one job enables many farmers and their families to continue the lifestyle they prefer and meet personal and financial goals.

Faculty in Penn State's College of Agriculture and the University of Massachusetts have compiled and edited research on the economic and social impact of multiple job holding on farm families. The book, Multiple Job-Holding Among Farm Families, is available from the Iowa State University Press.

Editors are M. C. Hallberg, professor of agricultural economics at Penn State, Jill L. Findeis, associate professor of agricultural economics at Penn State, and Daniel A. Lass, associate professor of agricultural and resource economics at the University of Massachusetts.

Multiple Job-Holding Among Farm Families consists of papers presented at a symposium held May 1988 in Washington, D.C. The symposium focused on farm families in which one or both spouses work part- or full-time jobs in addition to farming.

The book covers reasons farmers work multiple jobs, examines recent trends and identifies the place of multiple job-holding in modern agriculture. It highlights theories about the economic behavior of multiple job-holding farm families, reviews findings of recent surveys, examines labor market factors impacting farm families and identifies public policy programs and issues.

To purchase copies of Multiple Job-Holding Among Farm Families, contact the Iowa State University Press, 2121 S. State Ave., Ames, Iowa 50010. Or contact Susan Lucke, advertising and publicity manager, at (515) 292-0155, FAX (515) 292-3348. Include $41.95 for each copy plus $2 for fourth-class postage for the first copy and $.75 postage for each additional copy. MasterCard and VISA are accepted.

TWISTER
High Efficiency Direct Drive Fan

Acme's precise engineering has matched a cambered twist propeller with continuous duty motors to form high air flow and low energy consumption fans. Combined with corrosion resistant galvanized orifice and frames, these fans offer the user maintenance free long lasting equipment suited for use in agricultural environments.

- ☐ Galvanized Construction — corrosion resistant, long lasting
- ☐ Cambered Twist Propeller — High airflow, low energy cost, high CFM/watt
- ☐ Totally Enclosed Motors — Gasketed and shielded against dust and moisture
- ☐ Premounted in Particle Board Box — Easy handling and fast installation with wire screens both sides
- ☐ Vertical Support Frame — Maintains proper alignment
- ☐ Motor wire leads for quick hook-up.
- ☐ Quite Operation.
- ☐ Direct Drive — No drive losses, no belts to slip
- ☐ Optional Discharge Diffuser Cone — Increases performance of fan without additional HP

Hoedown At Carroll County Farm Museum

The Carroll County Farm Museum celebrated twenty-five years of operation with an old-fashioned, harvest time hoedown. Guests were treated to a country style dinner under the canopies, featuring pit beef, pork-in-a-spit, broasted chicken, chicken corn soup, hot and cold cider and more.

After dinner, guests had a quick lesson in the Two Step from the Denim and Lace Dancers, and then kicked up their heels at the barn dance to the lively music of the Dixie Ramblers.

Use Proper Cooling To Avoid Food Poisoning

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — This holiday season, don't invite food poisoning to dinner. "Improper cooling of hot foods is the most common mistake made in all foodborne illness outbreaks," says Dr. Stephen Knabel, assistant professor of food science in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

Improper cooling of foods can be a problem during Thanksgiving and other large holiday celebrations where people linger over dinner. Turkey, stuffing, yams and other foods left on the table and counter can become fertile breeding ground for pathogens that cause foodbome illness.

More than 10 million cases of food poisoning are estimated to occur annually, with approximately 9,000 deaths.

"To avoid problems, don't leave cooked foods at room temperature for too long," says Knabel. "The rule of thumb is that perishable foods should spend no more than two hours at 40 to 140 degrees F. the danger zone in which bacteria can grow."

Refrigerate or freeze cooked meat and poultry within two hours after serving, or within one hour if it's a hot day (above 90 degrees F). Large cuts should be broken into smaller portions so they will cool more quickly.

Never refrigerate hot foods in the pot in which they are cooked or in large, deep containers that prevent rapid, even cooling.

Large casseroles should be divided into small, covered containers no more than three inches deep. "Your refrigerator is designed to handle hot foods without allowing other foods to warm up," Knabel says, "but to be safe, leave space around the containers to allow cold air to circulate Always keep your refrigerator at 40 degrees or below.

"Date leftovers to make sure you use them within a safe time period," he says. "Meat, poultry, vegetables and prepared dishes such as casseroles should be eaten within three days."

A recent USDA phone survey showed that many Americans don't properly cool hot foods. Sixty-seven percent would refrigerate cooked foods in the cooking pot or one large container, and 14 percent would leave cooked foods at room temperature for more than two hours.

"Pathogens that cause foodborne illness, such as salmonella and staphylococcus aureus, do not alter the taste, smell, consistency or appearance of food," Knabel says. "If you're in doubt about safety, err on the side of caution and throw the food out. Make sure to wrap it in newspaper or a plastic bag so it is inaccessible to animals or small children."

Learn To Butcher At Home

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Today's prices on fresh cuts of beef, lamb, and pork are rising steadily. A visit to the butcher, or even to the grocery store can put a dent in anyone's food budget. Now, with everyone focusing on the fat content in our diets, people are searching for even leaner cuts of meat. Pennsylvania State University's College of Agriculture can offer you an alternative to those high prices. A nine-lesson course, Dressing and Curing Meats, teaches anyone, from the farmer to the novice, how to butcher, cure, and smoke his or her own meat.

Dr. John H. Ziegler, a professor of meat science and meat technology, discusses the procedures used in slaughtering and butchering cattle, hogs, sheep, lambs, and poultry. When preparing any animal for slaughter, there are three important factors that must be considered:

- keep the animals off feed for 12-24 hours.
- provide them with all of the water they will drink and avoid overheating them.
- do not bruise or pound the animal, for this could represent a loss of meat. You must also take into consideration the health of an animal: the meat from a healthy animal is juicier and richer in flavor.

Dressing and Curing Meats also includes an extensive section on the preservation of meats. Learn which containers and wrapping materials are the most economical when freezing, wrapping and storing, and home-canning all types of meats. Use packaging materials that are:

- easy to handle.
- moisture-vapor-resistant.
- not irregularly shaped.
- easy to label and seal.
- suitable for the product.

Dr. Ziegler also teaches the art of making scrapple, liverwurst, pork sausage, corned beef, and boiled ham. He even gives detailed information on the kinds of woods used to smoke these products.

If you would like to learn more about how to butcher fresh cuts of meat or how to smoke, cure, and make fresh sausage, send $23.50 to: Dressing and Curing Meats, Course #5146, 128 Ag-Mitchell Building, University Park, PA 16802. Make checks payable to the Pennsylvania State University.

Dairy Video Educates Supermarket Personnel

TOWNSON, MD — The American Dairy Association and its regional units like the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA), have a new training tool available to supermarket retailers. It's a 10-minute video designed to provide basic product knowledge information to dairy department managers and clerks.

The video features a ficticious 20-year veteran dairy manager who has a wealth of industry knowledge coupled with experience of a consumer who enjoys the many types of dairy products.

His tour begins with a overview of fluid milk's sales performance and a brief description of its many different varieties. From there, all major categories are addressed, with special emphasis on the milk-based products like cheese, butter, and yogurt. Non milk-based products like eggs, margarine, and juice are also covered.

The video was written and co-produced by MAMMA marketing director Bill Snitcher who says, "Retailers who want to be a cut-above the rest should make the watching of this video part of the required training of their dairy department employees. From the newly hired rookie fresh out of school, to the seasoned veteran, this video contains information that can build your sales, and at the same time help your staff to answer consumers' questions."

The video will be worked in as an integral part of MAMMA's day-long dairy training workshop that is offered free of charge to all area retailers. Additional copies are available to accounts served by MAMMA in the mid-Atlantic region by calling 410-321-0266.

Livestock Notes

Pigs Grow Well On Naked (Hullness) Oats Diet

The production of naked oats (Avena nuda L.) is gaining popularity in Pennsylvania. The grain, which contains 46-68 pounds/bushel, reportedly yields well (over 70 bu/acre) and has a fairly high protein (17-20 percent) and oil (7 percent) content. Common oats (Avena sativa L.) have 27-28 percent hull, whereas naked oats have only four to five percent hull.

Typical Composition Of Naked Oats

Nutrient	Amount
Crude protein, %	17.24
Metabolizable energy, kcal/lb	1,443
Lysine, %	.68
Total fat, %	6.85
Calcium, %	.04
Phosphorus, %	.40

Research in Canada has shown that growing-finishing pigs consuming naked-oat diets fortified with vitamins and minerals perform about the same as those fed a standard corn-soybean meal diet. The following page shows the results of two studies using the Tibor cultivar.

Increasing Phosphorus Availability From Feed Grains

Phosphorus is an essential mineral for livestock. Not only is it critical for bone growth and mineralization, but it plays an important role in almost every chemical reaction in an animal's body.

However, phosphorus excreted in swine and poultry manure poses a major environmental concern. Phosphorus in manure spread on cropland can hasten the accumulation of heavy metals and inhibit nitrate breakdown in soil. Water borne phosphorus from manure runoff has been shown to increase the growth rate of algae and other aquatic plants in lakes and streams.

Phosphorus in feed grains is found in a complex form called phytate which contains the phosphate groups required by nonruminants. Feed grain phosphorus is relatively unavailable to swine and poultry because they lack the enzyme phytase required to free phosphate groups from the phytate complex. As a result, only eight percent to 16 percent of the phosphorus in corn can be used by pigs.

This is why feeds must be supplemented with some inorganic form of phosphorus such as dicalcium phosphate or monocalcium phosphate to meet nutritional requirements. Most of the supplemented phosphorus is digested and utilized by the animal while most of the phosphorus present in feed grains is excreted in manure.

Researchers from Alltech, Inc. are studying a way for swine and poultry producers to decrease concentrations of phosphorus in manure by making the phosphorus present in feed grains more available to monogastrics. The company has isolated a fungus that can produce large quantities of phytase which can be added to feed making phosphorus from grains more available. For example, phosphorus availability of corn was increased to 60 percent with the addition of .5 percent phytase.

The net result of adding phytase to feed is that less supplemental phosphorus is required, resulting in less phosphorus in manure.

Overcoming Heat Stress In Boars

Heat stress associated with the summer months is one of the leading causes of summer infertility in the swine breeding herd. Elevated environmental temperatures can reduce fertility of both males and females. However, high temperatures affect the sow herd and replacement gilt pool within a week or two, whereas the full impact heat stress of breeding boars generally is not noticed until about two months later.

The process of sperm formation in the testis and maturation in the spididymis takes anywhere from 48 to 60 days. However, a reduction in total sperm per ejaculate is evident from 22 to 80 days after heat stress. Therefore, reduced fertility due to heat stress of a breeding boar is not noticed immediately and may not be evident until some time after the heat stress has occurred, especially during fall months when temperatures are not so high.

In order to decrease the likelihood of boars suffering heat stress, several precautions can be taken:

- Check boars routinely for signs of heat stress (rapid, deep breaths; more than about 45 breaths per minute).
- Use boars for mating both earlier and later in the day when temperatures are not as high.
- Provide adequate ventilation, air speeds and/or drip coolers for boars during hot weather. Water in the form of mist is inadequate for cooling purposes because it generally doesn't reach the skin where it is needed.
- Provide at least one boar for every three sows that are weaned each week during hot summer weather as well as during the early fall months.

When environmental temperatures exceed 95°F for as few as three hours, fertility of boars may be impaired and may go unobserved for several months.

Summer Infertility Of Sows And The Use Of P.G. 600

Most reproductive problems associated with summer infertility of sows occur following lactation (decreased conception rate, anestrus, smaller subsequent litter size). These problems are evident primarily in first and second litter sows.

Several strategies have been investigated to reduce the effects of heat stress, including addition of fat to the lactation diet, boar exposure, split-litter weaning, etc. However, one potential new strategy is the use of P.G. 600.

Although Intervet America, Inc., is not currently licensed for P.G. 600 use in sows, they are pursuing approval. Recent research indicates that P.G. 600 is a useful management tool for reducing reproductive problems in sow herd during the summer and fall. Administration of P.G. 600 to both first- and second-litter sows at the time of weaning reduced the interval from weaning-to-estrus by approximately two days. Furthermore, a lower percentage of first-litter sows given P.G. 600 (15.6 percent) were anestrual during the first ten days after weaning compared with control sows (29.2 percent).

There was no difference among treated and control third-parity sows for interval to estrus and percentage of anestrual sows. Although P.G. 600 administration to first- and second-litter sows at weaning improves certain measurements of reproductive performance, the cost benefit ratio of routine use in the sow herd is questionable.

Consider a farrowing group of 12 first-parity sows that are about to be weaned and re-mated. We'll assume $.45/day for feed, labor, and facilities during this non-productive period. If all sows are treated with P.G. 600 at weaning, we would expect 10 sows in heat in an average of six day ($27) and two sows will be anestrual through ten days ($9), for a total cost of $36 for non-productive sow days with P.G. 600 use. If none of the sows are treated with P.G. 600 at weaning, then eight sows will be in heat in an average of eight days ($28.80), and four sows will be anestrual through ten days ($18), for a total cost of $46.80 for non-productive sow days without P.G. 600. Thus, we've saved $10.80 by using P.G. 600. However, P.G. 600 costs about $3.50 per dose (12 sows = $42.00), so we've actually lost about $31.20 ($42.00 - $10.80 = $31.20).

This says nothing of the effect of P.G. 600 on subsequent number born alive. In fact, subsequent number born alive was higher for untreated sow (10.55) compared with P.G. 600-treated sows (10.10) across the first three parities. If we assume one pig born alive is worth $15.00 the .45 pig/litter reduction observed in treated sows would cost $6.75/litter (.45x$15 = $6/75). So we've spent $3.50 per sow and given up $6.75 in pigs born alive.

There may be circumstances on certain farms where limited use of P.G. 600 use is warranted. However, even if P.G. 600 were approved for use in sows, the economics associated with routine use of the product are questionable.

EMC Virus Causing Losses In U.S. Hogs

Encephalomyelocarditis (EMC) virus is causing losses in U.S. hogs. The virus has been recognized in several countries during the past 30 years, but only in the past few years has it been a widespread cause of disease.

The major signs of EMC infection are reproductive failure, stillbirths, mummification, and weak newborns. Sometimes affected sows will have fevers, have depressed appetites, and show signs of respiratory disease, but these symptoms don't occur in all EMC-affected herds.

EMC infection is diagnosed by isolation of the virus or by serologic tests on stillborn or weak pigs. Blood testing of sows has not proven useful. The virus affects brain and heart muscle, as well as other body tissues. Several other diseases cause reproductive failure and death losses in baby pigs; these other conditions must be ruled out in addition to finding evidence of EMC virus in order to make a diagnosis of encephalomyelocarditis.

In several midwestern states, a disease has appeared that is being called mystery pig disease. Affected farms have suffered heavy economic losses from both reproductive and respiratory infections. Some researchers have implicated EMC virus as the cause or one of the causes of mystery pig disease. This has not been proven.

A vaccine is available against EMC. Little is known at this time about the effectiveness and usefulness of this vaccine. If you suspect EMC in your herd, contact your veterinarian for assistance in making a diagnosis.

Marketing In The 1990s

Competition from other meats, an unstable economy and many other variables of consumer demand create a challenging marketing environment for beef. Successful marketing of beef products in the 1990s will require careful planning that recognizes these factors. This planning must be based on solid research, including evaluation of current beef programs, proper product positioning, and determining the best ways for delivering marketing messages to the right audiences.

That's just what a new checkoff-funded study will do. The research, carried out by Booz-Allen, Hamilton, Inc., will lay the marketing foundation for effective and efficient use of checkoff dollars in the coming decade. By assessing where checkoff programs have been and should be going, the study will help reach future marketing goals of the beef industry.

Economic Impact Of The Beef Checkoff Program

The Beef Promotion and Research Act of 1985 authorized the U.S. beef industry to develop and implement national programs for enhancing consumer demand for beef. The programs are underwritten through an assessment of $1 per head of livestock each time a bovine live animal, regardless of age, is sold. Half of the checkoff funds remain at the state level to support local programs and the remaining dollars are sent to the Beef Board for national programs. Beef checkoff assessments started with the last quarter of 1986. For the quarters from 86:4 through 90:1 a total of $283.88 million was collected and $127.16 million was spent on national checkoff programs.

Have promotion and information programs had a measurable impact on consumer demand for beef? This question is addressed using economic models that provide a direct measure of the economic impact of the national beef checkoff programs. The programs' impact at the live weight, boxed beef and retail market levels is shown and the rate of return to beef producers is calculated. Quarterly checkoff expenditures for promotion, consumer information and industry information are included in the demand estimates using data for the quarters 79:2 through 90:1. Live weight revenues are estimated using actual checkoff expenditures for the quarters 87:1 through 90:1. These estimated revenues are then compared to revenues with checkoff dollars set to zero and with checkoff dollars set to $1.5 million per quarter. The $1.5 million per quarter level is used to allow for the continuation of beef program expenditures at values near that which were in effect immediately prior to enactment of the national beef checkoff. The models are used to estimate economic effects from different expenditure levels as well as changes in other variables influencing the demand for beef.

The analyses show the national beef checkoff expenditures for promotion, consumer information and industry information have a positive and significant impact on the demand for beef. There is a strong one quarter lagged effect from the programs. That is, programs from the previous quarter have a significant effect on the current demand for beef. The checkoff effect is significant at the live weight, boxed beef, and retail market levels. The results indicate that benefits from the programs are being reflected back to the producer level.

As shown in Table 1, live weight prices are estimated to be 2.73 cents per pound greater as a direct result of the programs for the quarters 87:1-90:1. This gain represents a 4.5 percent increase in live weight prices. When comparing the price gains against the assumption that some programs would have existed without the national checkoff, the live weight price is shown to increase by 1.129 cents per pound or by 1.82 percent. Price changes at the boxed beef and retail levels are calculated in a similar manner. Boxed beef and retail price gains are expressed in a live weight equivalent value in the lower portion of Table 1. Comparing these live weight equivalent values show the checkoff price changes to be close in value at each market level.

The rate of return is based on actual expenditures and is the average for the period 87:1-90:1. This average does not reflect the rate of return to the incremental dollars spent. The empirical analysis shows a substantial decline in the marginal return to the programs as expenditures increase. The actual rate of return will vary depending on the quarter evaluated and the levels of other economic variables.

Many other variables cause

Facts About Today's Families

• In an independently conducted national survey sponsored by Fleischmann's Yeast, 88 percent of adults said they feel that a significant problem exists with developing values in today's youth.

In addition, 64 percent said that parents need more knowledge and support to develop values in young people today.

• 60 percent of Americans agreed that family values are losing ground, according to a survey by Massachusetts Mutual Life.

• The Los Angeles Times/Orange County Edition found that 82 percent of women and 71 percent of men said they'd sacrifice career goals (e.g. turn down a new job or promotion) that would take time away from the family.

• In the same poll, 64 percent of men and women from 18 to 29 years of age want to spend more time with their own children than their parents spent with them.

• Time Magazine and CNN found that 81 percent of adults said it was more important these days to spend time with their families as a priority.

• Another survey by the Los Angeles Times and DDB Needham revealed that 86 percent of respondents think that eating dinner with their families is very important.

major changes in the demand for beef. Increases in substitute products such as the supply of pork and poultry can reduce beef demand. Likewise, consumers' increasing preference for white meat has a negative effect on beef demand. The models show these effects and they are both significant and important in terms of the magnitude of impact on beef demand. While the checkoff programs are significant, they alone cannot be used to completely offset negative effects from increasing supplies of competing products and changes in consumer preferences. Checkoff programs cannot offset the negative price effect from consumers shifting to more white meats, at least based on experiences for current programs. Income is shown to have a significant positive impact on beef demand. If real incomes grow between 5 percent to 6 percent annually, positive gains in beef demand due to income would more than offset the negative effects from changing consumer preferences.

Total live weight beef revenue gains net of by-products are estimated to be either $3.612 billion or $1.493 billion, depending on the base from which the revenue gains are estimated (see Table 2). The rate of return to producers are estimated by dividing the revenue gains by the total assessments and by the checkoff expenditures. Assuming some programs would have existed without the national checkoff, the rate of return was estimated to be 1:5.2 for all assessments or 1:13.4 when compared to just the three program areas. With either method for determining the rate, the rate of return to the national beef checkoff programs has been substantial.

Bad Year For Wool

Anyone who sold wool this year knows that wool prices were exceptionally low. There were a number of reasons for this. Australia and New Zealand had a great deal of wool in storage and that kept world prices down.

The recession also played a part, and major buyers of wool, countries like China and the Soviet Union, did not purchase as much as in other years.

While there was a lot of grumbling about the low prices, most producers still sold their wool, figuring that a few pennies was better than no pennies. Because prices were low throughout the country, it will produce a low national average price for 1991. This is actually good news because it will lead to a higher wool incentive payment next April.

The Wool Incentive Payment is a government program which provides an incentive to keep sheep producers in business. The money comes from duties on imported wool. You must sign up for this program at your local ASCS office. Some years (as in 1990) it pays you oave 100% of what you originally got for your wool.

With low wool prices, we need to keep the economics of raising sheep in perspective. Even in good years, wool from any ewe is worth no more than five to ten dollars, unless you sell directly to handspinners. However, if that ewe has, on average, one and a half lambs per year, and you sell those lambs for $60 each, your income from the lambs is $90. While we always want a good wool market, the lamb market is much more important to the health of the sheep industry.

Plan To Operate Tractors Safely

Tractors have contributed immeasurably to famm productivity and helped make it possible for each farmer to feed nearly 100 others.

To continue doing so, farmers must operate tractors safety. It's a good idea even for experienced operators to review the following guidelines periodically:

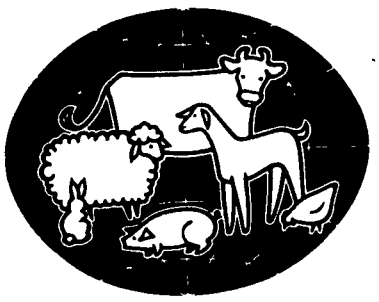
- Know your tractor and how to use it safely. Review the safety precautions in the operator's manual regularly.
- Be sure your tractor is ready and that you are properly dressed for work. Wear clothing that cannot be snagged or entangled and proper personal protective equipment for job conditions.
- Train new and inexperienced operators. Have them review the operator's manual before operating the tractor.
- Don't allow riders, particularly children. Teach them to drive only when they have developed the maturity, size, and strength to handle a tractor safety.
- Overturns are a leading cause of tractor deaths. Install a rollover protective structure (ROPS) with safety belt on tractors where they can be added. Always wear your safety belt.
- Disengage drives and turn off the engine before leaving the tractor operator's station.
- Stay clear of moving parts and keep others away.
- Check equipment before starting. Make sure guarding is in place and working.
- Repair hydraulic leaks and tighten loose fittings.
- Check for bystanders before you start or move equipment.
- Hitch towed loads only to the drawbar. When using the three-point hitch, add front weights as necessary to maintain stability and prevent steering problems.
- Add rear weight when using a front-end loader. Travel with the load low to maintain stability and visibility.
- Never "bypass" start at the starter, the ground or elsewhere, as you then bypass the safety interlocks. "Boost" start only as recommended in your tractor operator's manual.
- Use flashing warning lights, a legible slow-moving vehicle (SMV) emblem, and other lights to see and be seen on public roads. Obey all traffic laws.

Lamb Industry Probe

You may have read the article in the Sunbury Daily Item concerning the Justice Department's investigation of the lamb industry. The heart of the issue is the steady decline in prices received by sheep producers for lamb on the hoof compared to retail prices which have remained the same or increased.

An estimated 3,000 to 4,000 sheep producers have been driven out of business due to the prolonged depressed market prices which have been about 20 dollars per hundred weight under cost of production.

Anyone with evidence of a monopoly or price setting, or any other information regarding the lamb investigation, may be reported to Bruce Yamanaga, Justice Department Attorney, phone (202) 224-3424.



Give A Cow For Christmas

Lititz (Lancaster Co.) — The Lititz Church of the Brethren will host the fourth annual Heifer Project International "Living Gift Fair" November 23, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Sponsored by HPI and an ecumenical group of local volunteers, the fair enables people to deal with two problems at once — holiday shopping and global hunger.

Shoppers purchase animals or shares of animals in the name of a friend. The friend receives an attractive HPI gift card. A family in need receives the HPI animal that is purchased. Colorfully decorated tables provide information about how the HPI animals benefit poor families in the U.S. and around the world.

Shoppers at the fair will be able to choose from a variety of HPI animals, ranging from the more traditional — cows, goats, pigs, sheep, and rabbits — to the more exotic — yaks, water buffalo, and honeybees.

"The unique thing about the Living Gift Fair," says volunteer fair coordinator Dan Fitzkee, of Manheim, "is that you can buy gifts for loved ones and help a needy family at

4-H HAPPENINGS

Kelly Carnegie, Windsor, York Co., placed first in Western Pleasure Horses over 14 senior.

York 4-H Horse Show Winners

York County 4-H Horse Club members recieved three first place awards at the 32nd annual state 4-H Horse Show at the State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

First Place York County winner in 4-H performance classes was Kelly Carnegie, Windsor, who was 1st in western pleasure horses (over 14.0 hands, senior rider).

In 4-H horse production classes, members breed and raise their own project animal. Local winners Alisha Smeltzer of Felton won first place with her Paint 2-year-old Gelding and Nicole Bamford of Dover was first with her Hunter Type Pony Yearling and 2 year-old Gelding.

Several other York County horse club members received recognition in the state contest. They were Stacy Emig, Red Lion, third in Western Pleasure Horses (over 14.0 hands, junior rider); Kara Kyler, Camp Hill, was third in Pole Bending Horse; Bred Coulson, Dover, placed second in Clover Leaf Barrel Race Pony; Tamara Sebright, Wellsville, placed second in Raised Box Keyhole Horse; Kimberly Kurtz, Dover, was third in Hunter Seat Equitation Jr. Div.; Page Darney, New Cumberland, placed third in Working Hunter ponies; Casey Fitzpatrick, York, was secondin Hunter Hack Ponies; Billie Sue Workman, Spring Grove, took second place in Appaloosa Yearling Filly; Nicole Bamford, Dover was third in two-year-old English Pleasure Futurity, and Jessica Breese, Glen Rock was second in Percheron colt of this year and 2-year-old Gelding.

Beef Club Honors Henry Stouffer Construction

The Franklin County 4-H Beef Club held their annual Awards and Buyers Banquet at the Kauffman Community Center recently.

Nicole Lebo won best project book followed by David Sheiss, Matt Hawbaker, Cheryl Hawbaker, and Crystal Meyers.

Valerie Bittinger, Matt Hawbaker, and Benjamin Schellhase all received Rookie of the Year awards.

Graduating members Trina Eshleman, Nicole Lebo, and Darren Meyers received plaques and shared 4-H memories and moments with the group.

A special Buyers Award was given to Henry Stouffer, a Greencastle building contractor. He received a walnut clock plaque for supporting the Beef Club's Sale for the past 20 years. Stouffer also shared some of his experiences as a 4-H leader and how he has made good friends with the club's members.

Regina Lebo was given a desk clock plaque for serving as project leader for two years. Club leader, Leon Lebo, was given a 4-H designed sweat shirt for leading the club.

Somerset Co. 4-H Horse Show

Somerset County 4-H Horse Club members received awards at the 32nd annual state 4-H Horse Show at the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

County winners in 4-H performance classes were open trail pony, Mary Ann Pyle, Rockwood; pole bending pony, Cindy Strelko, Boswell; raised box keyhole horse, Candy Monica Jubara, Stoystown; hunter ponies under saddle, Mary Ann Pyle, Rockwood; working hunter ponies, Mary Ann Plye, Rockwood; and pelasure pony driving, Michael S. Ray, Somerset. Several other Somerset County Horse Club members received recognition in the state contest.

The competition gave 4-H'ers an opportunity to display their horsemanship skills. The primary purpose of the state 4-H horse program is to develop skills in horse management. Through competition, the 4-H'ers develop riding skills, gain self-confidence, and learn proper care of animals.

Adams Co. 4-H Awards Banquet

The Melvin R. Durboraw Memorial Award for dedicated leadership was established and presented by the Adams County 4-H Dairy Club to Mrs. Carolyn Durboraw at the club's 27th annual awards banquet recently in New Chester.

Club President Beau Ramsburg presided at the meeting and presented the award which will be rotated in recognition of unselfish service to the dairy club.

Melvin Durboraw, a volunteer leader with 32 years of service to the dairy club, died on August 22. The banquet was dedicated to his memory.

Joy Hess of Gettysburg was recognized as the Outstanding Member for the year, Beau Ramsburg of Gettysburg received the Junior Award, and Susan Myers of Littlestown was presented the Novice Award.

Owner-breeder awards were presented as follows: for Brown Swiss, the award sponsored by Ira Boyer of ABS was presented to Joy Hess; for Jerseys, the award sponsored by James Ulrich of Select Sires, was presented to Susan Myers; and for Holsteins, the award sponsored by Brown Valley Farms, was presented to Jayne Hess of Gettysburg.

Susan Myers was recognized as champion fitter and Carrie Stevens of York Springs was the reserve champion fitter. Showmanship Awards were presented as follows: Mini-Showman, Susan Myers; reserve Mini-Showman, Anthony Hill of York Springs. Intermediate showman, Carrie Stevens; reserve intermediate showman, Joy Hess. Senior showman, Jayne Hess; and reserve senior showman, Christine Waybright of Gettysburg.

Breed championship ribbons earned at the dairy show during the Adams County 4-H Fair this year were distributed together with project merit ribbons and completion pins.

Dairy Princess Jayne Hess assisted by Little Dairy Miss Erin Deputy of East Berlin presented a dairy products promotional skit entitled "Goldilocks."

Jennie Hess, York County dairy extension agent and former member of the Adams County 4-H Dairy Club, spoke on "What's Next," an outline of career opportunities for young people in agriculture. She described professional careers in research, agribusiness, and production agriculture, making the point that more job openings exist than there are qualified applicants to fill them.

Volunteer leaders Tom Murren of Hanover, Ginger Myers and Tim Brown of Littlestown, Alan Zepp, and Jeff and Mary Kay Roche of New Oxford presented the awards and made remarks, paying tribute to Mel Durboraw, expressing appreciation for parental support and encouraging the members.

County extension agent Thomas E. Piper presented supporting remarks and presented a slide-illustrated review of dairy club activities in 1991 and beyond.

The following individuals were elected to serve as officers for the 4-H Dairy Club in 1992: president, Beau Ramsburg; vice president, Jayne Hess; secretary, Joy Hess; treasurer, Melissa Wenger; news reporters, Anthony Hill and Katie Ramsburg; song/game leader, Heidi King; historian, Carrie Stevens; and senators, Melissa and Melinda Wenger.

4-H Achievement Recognition Program

The 1991 Sullivan 4-H Achievement Recognition Program was held recently at the Laporte United Methodist Home. The evening began with a game led by Mary Lambert, 4-H leader. Jeff Itle

Gail Rishel

York County 4-H'er Recognized

At a recent competition at Penn State, Jeff Itle of Lewisberry and Gail Rishel of Seven Valleys have been selected as the leading 4-H members in Pennsylvania in the Safety National Awards program. Jeff is the son of Charles and Nancy Itle, and is a member of the Red Land Community 4-H Club. Gail is the daughter of Richard and Rebecca Rishel, and is a member of the Glen Rock Community 4-H Club.

In recognition of this accomplishment, Jeff and Gail will be attending the five-day National 4-H Congress at the Chicago Hilton and Towers in December as guests of GMC Truck Division, General Motors Corporation. This program, attended by more than 1,500 4-H members from across the country is filled with recognition events and education tours and programs.

The path to Chicago began more than 10 years ago when Jeff and Gail both became a 4-H members. This spring, Jeff and Gail were selected to represent York County in state competition. Following a review of their 4-H records, and personal interview, they were selected to represent Pennsylvania at the National 4-H Congress.

Elyssa Hurlbut, nutrition education specialist with the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC), pictured left, explains the nutritional benefits derived from meals which include milk and other dairy products at the recent Eastern Dairy Deli Taste Show. Randy Scroger, center, and Bob Axelrad, right, dairy marketing specialists in the consumer promotion department of ADADC, also spoke with retailers about featuring dairy items. The Taste Show is a yearly event showcasing foods available to retailers and food service directors.

the same time."

What's more, says Dan, the HPI requirement that recipients "pass on the gift" by giving the first offspring of their animal to another family in need assures that your gift will keep on giving.

In addition to animals, shoppers will also be able to choose from homemade baked goods, donated arts and crafts items, SERRV Self-Help Handcrafts from Third World countries, and more.

Homemade soups and sandwiches will be on sale for lunch, and a Petting Zoo of live animals, like the ones HPI ships around the world, is sure to please children.

Heifer Project International is a 46-year-old, non-profit development agency that alleviates world hunger and poverty by giving poor families in more than 35 countries "living gifts" of animals and the training required to care for the animals. "You don't get an animal until you have the facilities and know-how to care for it," Dan Fitzkee explains.

Last year's Living Gift Fair raised about $7,500; enough to send either 375 rabbits, 62 goats and sheep, 15 dairy heifers, or 75,000 fish to people in need.

Donations of arts and crafts and baked goods will be accepted up to the day of the fair. For more information, contact Dan Fitzkee at (717) 665-5743.

The Lititz Church of the Brethren is located at 300 W. Orange St., in Lititz, directly across from Warwick High School.

LUTHER SMITH
Multicounty Farm
Management Agent

This is the second part of a three-part series on farm planning, focusing on the use of farm budgets in the planning process.

So far we have looked at what planning and budgeting are, how they are used, and why they are important. The next step is to look at some basic principles associated with budgeting and the steps involved in creating farm budgets.

Budgeting Principles

To make the budgeting process easier, there some basic principles that we need to understand. All budgeting involves one or more of five fundamental economic principles.

• Invest more if returns increase, as long as the increased costs are less than the increased returns (income) from an increase of production. Example: Increased fertilizer that increases yields and the income from the increased yields is greater than the expense from the increased fertilizer.

• Invest as little as possible in costs, while maintaining production (output). Substitute one input for another as long as the new input is less in cost than the present one.

• Invest in a different product if the return is greater. While costs remain constant, replace present production (output) with another product as long as the increased value of the new product is greater than the value of the one it is replacing, which results in greater profits. Example: Corn for grain versus corn for silage.

• Invest more where it will make the largest return. With limited resources (land, labor, capital, and management), use each unit of resource where it will generate the greatest return.

• Discount for time and risk. When different challenges (problems) involve different time periods and/or risks, discount (adjust) these values to compensate for these differences to make sound comparisons. Example: An acre planted to corn in 1989 vs. that same acre planted to corn in 1991. Risk difference: Drier in 1991.

These principles will not come into play in all budgets and neither are they limited to a particular type of budget. The type of budget will determine what is to be planned while the principles will be used as needed to make decisions.

The foundation has been laid for a better understanding of the budgeting process. Now let us look at the steps involved in formulating a farm budget.

Steps In Budgeting

• Evaluate the business and family goals. If you don't have any, now is the time to make some and write them down on paper. Goals give direction and motivation to planning.

• Inventory the resources that are available for use. Keep in mind the four factors of production: capital, land, labor, and management. This includes your ability as a manager. Don't sell yourself short. List all your strengths and weaknesses, build on the strengths, and work at improving your weaknesses.

• Select the physical data that will be used in the budgeting process. Examples: Your records for the past two five years and the latest research data from Penn State on a particular crop.

• Determine the enterprises to be budgeted. Examples: Dairy, heifers (replacements), corn, hay, beef finishing, sow farrowing, lambs, and broilers.

• Select the appropriate market prices to be used and use reliable sources for this information. There are many sources for national, state, and local prices. A good sources is Lancaster Farming, which publishes prices weekly. Start collecting this information on a weekly basis. It will not only make a good reference, but you can plot it on a graph and look for trends.

• Calculate the expected costs and returns. Be sure to include all costs and not to overestimate returns.

Remember to use accurate and reliable sources for your information. The best source of information is your farm records. The budget is a comprehensive plan for the future and will establish a business direction for your farming operation.

Next week, part three will look at the different types of budgets and how they are used. Contact your county Penn State extension office for more information on farm planning and budgeting.

Test Soils For Spring Planting

Robert E. Leiby
David L. Dunbar
Lehigh Co. Agents

If you haven't done it already, now is a good time to test the fields you expect to plant next spring. Soil testing tells you the difference between the plant nutrients in the soil and the nutrients your crop will require.

Testing increases your chances of making a profit by helping you avoid both underfertilization and overfertilization.

Consider the following guidelines for taking soil samples:

• Don't wait. Sample before the soil freezes and give yourself plenty of time to plan and arrange fertilizer/lime applications. Some materials can be applied before winter arrives.

• In tilled fields, sample to the depth to which you till.

• Take two composite samples from no-till fields: one six inches deep for lime and fertilizer recommendations; and one two inches deep to monitor surface acidity.

• Sample permanent pastures to a depth of three to four inches.

• Take subsamples from 15 to 20 sites randomly distributed throughout each field. One composite sample should represent no more than 20 acres.

• Sample between rows. Avoid old fence rows, dead furrows, and other spots that might not represent most of a field.

• Sample problem areas separately.

• Collect and mix subsamples in a clean container.

• Remove stones, roots, etc., and allow composite samples to air dry.

• Complete the soil test information sheet as carefully as possible. Be sure to include the name of the soil.

Extension and Soil Conservation Service offices can help you identify the soils in your fields.

Consult the "Penn State Agronomy Guide" for more useful information relating to soil fertility management.

Forage Conference

The annual Forage Conference, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council and Penn State, will be held on November 26 in Lancaster at the Lancaster Host.

The theme of this year's conference is "Forages: Changes and Challenges." The changes and challenges that will be addressed include obtaining and measuring forage quality and the role of forages in nutrient management.

Speakers will include specialists from Pennsylvania, New York, and Wisconsin to provide the latest in information and technology on these topics.

Participants will have the opportunity to compare visual and laboratory evaluations of hay quality. A producer panel will discuss how they prioritize spring field work between planting corn and making hay.

Conference schedules and registration forms are available from county extension offices. Registration deadline is November 15.

SWCS Meeting

ANKENY, Iowa — "Resource Management in a Dynamic World" will be the theme of the 47th annual meeting of the Soil and Water Conservation Society, August 9-12, 1992, at the Baltimore Convention Center in Baltimore, Md.

The meeting will emphasize the role human resources plays in using and managing natural resources. Three subthemes will be followed throughout the program format: environmental values, economics, and policy.

Cochairs of the Program Committee for the meeting are Ted L. Napier, professor of agricultural economics and rural sociology, Ohio State University, Columbus, and Lawrence W. Libby, professor and chairman, Department of Food and Resource Economics, University of Florida, Gainesville.

Hosts for the meeting will be the Maryland Old Line, Pocomoke, and Washington, D.C. Chapters of the Society. Chairman of the chapters' local arrangements committee is Bill Boyer, public affairs specialist for the Soil Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, College Park, Md.

Calls for session proposals and papers and posters are available from SWCS headquarters.

Southeast Cattlemen Elect Officers

VIRGINVILLE (Berks Co.) — The Berks/Southeast Cattlemen's Association held its third annual banquet recently. Director Bill Wiest of Leesport Auction served as committee chairman of the event, which featured a family-style roast beef dinner.

Director Geri Gammel, treasurer of the Association, did not seek re-election during the general membership meeting. She will complete her term in office in January 1992. Nominating committee cochairman, Charlie Nehf of Kempton, announced the results of the election for the director position. Elected to serve a three-year term was William Trusty, Mohnton. The general membership also voted to amend the Association bylaws to provide for an expanded membership, reflecting memberships from a growing number of southeastern Pennsylvania counties.

The 1991 Berks/Southeast Cattlemen's awards were presented in three categories: commercial cattleman, seedstock breeder, and industry service person.

Clyde Brubaker of Lebanon County was chosen as Commercial Cattleman of the Year. Brubaker, an employee of Vigortone Ag Products Inc. for the past 15 years, maintains a small herd of crossbred cattle in partnership with his father-in-law, Elmer Stehman. Brubaker serves as a livestock judge at local fairs, participates in the Dutch Country Calf Sale, and serves as 4-H Beef Club leader in Lebanon County.

The Seedstock Breeder of the Year award went to Susan Smith of Rolling Shade Polled Herefords, Montgomery County. Smith breeds registered Polled Hereford cattle, maintaining a 12-head brood cow base from which she produces showring winners and bulls that have sold at the breed's prestigious national sale. She travels across the country with a show string of cattle owned by Rolling Shade and other cattle producers as she campaigns them for honors as part of her custom cattle fitting service. Smith participated in the Dutch Country Calf Sales as both consignor and youth conference speaker.

Dr. M. Lynn Sammons of Willow Creek Animal Hospital, Reading, was chosen to receive the Industry Service Award. Dr. Sammons' clinic services a five-county area in Southeastern Pennsylvania, providing 24-hour service and routinely assisting 30 beef breeding herds and 20 beef feeder operations.

The Association also honored Alice Strause of Hamburg, who served as the Beef Industry Representative for two years. Alice is a student at Hamburg High School and has shown 4-H beef steer projects for the past several years.

Beef industry representative for the Berks/Southeast Cattlemen's Association was Alice Strause of Hamburg. Alice completed her two-year term during the association's annual banquet and general membership meeting. Sheila Miller, association president, and future beef promoter Emilie Miller, 6, present Alice with a gift.

Commercial Cattleman of 1992 for the Berks/Southeast Cattlemen's Association was Clyde Brubaker, of Lebanon. Presenting the award is Sheila Miller, association president.

Geri Gammel, treasurer of the Berks/Southeast Cattlemen's Association, left, accepts a special gift from President Sheila Miller. Gammel will be stepping down as a director in January.

Agway Introduces Advancement In Dairy Cow Comfort

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairy farmers spend a lot of time making sure cows have clean, comfortable bedding in their stalls. It is a costly and bothersome task that is a dairy farm fact of life.

Agway Farm Systems has introduced a new "cow mattress" that, according to researchers, will change the way dairy farmers think about stall maintenance. The RestEZ™ Cow Mattress is a new product developed on the Agway Research Farm in Tully, N.Y., and tested at a variety of facilities across the country.

RestEZ is a cut-to-order polypropylene woven fabric cover that holds stuffing materials such as sawdust, reducing bedding costs by as much as 50 percent. The system is designed to reduce the amount of bedding that needs to be continually changed, while making it easier to clean stall areas.

In addition to making life a little easier for farmers, RestEZ is also beneficial to cattle health. Research conducted at Michigan State University's Kellogg Farm since 1989 has proven that the cow mattress system decreases cattle feet and leg injuries. Providing a more comfortable stall area also helps reduce stress on dairy cattle.

"The RestEZ cow mattress provides dairy farmers with a durable, cost-efficient method to handle stall bedding needs. The system has been tested for the last two years and has shown a variety of advantages over traditional stall bedding techniques," said Dr. Stan Weeks of Agway's Farm Systems Research and Applied Technology Department. "You can significantly reduce the amount of bedding that needs to be placed in the stall while improving comfort for the animal. This reduces costs and helps improve the effectiveness of cleaning the barn."

The RestEZ cow mattress is cut to order to fit any stall shape and size. The system is available at participating Agway locations and through Agway Farm Systems representatives.

A.B.C. Groff, Inc. Takes On Takeuchi Line

ATLANTA, Ga. — Takeuchi Manufacturing (U.S.), Ltd. announced that A.B.C. Groff, Inc., New Holland, Pennsylvania, has been named as a dealer for Takeuchi compact or "mini" tracked hydraulic excavators.

A.B.C. Groff, Inc. will provide sales, service, and parts backup on the Takeuchi compact line of six fuel efficient models ranging in size from 3,090 pounds to 15,770 pounds., with digging depths from 7 feet to 14 feet. These increasingly popular and versatile excavators are providing the construction and rental industries with greater ability for matching machine performance to job size.

All Takeuchi excavators come equipped with dozer blades for grading and backfilling, and with auxiliary hydraulic circuits for quick hookup to such tools as hydraulic breakers, compactors and augers, making them efficient demolition, compaction and drilling machines. Options include heated cabs, rubber tracks, and extendable dippersticks on some models.

Takeuchi, the U.S. market leader, introduced its compact excavators to this country in 1979, and its equipment has established a reputation for productivity, durability, and minimum downtime. Complete product information and demonstrations of the Takeuchi excavators can be obtained by contacting A.B.C. Groff, Inc. at (717) 354-4191.

The Gehlmax articulated loader provides an SAE operating load rating of nearly 3,000 pounds. The standard 72-inch bucket has a capacity of 27 cubic feet.

Articulated Loader Offers Best Of Both Worlds

WEST BEND, Wis. — The new Gehlmax™ KL405 articulated loader combines the best features of skid-steer loaders and conventional tractor loaders to provide unmatched power and maneuverability.

"The Gehlmax complements our complete line of skid loaders and gives farmers a new choice for heavy-duty material handling jobs," said Brad Boncher, Gehl product development manager for material handling equipment.

This loader is ideal for the growing number of farm chores that require more muscle. These include handling silage in bunker or trench silos, large-scale manure hauling, loading feed ingredients into mixer feeders, stacking large round and square bales, and other applications where maneuverability and large lift capacity are important.

The Gehlmax atriculated loader provides an SAE operating load rating of nearly 3,000 pounds. The standard 72-inch bucket has a capacity of 27 cubic feet.

Powered by a reliable Perkins diesel engine, the Gehlmax features four-wheel-drive articulated steering, self-leveling bucket action, a hinge pin height of nearly 10 feet, and a dump height of over seven feet three inches.

A fully automatic hydrostatic transmission (with load sensing system) is controlled by a forward/reverse rocker switch. This switch is located on the directional/loader control joystick for easy operation. Standard features on the Gehlmax articulated loader include 12.5/80-18 Sur-Grip tires, ROPS/FOPS cab with loader and wiper, Quick-Lock attachment system, and auxiliary hydraulics.

Tractor Book Leaves Readers Spellbound

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. — Tractors. Exciting? In a word, YES!

The latest publication by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers chronicles the development of John Deere tractors from 1960 to 1990 in a style that will have even casual readers spellbound.

The book, "John Deere Tractors and Equipment, Volume Two," takes the reader behind the scenes at the John Deere plants and into the minds of the engineers who design the gleaming green-and-yellow workhorses.

Why were certain pieces of equipment designed the way they were, and how did engineers blend together a dramatic growth in horsepower with state-of-the-art operator comfort?

Those questions and hundreds of others are answered in the latest hardbound edition, which picks up the John Deere story where Volume One left off.

It's the inside story of tractors and equipment — not just the steel and rubber — but the plans made, the secrets kept, the roads explored but not taken, and some ingenious developments that had to be shelved.

Authors Don Macmillan and Roy Harrington detail the "modern" John Deere in an enjoyable and informative 400 pages. More than half the book, with a price list of $37.50, is devoted to photographs, including some 350 in full color and many which have never before been published.

The first part of the book reports how the company developed its "Long Green Line" and branched out into industrial equipment, consumer products, and overseas ventures during the 1960s, 1970s, and 1980s. It also provides cross sections — the "state of the line" during various periods of the 30 years.

The latter part of the volume covers the development of each type of machine with both the collector's and engineer's devotion to detail. The reader is given two slants on what happened, a novel approach which helps set the book apart from everything else in its field.

Macmillan, of Devizes, England, is the author of Volume One of the John Deere history, and coordinator of the Two-Cylinder Club for Europe. He was a well-known John Deere dealer in the United Kingdom, and has authored two other books and numerous articles on John Deere tractors and combines.

Harrington contributes a unique engineering perspective, having been employed at John Deere during four decades. His jobs included serving as manager of the product development department and later as manager of the experimental farm near Moline, Ill. He also holds 21 farm equipment patents.

Russell Jones collaborated on both volumes and has published articles and books on tractors and farm equipment. He is Europe's largest supplier of rare books and catalogs covering farm machinery and steam vehicles.

ASAE, which publishes a wide range of literature to help improve agri-business and serves as a clearinghouse of related information, is located at 2950 Niles Road, St. Joseph, MI 49085-9659 (616) 429-0300.

New Spring Varieties

YORK (York Co.) — Seedway, Inc. announces the release of three new medium to full season hybrid field corn varieties which will be available for 1992 planting.

Eastland 599, 107 days NY/105 days CCB is a new single cross with outstanding yield potential combined with outstanding standability. Grain quality has been excellent in 1991 trials observed at many Northeastern sites. Growth habit is very upright leaved, with good general plant health. This includes some grey leaf spot tolerance. E599 should produce top quality silage and superior cash grain yields.

Eastland 7810, 115 days NY/113 days CCB combines consistently high yield potential with improved stalk quality compared to similar maturity hybrids. E7810 has shown excellent grey leaf spot tolerance making it an outstanding selection for environments where the disease is prevalent. The hybrid is attractive with medium-tall stature. Suitable for high quality silage and grain.

Asgrow RX899, 118 days CCB, is also a good choice for grey leaf spot diseased areas. RX899 has demonstrated exceptional yields in grey leaf spot areas as well as disease free environments. RX899 has shown excellent stalk quality in Northeast testing. The variety is suited for grain and silage production where its full season maturity can be utilized to advantage. For more information, contact Seedway, Inc., 1734 Railroad Place, Hall, NY 14463, (800) 836-3720.

Seed Supply Should Be Adequate

DEKALB, Ill. — Despite weather and corn borer problems throughout much of the Corn Belt this year, corn seed supply for planting the 1992 crop will be adequate, said DEKALB Plant Genetics. In addition, the quality of the 1991 seed crop looks good, test weights are high, and seed size distribution is normal.

"Supply of some hybrids will be limited as well as certain seed sizes," said Harry McKee, director of corn and soybean production for DEKALB. "Therefore, I suggest farmers contact their seed dealer soon to insure adequate seed supply.

"Our Indiana production locations probably suffered the most drought damage, but other locations were able to make up for the production shortfall," said McKee. "Overall, we didn't produce the amount of seed we planned. But considering the drought, we certainly outdid our mid-summer expectations."

DEKALB did make an early decision to establish winter seed production fields in south Texas and South America. Key hybrids that are expected to be in high demand were chosen for this precautionary effort.

McKee says the 1991 season was unlike any other in memory. Beginning in the spring, conditions between eastern and western production locations were distinctly different.

"The thing all areas had in common, however, was a shortage of rain from late June into August, a very critical time in plant development," he said. Rainfall was very erratic through the summer, causing extreme crop variability within short distances. Even irrigated seed-producing areas felt the stress, McKee said.

Nevertheless, because DEKALB maintains 14 production locations across the Corn Belt, the company has been able to spread the risk. "The bottom line to corn growers is that their 1992 seed needs can be supplied," McKee said.

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT

A writer of an article in a recent issue of "Time Magazine" suggests that America is becoming a society of busybodies and crybabies.

At first, I was taken aback by the writer's premise. But after reading further, I realized the supposition has some merit.

The gist of the idea is that many people in our society meddle in areas they don't understand — these individuals were termed "busybodies." Other people cry "poor me" or "everybody's out to get me" — these people were termed "crybabies."

Consider for a minute some of the problems we in the swine industry face today. Animal rightists tell us that we treat our animals inhumanely. They question the use of animals for food, research and even pets. While these people hold strong opinions about animals and are noisily adamant about their love of animals, they aren't, for the most part, knowledgeable about animal husbandry or even basic animal care.

A friend of my family, a woman who lives in New York City, recently told me she supports an animal rights group. She is a vegetarian and professes herself an animal lover who is opposed to using animals for research — medical or otherwise. After learning of her position, I wrote her a letter. I told her that her support of this group goes against my career choice as well as the career choices of my wife, my father, and my older brothers. We are all involved in the livestock industry in one way or another.

Many people who support the more radical factions of the animal rights movement have little understanding of animal production. They may love animals, but not enough to devote their lives to making animal production better. After all, why improve animal production practices when you don't support animal-product consumption?

Many in our society are concerned about various issues. Pollution, ozone-layer depletion, deforestation, animal protection, and recycling are all front-page news. Everyone has an opinion about these issues, and everyday, inevitably, a new "Save the ----" slogan pops up.

But how many people are experts in these fields? How many animal rightists have studied animal production? How many deforestation protestors know anything about rain forest ecology? This is not to say that some of these issues aren't important, only that individuals who are not trained in a discipline have to be cautious of their zeal.

Regardless of the issue, everyone's opinion is developed through outside influences. If the source of information used in forming an opinion is from someone educated in the area of concern, then hopefully the opinion is based on fact. If not, then the person risks not really knowing what they are talking about.

As far as our family's friend is concerned, I made it clear in my letter that even though she may love animals, she hasn't made a career commitment to understanding animal husbandry. If changes in animal care need to be made for reasons of animal welfare, these changes must come from individuals who know animal husbandry and are committed to improving animal care, not from individuals who think they know what is best.

Similarly, if medical research doesn't need to be conducted on animals, researchers knowledgeable about effective alternative methods should make those decisions.

A number of people today believe they are experts in many areas. The truth is that experts are few and far between, and at best, people can only be an expert in one or two areas.

Before we assume we know what's best, we have to examine the facts. Being a responsible citizen means keeping abreast of issues. But in addition to keeping informed, we have a responsibility to realize the implications of our actions on the bigger picture.

Five Angus Bulls Have Positive EPDs

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Angus breeders use more bulls than ever before with proven, positive, expected progeny differences (EPD) for carcass traits when they select sires for artificial insemination.

During the Association's 1991 fiscal year, six bulls sired 2,000 or more calves registered with the American Angus Association, and five of them had complete carcass EPD information, all positive, said Richard L. Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association.

What's more, 15 of the top 35 bulls, based on total registrations, had complete carcass EPDs. Several others in the top 35 are in the process of being evaluated for the ability to transmit superior carcass traits along to their offspring. Some 21,630 calves were recorded in 1991 sired by these 15 bulls with carcass EPDs.

Some 40 commercial cow herds are involved in the structured sire evaluation. This should result in complete carcass EPD information on from 40 to 50 bulls in 1992.

An employee of the Association's Certified Angus Beef Program works full time with registered Angus breeders and commercial cow-calf producers to test bulls for carcass traits and collect carcass information on known Angus sires.

The American Angus Association carcass database consists of progeny information on 595 bulls. More than 200 currently used sires will be listed in the Spring 1992 Sire Evaluation Report that will be mailed to Angus breeders and some 33,000 commercial cow-calf producers in late December and early January, said John Crouch, director of performance programs for the American Angus Association.

The five bulls with carcass data that each sired more than 2,000 registered offspring in 1991 are listed here with their registration numbers and the number of calves recorded:

O A S Traveler 23-4: born 2/1/78; reg. no. 09250717; 3,248 calves recorded in 1991

Hoff Hi Spade S C 491: born 3122186; reg. no. 10848986; 2,860 calves recorded in 1991

Rito 2100 G D A R: born 316182; reg. no. 10132935; 2,639 calves recorded in 1991

Pine Drive Big Sky: born 7/4/80; reg. no. 09894245; 2,100 calves recorded in 1991

The new sire evaluation report, to be issued soon, will be mailed to anyone who requests it. Contact the American Angus Association, (816) 233-3101.

OBSERVATIONS OF RECENT U.S. ANIMAL HEALTH ASSOCIATION MEETING

David C. Kradel MS, MPH, DVM Dept. of Veterinary Science

Salmonellosis

This problem remains one of public health concern.

• A publication, "Salmonella Risk Reduction - Integrated Guidelines for Table Egg Producers" will be available for distribution through veterinary and poultry extension offices. This publication covers chick and pullet replacements, vector control, decontamination of facilities, bacteriological monitoring, egg handling, feed, biosecurity, a model program inspection checklist, and a listing of educational resources.

• Research at Penn State, Maine, and Penn have demonstrated that rodents are a major source of continuing infection for flocks An aggressive rodent control program is essential to reducing the potential for Salmonella enteritidis (SE) infection.

• In a national spent fowl survey conducted by USDA, 44 percent of flocks in the northern region were found to be positive for SE.

• Phage type 4 Salmonella enteritidis, which has caused severe poultry losses as well as public health concerns in Europe, has not been found in commercial poultry in the U.S. Phage type 4 has been isolated from exotic pet birds. This disease and exotic Newcastle disease (VVND) are two reasons why poultry producers should prevent personnel contact with newly purchased pet birds.

• The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is proposing legislation that would require all feeds and feed ingredients to be Salmonella-free. This proposal includes not only commercial feeds but feed grown and fed on the farm. It would appear that this will be an extremely costly program and probably ineffective in significantly reducing the risk of human salmonellosis. This is because of the widespread nature of many types of Salmonella bacteria (more than 1,600 types) in wild and domestic animals, insects, people, and the environment. Despite this, no cost vs. benefit study of this proposal has been done.

Turkey Rhinotracheitis (TRT)

This virus-induced disease can cause respiratory and egg production problems in turkeys. In broilers, it may result in the disease called "swollen head."

Although this virus is believed not to be present in the U.S., a recent problem in North Carolina turkeys and an outbreak of "swollen head" in Georgia broilers are under intensive investigation. The appearance of any atypical problem should trigger submission of birds to a poultry diagnostic laboratory.

Reticuloendotheliosis

In some parts of Europe, a disease in chickens that is difficult to distinguish from Marek's disease and lymphoid leukosis but caused by the Reticuloendotheliosis has been recognized as an occasional problem in turkeys in the U.S. but it is not known to be present in chickens.

In the future, this virus may produce a challenge in determining the cause of mortality because of tumors.

Composting of Poultry

Composting as a means of disposal was shown to be effective in destroying several highly contagious viruses. It would appear that composted poultry presents no significant risk for the spread of disease.

Farmers Can Learn Marketing At Workshop

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Market Master, an adult education workshop for farmers, will be available soon in the Ephrata Area School District.

Charles E. Ackley, Jr., a teacher in the school district, will conduct the workshops which include 21 hours of classroom instruction and 15 hours of homework.

"Farmers will learn ways to increase net farm income through more effective marketing and input buying. They will also gain financial management skills," said Ackley. Participants will acquire the equivalent of three college credits worth of marketing educaiton.

"Market Master works best as a team effort, so we're encouraging enrollment by farm couples or farming partners," Ackley said. He is one of 17 agriculture education teachers in the state qualified to teach the workshops.

Market Master is being offered in school districts through the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) with the support of the Pennsylvania State University College of Agriculture. Lamartine Hood, dean of the college, has hailed the program as a unique cooperative effort between educators and the agricultural community to put practical marketing and business management skills in the hands of farmers.

"The future survival of Pennsylvania agriculture hinges on improving our marketing ability," siad PFA president Keith Eckel.

Market Master has been successfully completed by farmers in several other states since it became available through the American Farm Bureau Federation in 1988. According to Mike Evanish, Market Master Coordinator for PFA, seventy percent of the farm families who took the workshop say it helped them market their products and ninety percent would recommend it to their friends.

For more information about Market Master enrollment, call Charles E. Ackley, Jr. at (717) 733-1478, or farmers' association agricultural marketing chairman Gordon Hoover at (717) 768-3500.

Smith's Implement Earns Recognition

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Smith's Implement, Inc. recently earned recognition from John Deere for achieving its goal in John Deere's Bypass Start Safety Program.

Ross Smith, co-owner, accepted the award on behalf of Smith's Implement, Inc. from Dave Kastler, area service manager of John Deere, during a presentation ceremony at the dealership recently.

"Customer safety is very important to us here at Smith's Implement, Inc. We believe that any safety program offered by John Deere will benefit our farmer customer such as the Bypass Start Safety Program," said Smith.

The program is part of John Deere's effort to educate customers about the danger of bypass starting. Bypass starting is a general term for any starting method that bypasses the safety features designed into the starting system or departs from the proper starting procedure. Examples include shorting across the starter solenoid with a metal object and starting the tractor with a key from the ground.

"Bypass starting is a dangerous practice because it places the operator on the ground in front of a drive wheel of the tractor. If the operator bypass starts the tractor while it's in gear, he will likely get run over," said Smith.

Smith said that bypass starting is not unique to a particular brand or type of tractor. He urged all tractor operators to follow the correct starting procedure outlined in the operator's manual and never attempt to bypass start a tractor.

John Deere's Bypass Start Safety Program involves most John Deere tractors built since 1960. The program calls for John Deere dealers to install a safety-start kit (starter solenoid cover and bypass start warning decal) on every qualifying tractor in their service areas and inspect the tractor's starting system. There is no charge to the customer for the kit, installation, inspection, or travel time. Those dealers who completed 100 percent of their assignments by a certain date were recognized by John Deere for their efforts.

"There still may be some tractors or owners we have been unable to identify," said Smith. "If this is the case, we urge these individuals to call the dealership immediately so we can schedule a technician to install a free safety-start kit and conduct a free inspection of the starting system." The telephone number is (717) 328-2244.

Smith's Implement, Inc. recently earned recognition from John Deere for achieving its goal in John Deere's Bypass Start Safety Program.

Pseudorabies Risk Calls For Increased Vigilance

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The rising number of pseudorabies infections in Pennsylvania swine herds should prompt hog producers to take precautions and keep a watchful eye on their animals, said two swine specialists in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"Pseudorabies has been present in Lancaster County for more than a decade, but this outbreak marks the first time the disease has spread to counties that don't border Lancaster," said Dr. Lawrence Hutchinson, professor of veterinary science.

"If just one herd in a county becomes infected, all of that county's swine producers are subject to a different set of animal regulations," said Hutchinson.

Pseudorabies is an acute, often fatal disease that affects most domestic and wild animals, although humans are not susceptible to it. Caused by a herpes virus, the disease has many symptoms in the nervous and respiratory systems. Swine are natural hosts of the virus.

"As of October 25, Berks, Bradford, Bucks, Dauphin, Franklin, Lancaster, Northampton and Susquehanna counties have been quarantined because of pseudorabies outbreaks," said Dr. Kenneth Kephart, associate professor of animal science. "The number of affected counties could rise."

Swine herds infected with pseudorabies can suffer reproductive failure, abortions, and a high percentage of deaths. "The disease is spread mainly by direct contact between swine, especially around the nose and mouth," Hutchinson said. "Nasal discharges and saliva contain the virus. Drinking water, bedding, and other objects also can become contaminated."

When pseudorabies occurs, the farm should be quarantined and all movement of people and animals strictly controlled. "If possible, separate healthy pigs from the sick," Hutchinson said. "Bury dead pigs deeply or incinerate them, and sell recovered pigs only for slaughter to prevent spreading the infection to other farms by carrier swine."

Producers in quarantined counties who wish to sell feeder pigs must comply with new swine health rules adopted by the Pennsylvania Bureau of Anirnal Industry in August. "Producers in these counties have three options," Kephart said. "The first is to maintain a qualified pseudorabies-free herd, which entails testing 25 percent of the herd every three months. Another option is to secure a negative pseudorabies test on all feeder pigs you intend to market.

"The third and simplest option is to maintain a pseudorabies-monitored herd, which requires an annual test of a sample of pigs in the herd. If the herd size is below 10 swine, all must be tested. For a herd size of between 10 and 35 swine, 10 must be tested. For herd larger than 36 swine, 30 swine or 30 percent — whichever is the least — must be tested." If feeder pigs are shipped from a pseudorabies-free county, no testing is required.

In baby pigs, pseudorabies can cause sudden death with very few clinical symptoms. "In pigs less than two weeks old, deaths are nearly 100 percent," Hutchinson said. "After three weeks of age pigs usually develop some resistance to the disease, but deaths vary with different strains of the virus, and a high percentage of deaths can occur even in grown pigs."

In growing pigs, fever is usually the first symptom, followed by loss of appetite, listlessness, labored breathing, excessive salivation, vomiting, trembling, and eventually marked incoordination, especially of the hind legs. Convulsions usually precede death. In adult pigs, symptoms include fever and respiratory signs such as nasal discharges, sneezing, nose rubbing, and coughing. Nervous signs such as trembling, incoordination, and itching sometimes occur, as well as vomiting, constipation, or diarrhea.

"Strict control of people, animals, and objects entering swine areas can help producers minimize pseudorabies risk," Hutchinson said. "Cats, dogs and other animals should be kept away from pigs. Swine added to a herd should be tested and found free of the virus, isolated for at least 30 days, then retested. Untested feeder pigs should never be brought onto premises with farrowing operations."

Know The Importance Of Liming

Robert E. Leiby
David L. Dunbar
Lehigh Co. Agents

Liming an acid soil is the first step in creating favorable soil conditions for productive plant growth.

Crops vary in their ability to tolerate an acid (low pH) soil. In addition, recent evidence has shown that other crop management factors such as corn herbicide activity may be influenced by soil acidity.

Soil pH is a good indicator of the need for liming; however, a buffered pH measurement is needed to determine the quantity of soil acidity to be neutralized.

The general goal of liming agricultural soils, especially with a legume in the crop rotation or for maximum herbicide activity, continues to be a soil pH of 6.5 to 7.0.

Raising soil pH requires a quantity of agricultural liming material that is determined by the amount of acidity in the soil and the quality of the liming material. Soil acidity is measured by soil testing; the quality of agricultural liming material is determined by its purity and particle size distribution. In Pennsylvania, agricultural liming materials must meet minimum quality standards.

The limestone recommendation on the Penn State Soil Test report is based on the use of a liming material that is equivalent in neutralizing power to pure calcium carbonate, i.e., a material with a calcium carbonate equivalent (CCE) of 100 percent. The recommended amount of any liming material that is not equivalent to pure calcium carbonate limestone in neutralizing power (100 percent CCE) must be adjusted. All agricultural liming materials sold in Pennsylvania are required by law to be labeled with their CCE.

A liming material must be finely ground to be effective. This is important because the solubility of the limestone increases as it is ground finer, and limestone affects only a very small volume of soil around each particle. Therefore, the finer limestone is ground, the more particles it has. If there is adequate mixing, more of the soil will be in close contact with limestone and thus be neutralized.

For maximum effectiveness, a liming material should be incorporated. Remember that minimum tillage mixes to only one-third of tillage depth. Since liming material incorporation is not possible in no-till situations, the soil must be adequately limed before no-till crop production begins.

While limestone is applied primarily to neutralize soil acidity, it also serves as a source of essential calcium (Ca) and magnesium (Mg). When a soil test indicates the need for magnesium, limestone is the most economical way of meeting that need.

Penn State soil test recommendations not only indicate the amount of magnesium the crop requires, but also include a magnesium analysis of the limestone recommended to supply the needed magnesium.

Although the best practice is to apply the recommended amount of a liming material, a partial application should be considered rather than not applying any at all. If only partial applications are made, it is best not to attempt to grow acid-sensitive crops such as alfalfa.

When less than the full limestone requirement is applied, the application should be made after primary tillage and incorporated by secondary tillage, thus mixing the limestone into the surface four inches. This ensures a better environment for germinating seeds and young seedlings as well as more effective herbicide action in the surface soil layer.

As soil acidity increases (soil pH becomes lower), the need for and expected returns from liming become greater. If soil acidity is limiting crop production, other production inputs such as fertilizer, seed, pesticides, machinery operation, and labor will not realize the kind of return that are possible on well-limed soils.

Fall Is Time For AI Blitz

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The extended hot, humid weather of the last several months has had a negative impact on the reproductive performance of many dairy herds.

As a result, extended calving intervals are projected for many cows and the situation will become worse if these cows do not conceive during the next month, said a specialist in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"Since the weather has improved recently, herd managers should consider developing an aggressive heat detection and artificial insemination program to detect most of these cows in heat during the next three or four weeks," said Dr. Michael O'Connor, professor of dairy and animal science. "This concerted effort toward heat detection and timely insemination is often referred to as an "AI blitz."

All resources are directed to heat detection during this time, so the program should be implemented before the harvest season gets into full gear.

"Such a program includes more frequent, but routine, dedicated heat detection periods when cattle are likely to express heat," O'Connor said. "A list should be prepared daily of those cows due for insemination and those due to return to estrus after the last insemination. This enables more heats to be anticipated."

Heat detection aids, detector animals, and prostaglandin products can be used during this period to enhance the program's efficiency.

"Several programs using prostaglandin products have been developed to control estrus and ovulation in groups of lactating cows so that heat detection and insemination can be limited to a certain number of days," O'Connor said. "More cows are in heat simultaneously so heat detection becomes more efficient and accurate.

"Such a program can be very useful and cost effective when properly applied to an AI blitz program. A single prostaglandin injection system based on a veterinary ovarian palpation has been very successful, and can be set up on a weekly, biweekly or monthly basis."

The program should allow for the introduction of those cows that become eligible for first insemination after calving as well as those cows that do not conceive on the initial insemination.

If this summer's weather has hampered your herd's reproductive performance, consider utilizing an aggressive heat detection program early this fall. "Act now to catch up on getting cows pregnant," O'Connor said. "But keep in mind that this management strategy is not a substitute for routine heat detection during the rest of the year."

"Heat Detection in Dairy Cattle," a new video available from Penn State's College of Agriculture, details factors affecting estrous behavior, timing of insemination, and management practices that optimize heat detection efficiency. The video is available for $35 from Ag Information Services, 119 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

Franklin Sets Farm-City Banquet

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The 22nd annual Franklin County Farm-City Week banquet will be held Tuesday, November 26 at the Clarke Recreation Center, Chambersburg, according to Dalton Paul, chairman of the Franklin County Farm-City Council.

Paul extends an invitation to all residents of Franklin County to attend.

"The purpose of the event is to enable persons from all occupations to enjoy fellowship together and to gain a better understanding of each other's roles in our society," said Paul.

The dinner, catered by Antrim House Restaurant of Greencastle, will be served at 6:45 p.m. A reception and social hour, hosted by four County Ag Commodity Queens, will start at 6:15 p.m. The evening's program is scheduled to end at 9 p.m.

The fast-moving program will include entertainment by the "Lady Bugs," some award presentations, and a 15-minute video presentation on 1991 Farm-City Week events to date.

Service clubs, AARP groups, and other organized groups are encouraged to attend as a group and will be recognized.

Tickets are available through November 19 from all Chamber of Commerce offices in Franklin County; the County Vo-Tech School; the County Cooperative Extension Office, Franklin Farms Lane, Chambersburg; Agway stores in Waynesboro and Chambersburg; members of the Kiwanis Club of Chambersburg; and the following council members: Joe McBeth, Paul Baker, Glenn Herrold, Sam Worley, Andrew Fitz, Betty Wingert, Kenneth Doyle, Julia Meyers, Paul E. Lehman, Dave Sciamanna, Jean North, Charles White, Ernest Tarner, Myron Young, Carl Allison, Tom McCloud, Bob Thomas, Robert Rumler, Ken Perry, Phil Lobaugh, Ray Dalby, Ron Van Scyoc, and Robert Crider.

Vaccinate Pets For Rabies

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff told dog and cat owners that two recent cases of dog rabies demonstrate what can happen when people fail to have their pets vaccinated.

Wolff's warning follows two confirmed cases of rabies in dogs — one in Bolivar, Westmoreland County and one in New Milford, Susquehanna County.

"There were no cases of rabies in dogs in 1990 and statewide numbers on rabies in other animals have been declining," Wolff said. "This has caused some people to become complacent. There are still hundreds and hundreds of rabid wild animals, and family pets can bring the fatal disease into the home. Failure to vaccinate pets puts families at risk."

Four members of a Westmoreland County family underwent post-exposure rabies treatment after the family dog tested positive for rabies. In Susquehanna County, a family of five and a veterinarian and four members of her staff received inoculations after a dog contracted rabies.

Statewide, the number of animal rabies cases has declined. There were 272 confirmed cases of rabies in Pennsylvania between Jan. 1 and Sept. 30. There were 485 cases during the same period last year.

Wolff reminded pet owners that state law requires rabies vaccinations for all dogs and house cats over three months of age. Animals under one year of age at the time of the original vaccination must have a booster vaccination one year later. Booster shots are required for all animals at least every three years. Pet owners who violate the law can be fined up to $300 for each day they are in violation.

Md. Ag Secretary Heads European Task Force

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has been named to head a national agriculture task force to promote, develop, and expand agricultural ties with eastern Europe and the former Soviet republics.

The task force is part of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture's (NASDA) efforts to maximize American agricultural opportunities in this part of the world.

"In appointing Secretary Walker, we have a man with extensive experience in negotiating agricultural agreements with Soviet leaders. He has made numerous trips to the Soviet Union and speaks fluent Russian," said NASDA President Terry D. Strueh.

"I feel U.S. agriculture can play a significant role in assisting with the transition of the republics to a free market economy," Walker said.

"Agricultural reform and putting food on the shelves in stores in Moscow and throughout the republics are critical to the long-term success of the political and economic reform," he said. "In my opinion, NASDA can play a pivotal role in positioning U.S. agriculture to take strategic advantage of the revolutionary changes now taking place in Russia and the other republics."

In Maryland, Walker was instrumental in establishing a summer exchange program whereby Maryland farmers host agricultural students from several agricultural academies, including the Timiryazev Agricultural Academy in Moscow, the most prestigious university in the Soviet Union. He also has established exchanges of scientists, farm directors, and agricultural professors on a reciprocal basis.

"I look forward to this new challenge to establish links with U.S. agriculture at the state level and with firms interested in buying and selling agricultural products or services in the former Soviet Republics," Walker said.

For more information on NASDA's Agriculture Task Force with Russia and the former Soviet Republics, contact Robert L. Walker, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, (301) 841-5881.

Types Of Cattle Fencing Compared

Robert E. Leiby and David L. Dunbar
Lehigh Co. Extension Agents
Comparing Fencing Systems

John Comerford, Penn State beef cattle specialist, relays a recent report from Illinois which compares the cost and effectiveness of several types of fencing for cattle. The comparison includes woven wire plus a strand of barbed wire, five-strand barbed wire, 10 strand high-tensile wire, three-strand high-tensile wire, and single-wire portable fencing. Some of the assumptions which affect the cost include treated, driven posts used in the three- and 10-strand high-tensile fence, and longer post spacings for the high-tensile fence.

The results indicate that the most expensive fence was woven wire plus barbed wire, both initial cost of (95¢ per foot) and annual cost (eight percent of the initial cost). The latter was due to a shorter expected life of the woven wire fence compared with either of the high-tensile varieties. The 10-strand, high-tensile fence appeared to have the lowest cost over the life of the fence, but the initial cost was very similar to a five-wire barbed fence. These three types would be acceptable as perimeter fencing in most cases, while the three-wire and portable fences would generally be used only as interior dividers.

The choice of the fence depends on many factors, especially access to electricity. If a standard electrical outlet is available, no doubt some type of high-tensile fence would be the most cost-effective. A 10-wire fence may not need electricity since it can serve as a sufficient physical barrier to cattle. Fewer strands of high-tensile wire would be the most cost-effective.

A 10-wire fence may not need electricity since it can serve as a sufficient physical barrier to cattle. Fewer strands of high-tensile wire would require electrification to form a psychological barrier as well as a physical one. There are other advantages to the high-tensile wire that include lower maintenance costs. For example, if a tree falls on a woven or barbed wire fence, some repair to the fence will be necessary; however, with a high-tensile fence, only removal of the tree may be required.

Other factors to consider when planning new fencing:

- Use only a high-quality, short-duration fence charger for a high-tensile fence. The weed burner type is a safety hazard.
- Smooth high-tensile wire does not eliminate the possibility of animals getting cut on a fence. This is particularly true for horses.
- Hire a reputable fence contractor to build a high-tensile fence, or consult closely with a knowledgeable person before doing it yourself. Proper bracing is especially important in building a long-lasting high-tensile fence.
- No fence is maintenance-free. Be sure to keep wire properly tightened.
- Provide some type of lightening arrester for any electric fence. Fence chargers may literally blow up when a fence is struck by lightening.

HOW TO KEEP A GOOD THING GOING.

Keep your Stihl® power tool going great for years with Stihl lubricants.

STIHL HEAVY DUTY TWO-CYCLE ENGINE OIL. Gives tougher, longer-lasting protection, and with two mixing advantages: pre-measured Snip-Paks for the right oil mix every time, plus a signal dye to remind you when it's added to the fuel.

STIHL BAR AND CHAIN OIL. Holds up under extreme heat and has extra adhesiveness to keep more oil on the chain longer.

STIHL GEAR LUBRICANT. One formula for Stihl Hedge Trimmers, and one for sprocket nose guide bars.

Stihl lubricants for Stihl power tools. They'll keep up the Stihl quality, so that you can keep up the good work.

SURPLUS PAINT LIQUIDATION

We have thousands of gallons of the highest quality, industrial grade paint available as a result of military base closings and cancelled government contracts. All these paints are made to comply with strict federal specifications by manufacturers who mainly supply the industrial markets. Many were designed for extreme duty making them a superior choice for farm applications.

Look over the list below and call for more details. Even though we have shipments coming in regularly, we cannot guarantee what we have today we'll have next month. So, buy now while we have it - most can be stored for several years.

Some Types Of Paint Available	Uses
Epoxy (2 Part)	Galvanized roofs - block, concrete and wood
Enamels, alkyd	equipment, general use
Zinc chromite	The best primer for galvanized metal - when top coated with epoxy
Enamel, silicone	produces longest lasting
Epoxy concrete primer - sealer, clear	coating.
Aluminum heat resistant (1200°)	Epoxy $10/Gal. All Others $8.00/Gal.

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

The Eby Wrangler...
★ Better Looking ★ Better Built
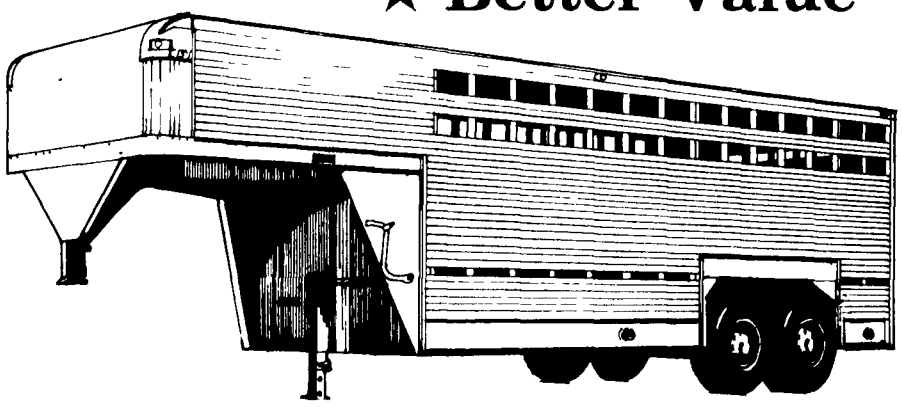
★ Better Value



The Wrangler Model 2000-OH represents a new level of value in livestock trailers.

Its standard specifications, top-quality components and proven engineering are found in other Wrangler models. But the new 2000-OH is less expensive. By standardizing height and width and by limiting the number of optional accessories, Eby lowers the production costs for this model. Now you can get all our traditional craftsmanship in a top-value gooseneck.

Unlike other "budget" trailers on the market, the Wrangler 2000-OH achieves a price breakthrough without compromising quality. Consider these features, standard on the new Wranger 2000-OH:

- 7,000# Dexter Torque-Flex axles
- Steel-belted radial tires, 10-ply rating
- Aerodynamic, attractive design
- Sealed beam lights with enclosed, externally accessible wiring
- 2-year warranty

Specifications
- Available in 14', 16', 18', 20' lengths
- 7' Width
- 6'6" Inside height

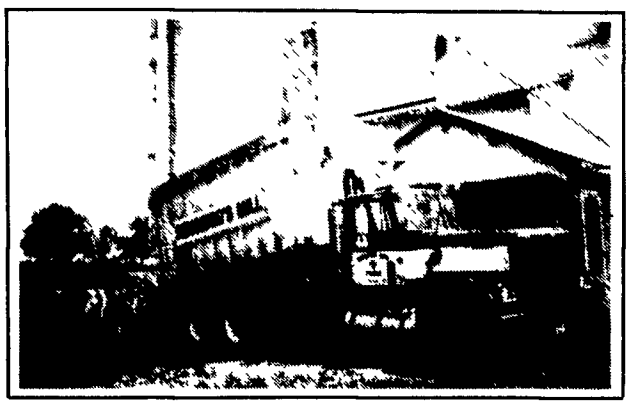
READ WHAT DAIRYMEN HAVE TO SAY ABOUT AminoTek™ For Record Breaking Performance DAIRY FEED

JAKE STOLTZFUS
Lititz, PA Sensenig's Feed Mill



ROUGHAGE PROGRAM
- 35 lbs. Corn Silage
- 14-15 lbs. Alfalfa Hay

MILKING RATION PROGRAM
- AminoTek 16%
- AminoTek Hi Peak

In Feb, my cows were averaging 60 lbs. of milk which wasn't too bad, but I had too many thin cows. I had heard about the AminoTek Hi Peak topdress and the responses people were getting with it. I decided to look at a program with AminoTek and I gave it a try.

To go on AminoTek off of my local mill I was getting feed from, I needed a 2 lb. increase to pay the price difference. I went on AminoTek in March and in the first week I was up to 62 lbs. By the second week, my cows were up to 65 lbs. without any fresh cows and my DIM was 170. After 4 weeks, they reached 70 lbs./cow and have been holding pretty good. In Aug, I'm still averaging 67 lbs/cow and my butterfat is 3.5%. I'm milking 37 cows and 15 of those are first calf heifers! My heifers have jumped to averaging between 80-90 lbs./day which I wasn't used to.

Backfat was my original concern before I switched to AminoTek and even with the increased production, I am gaining on the cows' body condition. The AminoTek Hi Peak topdress is really doing a good job!!

With my higher production, I had to work on my breeding so I started to topdress a high phosphorus mineral which has helped getting my cow settled.

With milk prices as low as they are, I wasn't sure whether now was the time to spend more for feed. But with the way the cows responded on AminoTek, I certainly got my 2 lbs. increase I needed and I'm very happy with the way it's going.

In our first week on AminoTek, we increased 3½ -4 lbs./cow/day. Then we hit some poor quality haylage for 3 weeks & dropped back to where we were. Then the haylage got better again & the cows took off!! They increased from 66 lbs./cow to 73 lbs/cow & they're holding very well. Since the AminoTek switch, the herd average has increased over 1,000 lbs. & t's still going up.

To maintain this type of reproduction, Richard credits Lamar for watching the cows for heats each morning to get them bred back on time. Lamar & I were happy on Master Mix Protek but when my salesman told me of the AminoTek results, we decided to give it a try.

It is hard to believe 2½ years ago we could never reach 18,000 lbs. RHA & we are now over 21,000 lbs. RHA. Before AminoTek, we never had a test of 75 lbs./cow/day & when we hit it, it was in July!!! Lamar & I are very happy with AminoTek & what it is doing in our herd.

I am 32 years old, and have been milking cows on my own for 8 yrs. It has always been my goal to get my name in the local dairy magazines. It takes 600 lbs. of protein to get your name published. I switched to Master Mix AminoTek & although I was approaching 200 DIM (Days in Milk), my fresh cows have responded 3 to 4 lbs. & since April I have been over 600 lbs. of protein. My name appeared in Lancaster Farming for the first time ever in April. Our butterfat has gone up 2-3 points also. We are very happy since we switched to AminoTek & we hope to hit 20,000 lbs. this fall when I have more fresh cows.

A Sincere THANK YOU To The Above Dairymen For Their Time And Effort.

Gehl Designs Roller-Mixer For Feed Efficiency

WEST BEND, Wis. — Maintaining the proper particle size of livestock feeds is very important to maximize feed efficiency and gain rates. To meet the needs of livestock producers, Gehl Company is adding the roller mixer to its complete line of feedmaking equipment.

At the heart of the Gehl roller mixer is a heavy-duty, commercial grade roller mill with deep grooved rolls that uniformly reduce grain to a predetermined particle size. This leads to efficient digestion and maximum nutritional value. A handy slide-out sample drawer lets you easily check particle size, and a single lever control adjusts the mill for shelled corn or small grains.

"Gehl's Roller Mixer is designed to fit a wide range of livestock feeding operations by providing precise particle sizing and fast, thorough supplement mixing," said Terry LeFever, Gehl product development manager for feedmaking equipment. "The Roller Mixer produces feed with a uniform grain particle size for optimum livestock gains."

The RM125 Roller Mixer combines the proven advantages of the dependable Gehl line of Mix-Alls with a roller mill to provide the best possible feed for hogs, dairy cattle, beef cattle and other livestock.

Like the Gehl Mix-Alls, the roller mixer features total hydraulic control. The self-contained hydraulic system with its orbit motors powers the discharge conveyor, unloading auger, and infeed attachment.

Livestock nutrition studies at Kansas State University show that hogs can gain up to 10 percent faster when feed is processed through mills that produce smaller, more uniform particles (700-800 microns). Particles of this size provide enzymes in the gut with more surface area to work on, producing better digestion and giving more feed value from less grain.

The Gehl Roller Mixer can be equipped with a choice of rolls, depending on the type of livestock being fed. A number of additional features are available on the Gehl roller mixer.

• Standard magnet grates in the hopper combine with spring-loaded rolls to help prevent damage from tramp metal and foreign objects.

• Electric remote controls allow the operator to position the unloading conveyor from the tractor seat or from the rear of the machine.

• A choice of electronic batching scales provides precise ration weighing.

• Unloading conveyor extensions in three different lengths are optional.

For more details, contact your local Gehl dealer or write Gehl Company, Marketing Services Department, 143 Water St., West Bend, WI 53095.

Farmers Christmas Market To Open

CHELTENHAM, Md. — On Friday, November 29, the first annual farmers Christmas market will open at the Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market in Cheltenham.

The market is located on U.S. Rt. 301 south, next to the Veterans cemetery, and will be open every Friday, Saturday, and Sunday until Christmas, 12 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Inside the state warehouse, local farmers will be selling a variety of handmade crafts, holiday wreaths, door decorations, handmade ornaments, honey, jams and jellies, festive baked goods, poinsettias, winter vegetables, etc. A southern Maryland Christmas tree grower will also be selling trees daily outside the state warehouse.

The Southern Maryland Regional Farmers market was created in 1989 to provide an opportunity for farmers to expand into alternative crops such as fruits and vegetables. The five Southern Maryland counties, Tri-County Council, the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the Governors Task Force, and the cooperative extension worked together to open a retail farmers market and a wholesale fruit and vegetable auction. The market has expanded each year since it opened.

This has been an extremely hard year for Southern Maryland farmers. Many farmers lost as much as 50 percent of their vegetable crops from this summer's drought and heat.

Farmers recognize that the recession has been hard on everyone. Rather than give up, many farmers are looking toward additional opportunities to support their families and help their community through these hard times.

The Christmas market represents one such effort. Farmers have been preparing homemade gifts to sell during the holiday season. There will be a wide assortment of items for the young and old. For more information, contact Donna Sasscer, agriculture and seafood development specialist, at (301) 475-4404.

Hey! Folks

If your cows are slipping and falling, it ain't my fault because I have a machine called a Scabbler that will fix that concrete so your cows won't keep slipping all the time.

We've got service all around this section of the country, and I have a fellow just jumping to do your job mighty fast.

And that ain't all, our prices are right reasonable, and if you're a tightwad we'll let you do the job yourself if you've got over 500 square feet. It can save you right smart a money.

So call me on my nickel at 800-692-0123. If I'm not by the phone, some real live person will take your number, and I'll try to get back to you real soon. Usually somebody is awake in this outfit, so you just call any time day or night. But, please mind the Lord, and don't call on Sunday.

Just one more thing. We fellows make our living doing this kind of work, and we've got children to feed and bills. That's our side of it, but you've got such things too. A lot of people tell us that this Scabbling saves a whole lot more than it costs. So go ahead and do it. It'll put shoes on everybody's feet.

Be looking to hear from you folks right soon.

Feed Formulation Could Save Millions

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A new method for formulating least-cost rations could save the poultry and livestock industries million of dollars annually, according to Penn State researchers.

Dr. William Roush, associate professor of poultry science, and Thomas D'Alfonso, a graduate student in agricultural and biological engineering, have applied a mathematical model to poultry feed formulations that is more accurate and efficient than the method feed mills use now.

"The industry uses what's known as linear programming to formulate ingredients that meet nutritional requirements at least cost," said Roush. "It's called the 'margin of safety' method, because the nutrients in ingredients are underestimated to allow for variability."

For example, Roush said, corn may have an average protein value of 8.5 percent. But from one lot to the next, it may be as low as 7 percent or as high as 10 percent.

In feed formulation using linear programming, the average nutrient value used in the calculations is corrected to ensure, within a certain probability, that the ration contains adequate protein.

The method applied by Roush and D'Alfonso uses stochastic (nonlinear) programming, a more sophisticated formula that can account for nutrient variability.

"Stochastic programming allows variance to be included in the formulation process, so that in the long run, a ration is produced at a lower cost than with the linear program, but at the same nutrient confidence level," said D'Alfonso.

The research has significant economic implications for Pennsylvania's $500 million poultry industry. Roush said studies have indicated that feed formulated with the stochastic model could be up to $3 cheaper per ton. For a poultry operation using 1,500 tons of feed per week, annual savings could total more than $230,000.

Roush said the new method also can be used to formulate feed for other types of livestock, such as cattle and swine.

"Producers can achieve these savings without affecting animal nutrition," D'Alfonso said. "We conducted a trial comparing the industry method and our method and found no difference in animal performance."

According to the researchers, the only stumbling block for the adoption of stochastic programming has been the lack of computer software capable of performing the calculations on smaller computers used by farmers and feed mills. A private company is developing such software for commercial use.

Ag Book Catalog Available

DAVIS, Calif. — A new and expanded agricultural book catalog is now available from ag Access. The comprehensive agricultural book catalog contains hundreds of titles reviewed by experts allowing readers to select the best titles for their specific information needs.

Today's agricultural managers must be sophisticated users of information to increase efficiency that is now critical to successful operations. Agricultural information is in strong demand due to increased environmental regulations, higher costs of inputs, and changing market preferences, according to David Katz, ag Access president. "This new catalog provides access to information that is key to farming more efficiently," said Katz.

The new catalog includes books on horticulture, vegetable crops, fruit production, pest management, water and irrigation, soil fertility, biotechnology, sustainable agriculture, plus many more subjects. In addition, the catalog describes how to use the agAccess Research and Information Service.

agAccess supplies all English language (and some Spanish language) agricultural books in print from more than 900 publishers, so users can obtain what they need from a single source.

agAccess is pleased to send copies of the free 88 page Agricultural Books Catalog. Call (916) 756-7177 for more information.

AUTOMATIC COW WATER BOWLS

The "DRY" waterer from Uebler...

- Fully approved anti-siphoning drinking bowl.
- Cast iron bowl, stainless steel liner, brass valve.
- Valve supplied with filter and stainless steel spring.
- Water bowl casting can't freeze! Valve is separate from the more expensive bowl casting, eliminating expensive repair problems.

High Yield Investments.

N8727 RM: 118-122
As a full season hybrid, this variety is a "must plant". An outstanding yielder, it also has superior standability and is excellent for full season grain or silage. N8727 features a flex ear that adapts well to variable densities, plus very good ear retention and husk cover. Outstanding test weight, too. If you're going all out for full season yields, this hybrid belongs on the top of your list. Not tolerant to virus complex. This hybrid had highest yield in a 90-91 P.S.U. trials at 191 bu/acre.

N6330 RM: 108-112.
If you're looking for a very high yielding hybrid that performs well as medium-to-low populations, put this one on the top of your list. This corn has a superior performance records on coars to medium textured soils and exceptional drought stress tolerance. It has a flex ear that adapts well to lower populations. Recommended for timely harvest.

To get the most from your corn dollar, you can't beat Northrup King hybrids. They consistently come on strong and deliver top yields, even under tough growing conditions. And Northrup King has a selection of hybrids to match your soil type and management practices. So this year, go with seed corn you can really put stock in. Northrup King hybrids.

Penn State Extension Sheep Specialist

The recent increase in telephone calls concerning coccidia infections may be related to the recent drought conditions associated with limited pasture or feed sources. Sheep normally on pasture are now being housed and/or fed in confined quarters.

Causes and Disease Factors

Two factors seem to trigger a coccidia outbreak: (1) stress, and (2) poor sanitation practices in the confinement area of both feed and water.

Coccidia are very small parasites called protozoa which enter the walls of the intestinal tract where they multiply, swelling the cells of the intestinal wall to the point of rupturing. As a result, diarrhea occurs and blood is lost through hemorrhage.

This creates a bloody diarrhea and a dark tarry feces. If feces containing these protoza are permitted to contaminate the feed or water, or if sheep pick them up from grazing or licking contaminated areas, they become infected and the parasite travels to the intestine where it produces damage.

Most species of livestock may already be infected with coccidia, but each species has its own selected types. Sheep do not become infected with coccidia from other livestock, nor do they transmit this parasite to other livestock.

Most sheep are infected, but interestingly, adult sheep seldom show clinical signs. Again, since coccidia are opportunistic parasites, they have their greatest disease effect during times of stress such as other infectious diseases, parasitism, lambing, weaning, unfavorable weather, and transport.

Diagnosis

Sudden deaths often occur in lambs approximately three weeks of age; if older, the disease may be observed as mucoid scouring (mucky hind quarters) during times of stress.

Oocycts may not be present at this time, since approximately three weeks is required for proliferation to reach this stage. Sudden death may occur prior to oocyst production. Chronic disease is diagnosed by miscrscopic oocysts in the feces.

Treatment/Control Measures

The first recommendation is to have your local veterinarian confirm the disease and prescribe any necessary treatment. He should also discuss preventative measures for controlling continued outbreaks. If one animal shows clinical signs, all animals should be treated. Provide individual sulfa-drug treatment to any animal with symptoms. Animals showing no clinical signs can be treated through the feed and/or water.

Two groups of coccidiostats approved for sheep are the sulfanomides and lasaiocid (Bovatec-R). These medications are mixed in the feed at the prescribed therapeutic dosages. It should be noted that these medicines are effective against the earlier proliferation stages and not directly against oocyst production. Therefore, do not expect to see an immediate decrease in oocyte numbers.

Some veterinarians may prescribe medications not yet approved for sheep, such as Decoquinate (Deccox-R), and Amprolium (Corid or Amprovine-R). Deccox is most commonly administered via a feed or mineral mix, whereas Amprovine may be added to the water and/or feed.

Again, the best treatment for this incidious parasite infection is a good preventative program that includes a feed-grade coccidiostat and a keen eye for individual outbreaks.

Hydrostatic Tractor Has Many Features

MOLINE, Ill. — The John Deere 320 lawn and garden tractor combines the quietness of a liquid-cooling system and the smooth power of an 18-hp V-twin powerplant with a hydrostatic transmission and a hydraulic equipment lift system.

"The hydraulic lift system includes a new hydrostatic transmission with a larger charge pump," said Don Gallagher, marketing coordinator for John Deere. "The design of the lift linkage allows implements to float and to follow ground contour."

The engine is an overhead valve design that provides for more complete combustion of fuel to reduce hydrocarbon emissions. It has a full pressure lubrication system with replaceable oil filter. The air cleaner is a replaceable dry type with a foam precleaner. The fuel tank holds 3-U.S.-gallons of non-leaded or regular gasoline.

Travel speeds range from zero to 7 mph in forward, and up to 2.9 mph in reverse. Other features include a high-back seat, 17-amp charging system, 12-volt battery, electronic ignition, cast iron front axle, one-inch-diameter steering spindle, and front bumper.

The John Deere 320 lawn and garden tractor combines the quietness of liquid cooling and the smooth power of an 18-hp V-twin engine with a hydrostatic transmission and a hydraulic equipment lift system. The engine is an overhead valve design with full pressure lubrication and a replaceable oil filter. Available implements include a 38- and 48-inch mid-mounted rotary mower, rear-mounted material collection systems, 46-inch front blade, 30-inch rotary tiller, 42-inch snow thrower, 15 gallon (U.S.) sprayer, and more.

Weaverland Valley Farms Will Exhibit At Angus Show

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Weaverland Valley Farms, New Holland, Pennsylvania, will exhibit Angus cattle at the 1992 Roll of Victory (ROV) National Angus Show. The show will be held during the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Kentucky, November 18 and 19, according to Richard L. Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association.

Nearly 200 exhibitors, who are members of the American Angus Association with headquarters in St. Joseph, Missouri, have entered a total of 492 head to compete for top honors at the national ROV event.

A three-man committee will place the 344 heirers and 148 bulls entered in the open show. Judges are Bill Couch, Owensville, Indiana; David Hawkins, East Lansing, Michigan; and Vance Uden, Franklin, Nebraska.

The Angus Show at the North American is one of the largest Angus events held annually. Breeders and spectators from across the United States, Canada, and foreign countries will be in attendance to watch the two days of showing.

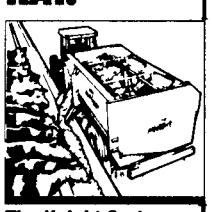
HOW TO MAKE SHORT WORK OUT OF MIXING LONG HAY.



The Knight Series 2000 Reel Auggie® blends long dry hay into a TMR faster than other mixers.
- Blends long stem dry hay in a TMR ration
- Patented reel design reduces dead spots and compaction
- Mixes faster with less force and pressure for longer machine life and a more palatable ration
- Available in tow truck and stationary models
- Mixing capacities from 105 to 390 cu ft

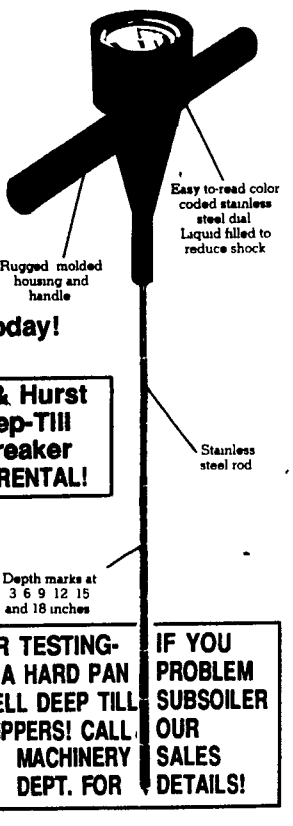
Is soil compaction costing you? Find out fast with a simple, low-cost DICKEY-john Soil Compaction Tester

A simple, easy-to-use management tool that can help you: Increase Yields. Decrease Costs.

The High Cost of Compaction
Soil compaction is becoming a more serious problem in all parts of the country A problem that is very expensive in several ways

- First compacted soils are much harder to work Research in Illinois demonstrated that over 90 percent more power is required to plow severely compacted soil
- Second compacted soil results in poor root and plant development Compacted soil is dense roots cannot grow in it That can reduce yields by 20 30 even 50% or more
- Third compaction severely restricts the manner in which soil naturally manages water Both by holding water near the surface of the field — and by limiting the ability of plants to take up water and nutrients from below Excess surface water makes fields difficult to work in the spring and fall And water trapped under the compacted layer reduces plant development and yields especially during dry periods
- Fourth a compacted zone means that the fertilizers pesticides and herbicides you apply cannot be utilized efficiently If they are not absorbed they can be washed away easily Even more serious they can be trapped near the surface in a concentrated form resulting in crop damage and yield reductions They can also be captured under the compaction zone, compounding the problem



Easy-to-read color coded stainless steel dial Liquid filled to reduce shock

The Answers You Need.
The DICKEY-john Soil Compaction Tester gives you quick answers to the questions you need to ask about your tillage program and your field conditions.

- Is your soil compacted?
- How severely and at what depth?
- How deep have you actually been tilling?
- How deep do you need to till?
- How deep can your roots grow?
- If there's a problem, what's the best solution?
- Has your tillage system been hurting or helping the situation?

AFTER TESTING- IF YOU HAVE A HARD PAN PROBLEM WE SELL DEEP TILL SUBSOILER RIPPERS! CALL OUR MACHINERY SALES DEPT. FOR DETAILS!

IF YOUR TESTING SHOWS A HARDPAN SOIL COMPACTION CONDITION, YOU NEED TO USE A SUBSOILER AND BREAK THE HARDPAN. NOTICE: WE RENT SUBSOILERS & SELL INCLUDING COULTER CHISELS W/DEEP TILL SHANKS - CHECK WITH US NOW!

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. Has A Gehl Spreader Ready For Your Farm And Here Are The Reasons Why Your Next Spreader Should Be A Quality Gehl!

Proven performance features, economical price make Gehl your box spreader choice

For over 129 years Gehl Company has been a leader in the design and construction of quality farm machinery This tradition of innovative design and durable construction is evident in the full line of economical box spreaders from Gehl With five sizes, Gehl has the box spreader to fit your operation

Gehl-Tuff floor keeps manure moving

A good example of the innovative design in Gehl's box spreader is the Gehl Tuff gel coated fiber reinforced plywood floor The top surface has an extra slippery coating The coating is integrated with the underlying woven fiberglass which in turn is heat bonded to the top and bottom of the plywood This creates a smooth slick seamless panel The result is a specially constructed floor with top and bottom sealed against liquids and their acid to virtually eliminate decay and delamination

Handles the big loads

These full capacity spreaders can take a big load Heaped capacities range from 135 to 425 bushels Optional splash guards and side rails add 14 percent more capacity while protecting the sides from damage by front end loaders The optional hydraulic endgate rests in front of the beater paddles to secure sloppy loads and keep heaped material out of the beater until you're ready to spread

Unmatched durability

Each Gehl box spreader features an A frame hitch made of high strength steel This hitch connects to the axle to prevent twisting of the box while transporting or spreading in rough terrain

The spreader sides are made from Gehl Steel a tough corrosive resistant material The sides are smooth and straight easier to keep clean than corrugated sides And since no liners are required there's no chance for rust through caused by moisture trapped between the liner and the spreader sides or floor

A non corrosive high density polyethylene transmission shield provides long lasting protection of mechanical parts Because it's slicker than metal manure is left in your fields not stuck to the shielding

10-year warranty

All Gehl spreaders are built to last They carry a full 10 year warranty on the floor and sides

Dependable Gehl Spreaders carry the load

Scavenger® II. With A Gehl Scavenger®II you can spread liquids, semi-solids, pen-packed, even frozen manure A special feature is the heavy-duty patented square-tube auger that can be powered both up and down hydraulically to prevent bridging and cut through winter freeze-ups. See your Gehl dealer for more details.

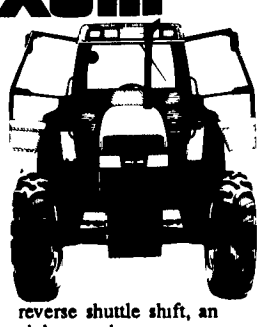
MAXXUM tractors feature door-to-door convenience.

A Greatly Appreciated Feature Is Our Two Door Cab!



Among mid range tractors, only Case International MAXXUM tractors offer cabs with two doors. That makes getting in and out a lot easier, especially when you're doing stationary work or working around obstructions. Comfortable, two-door cabs are just one of many reasons to own a MAXXUM tractor. Others include: choice of fully synchronized or power-shift transmissions, with 16 forward and 12 reverse speeds, standard forward/reverse shuttle shift, an eight speed creeper option and three horsepower selections, 77, 86, and 94 PTO (57, 64 and 70 kW) And all three models are backed by the best warranty* in the business: five years or 5,000 hours, whichever occurs first. Come in to see the MAXXUM line of tractors today.

* Excluding tires, which are covered by their own manufacturers' warranty. A $200 deductible applies to each repair after the first year ©JI Case Company 1989.

50th Anniversary/ Inventory Reduction SALE!! WHY??

Reason No. 1: CB Hoober & Son Inc. is celebrating 50 years in business serving the machinery needs of farmers in Lancaster County and Eastern PA.

Reason No. 2: 1991 has been our best-ever sales year for New and Used Equipment; so we need to reduce our inventory of Used Equipment trade-ins...

RECONDITIONED AXIAL FLOW COMBINES

These combines have been, or are in the process of being, reconditioned by our combine service specialists. Once an axial flow combine has been reconditioned by Hoober mechanics, it will deliver years of dependable service to you. If you are looking for a machine to do 200 to 800 acres a year, one of these machines is the right choice.

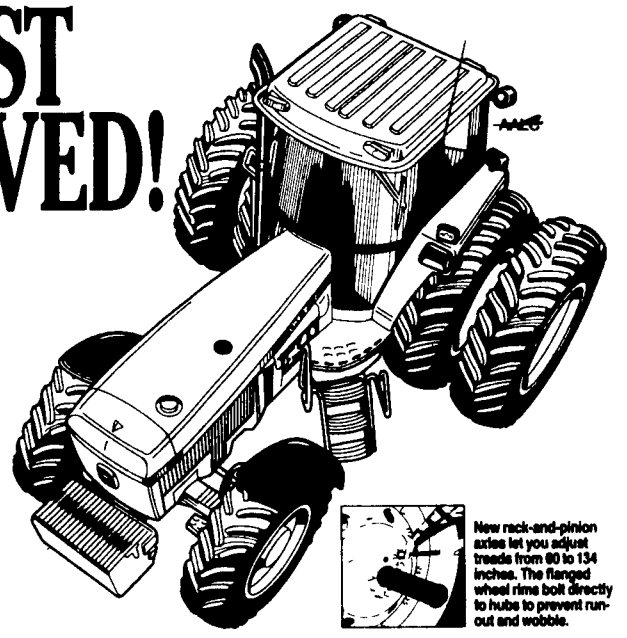
JUST ARRIVED!



The air filter is easier than ever to service. You can do it quickly without tools or lifting the hood.

New vertical oil filter on 7.6 L engines helps prevent spills for cleaner changes.

New rack-and-pinion axles let you adjust treads from 80 to 134 inches. The flanged wheel rims bolt directly to hubs to prevent run-out and wobble.

New John Deere 60 Series Tractors...

Now With NEW 5-YEAR/5000-HOUR WARRANTY

Come see us for all the details about the new John Deere 5-year/5000-HOUR warranty on all new 155- to 200-hp 60 Series Tractors. It's just the kind of coverage you've been asking for. And check out the new 60 Series Tractors. They too offer everything you've asked for. New rack-and-pinion wheels. Easier oil and air filter servicing. Improved sound quality inside the cab. Wider steps and platform for easier access. Better visibility. And more. Stop in today and see for yourself. Take charge with this mid-size performer

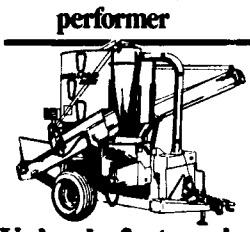
Our 86-horsepower Model 7710 has big power. The 268-cubic-inch turbo-charged diesel engine puts acres behind you fast. And it's fuel-efficient, too.

CALL FOR SPECIAL PRICE ON 2WD AND 4WD IN STOCK!



Unloads fast...priced to move fast, too

The Model 355 grinder-mixer unloads a full, 100-bushel tank in less than five minutes! The mixing auger thoroughly mixes your ration from the bottom up to produce consistent, uniform feed. Optional electronic scales gives you accurate control of rations. There's a lot to like about the "355"... including the deal we can make on it. Give us a call, soon.

Unmatched dump reach

New Holland Super Boom loaders lift the payload forward as the boom rises so you get more forward reach where you need it most. Super Boom loaders also feature:
- A longer wheelbase for greater stability.
- An integral cab and rollover structure.
- Gas or diesel, air- or water-cooled engines from 18 to 57 horsepower.
- Operating loads from 600 to 2,050 pounds.

Ask for a demonstration. Find out how much better a skid-steer loader can be.

Get a gutsy performer

We have a gutsy performer for you- the Ford Model 5610 with 62-PTO horsepower, it's got a beefy 256-cubic inch diesel engine- the largest in its class. So it takes on tough jobs.

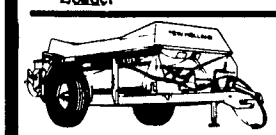
We have a spreader for any farm



- Bonded Protection, the exclusive lifetime guarantee, covers the floor and sides. Ask us for details.
- Corrosion-resistant steels are used throughout for tough, long-lasting construction.
- Plus adding optional slurry sides on the Models 514, 520 and 680 increases capacity up to 25% at a fraction of the cost.

Only Ford New Holland offers seven quality spreaders to match any farming operation, including yours.	Model	(Bu.) Cap.

All New Holland spreaders clean out fast to make quick work of dirty jobs.

CASH PRICE $4,995 F.O.B. New Holland

From sloppy material to pen-packed manure with bedding, New Holland side-delivery spreaders handle a variety of materials quickly and cleanly. They also spread poultry, free-stall and gutter manure from barn cleaners.

New Holland side-delivery spreaders give you precise control over the amount of material per acre. Spreading rates are hydraulically controlled, providing uniform spread patterns. The Ford New Holland warranty gives you full protection against tank rust-through for ten years. High-strength, corrosion-resistant steel, also used in other areas of the spreader, assures maximum durability and performance.

Now New Holland side-delivery spreaders come in six capacitiesy, from 1,000 gallons all the way up to 2,400 gallons. See the full line of New Holland side-delivery spreaders today.

NEW STUMP GRINDER!

To remove stumps without blasting or digging. NO MESS... only a few small chips left. Put on a 3-pt. hitch, hook up to hydraulics and operate from the seat of your 22-90 hp tractor. Cut trees as far as 8" below ground level. Cuts any wood fast! Works with 19 removable, regrindable bits. You can start a professional stump removal business. This is a production machine and not a toy! Call us for more details.

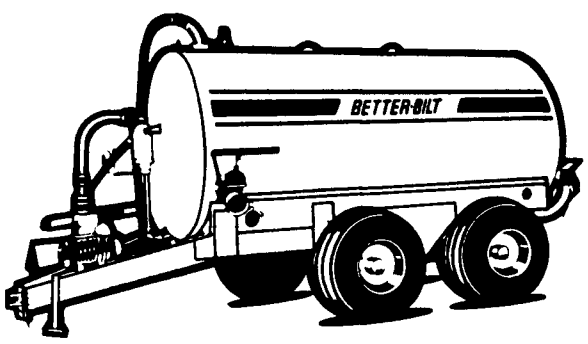
THE NAME SAYS IT ... ... it's BETTER BUILT!



It's easy to see what it takes to carry the "BETTER-BILT" logo. Stronger materials... better craftsmanship... greater precision .. more efficient design... All-American construction.

For design to finish paint, the BETTER-BILT tank has more to offer... yet it costs no more than an ordinary tank.

When you shop for a tank, compare. Look at the differences. Pick the one that's better built!

For efficient effective economical removal and application of liquid manure the Better-Bilt vacuum tank with capacities to 4500 gal

Measure The Performance

Marcus and Chester reviewing their DHIA records

MARCUS & CHESTER MARTIN

Mercersburg, PA

Marcus and Chester Martin operate a 85 cow Holstein operation in Franklin County. These brothers have been partners since 1980 when they began renting the farm from their father, Glenn Martin. Glenn started the operation in 1956. Last summer Marcus and Chester purchased the farm from their father.

The Martins current feed program consists of 6 lbs. of hay along with 25 lbs. of high quality haylage and 30 lbs. of corn silage. Up until July of 1988 the grain was fed as a straight 18% mix made up of shelled corn, barley, molasses and Purina North Atlantic 38% concentrates. Having felt that their herd had reached a plateau in milk they decided to try a recommendation that their Purina Dairy Specialist suggested.

In July of that year "Marc" and "Chet" backed their protein mix down to a 12% grain ration and started top dressing with Purina North Atlantic 40% concentrate. Their current milk to grain ratio is a 3 to 1 from 65 lbs. of milk and higher. From 50 lbs. to 65 lbs. of milk a 3.5 to 1. And from 50 lbs. of milk on down a 4 to 1. The top dress starts at 60 lbs. of milk. They recently started top-dressing with a Purina High Energy 32% Concentrate.

Here Are The Results The Martins Have See In The Last Few Years:

DATE	#HEAD	% DAYS	MILK LBS.	% TEST	FAT LBS.	% PROTEIN	PROTEIN LBS.
7-88	82.1	86.7	17,851	3.5	626	3.1	549
7-89	85.6	86.7	19,473	3.7	712	3.1	608
9-91	96.9	83.6	20,045	3.6	721	3.2	632

Listed below are some comments that Chet had to share about their current program:

- "The first thing that we noticed with the new program was a reduction in our protein purchases by 1 ton/month."
- "We also are seeing higher peaking cows along with better persistency."
- "Herd health and breeding are both doing well and our current calving interval is 12.4"
- "Because of good forage quality and our split feeding method we can feed our cows more cost effectively as well as focusing in on peak milk persistency and body condition."

Purina Mills would like to thank the Martins for sharing their records with us and wish them continued success in the future.
